Introduction

The Index of Personal Information – what it is

The Index of Personal Information, hereafter referred to as the Index, is an annual publication of the federal government. Required under the Privacy Act, the Index provides a current description of personal information held by those federal government institutions (departments, agencies and Crown corporations) which are affected by the Act. This information is collected through government programs, including such well-known programs as the Census and the Family Allowance Program.

The Index – a tool

The Privacy Index is designed to help members of the public exercise their rights — provided them under the Privacy Act — to access information about themselves. The Personal Information Request Form should be used for formal requests for information. Copies are included in the yellow display box with the Index.

Government institutions may give you access to the information held in their files without a formal request under the Privacy Act. You may wish to request the information informally by telephoning or writing to the appropriate institution before you make a formal request. Addresses and phone numbers of appropriate resource people in each institution are contained in this Index.

You might, in fact, be looking for information of a non-personal nature held by federal institutions. In that case, you should make a request under the Access to Information Act, using the Access Register available at the same places as the Index of Personal Information.

The Privacy Act

Passed by Parliament in 1983, the Privacy Act provides all Canadian citizens, permanent residents of Canada, and inmates of federal penitentiaries, rights concerning the personal information held about them by government institutions. These include the right to:

- access information held about them by the federal government;
- request corrections to personal information held by the federal government;
- have personal information protected from disclosure except in specific circumstances; and
- be informed about the collection and use of such personal information.

Personal Information Under the Act

The federal government collects information from and about individuals on a wide variety of subjects in order to carry out its programs and activities. While much of this is available for review, some personal information cannot be released to the public under the Privacy Act. Such exemptions include information which is injurious to defence, international relations and law enforcement, and material which might affect the safety of another individual.

Generally, information about a person cannot be disclosed to any other party without that person's consent. There are some exceptions, however, which are listed at the end of this introduction.

Using the Index

Once you're familiar with the organization of the Index it's easy to use. Before you start, it's worth spending a few minutes reading the key terms you will come across, the description of the major sections of the Index, and the step-by-step approach.

A. Important Terms to Understand Before You Use the Index

Chapter

Section IV of this Index is composed of over 100 chapters, one for each of the institutions which falls under the Privacy Act. While chapters vary slightly in their precise organization and content, the basic format is the same. It is presented in "B. Organization of the Index".

Class of Personal Information

A Class of Personal Information is a grouping of similar types of information that is not consistently used for any administrative or other purpose which would affect individuals. Information in a Class of Personal Information might include unsolicited correspondence or complaints concerning broad subject matters.

Personal Information

Personal information includes all information, in any medium, concerning an individual. For example, personal information may include an individual's race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, age, family status, education, criminal record, professional history, address, fingerprints, blood type, and the opinions of others concerning the individual.

Personal Information Bank

A Personal Information Bank (PIB) is a grouping of similar types of information that is used for consistent purposes. Each PIB is labelled with a personal identifier. While there is not a physical "bank" or file where the information is stored, the term "bank" is used to symbolize the fact that the information within it is of a similar nature. Each "bank" is identified by a title and a number (the Personal Information Bank number).

There are two basic types of PIBs — "registered" and "unregistered" — and the distinction between the two is important.

- Registered Banks — those which have met all the reporting requirements under the Privacy Act and have consequently been assigned a Treasury Board Registration Number. Registered Banks are easily recognized by a registration number, which appears at the end of the description of the PIB.

- Unregistered Banks — those which have not yet met all the reporting requirements specified in the Privacy Act, and have not been assigned a Treasury Board Registration Number. These PIBs are easily recognized by the lack of a Treasury Board Registration Number at the end of the description of the PIB. Descriptions of unregistered banks are generally less complete than those of registered banks.

There are several categories of Personal Information Banks. The two major ones are:

- Personal Information Banks — General Public
- Personal Information Banks — Federal Employees

Personal Information Banks — General Public
These PIBs contain personal information about members of the general public. They are identified by name and by a PIB number. As described earlier, personal information held by an institution covers many areas, ranging from information collected through surveys (e.g. the Census) to letters of enquiry about specific federal programs.

Personal Information Banks — Federal Employees
These PIBs contain information about current and former employees of the federal government, including information about regular and reserve members of the Canadian Forces, RCMP and incumbents of Governor in Council positions.

The three types of federal employee PIBs are:

- Standard Banks — those containing standard information which all federal institutions maintain on their employees. These banks are easily identified by the letters SE and a number in the 900s, both of which appear in the PIB's identification number.
- Central Banks — those containing information about employees in all or several institutions. Such banks are maintained by the Privy Council Office; the Public Service Commission; Treasury Board; the National Archives of Canada; the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; the Department of External Affairs; the Department of Labour; the Department of Public Works; the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs; and the Department of National Health and Welfare. Central Banks are easily identified by the letters CE and a number in the 700s, both of which appear in the PIB's identification number.
- Particular Banks — those containing information on employees of an institution over and above that maintained in Standard Banks. Particular banks are easily identified by the letters PE and a number in the 800s, both of which appear in the PIB's identification number.

Personal Information Bank Number
The PIB number is the number which, in addition to the name of the PIB, precisely identifies that PIB. The format of each PIB number is the same. For example:

STC/P-PU-005
STC = the alphabetic identifier of the institution
P-PU = the alphabetic identifier of the type of bank
005 = the three-digit number identifying the bank "Population".

Privacy Coordinator

A person in each federal institution covered by the Privacy Act is designated the Privacy Co-ordinator for that institution. Requests for information under the Privacy Act must be made to the Privacy Co-ordinator in the appropriate institution. This person is also available to answer questions concerning your application or the information you want to see. The address and telephone number for each Privacy Co-ordinator is located under the heading, "Access Procedures", in each chapter of the Index.

B. Organization of the Index

The Index is organized into five (5) major sections, each of which is briefly described below.

I Introduction

These introductory pages are designed to help new users get the most out of the Index. Relevant background information concerning the Privacy Act and additional sources of help are also included here.

II Federal Employee Information Banks – Standard Descriptions

This section contains descriptions of standard information held about government employees along with procedures on how to access the information.

III Subject Index

The Subject Index appears in the bright yellow pages located near the beginning of the Index. Organized into both general and specific subjects, the Subject Index is an important tool for the Index user.

Beside each key word in the Subject Index is a number — the Personal Information Bank (PIB) number. This identifier helps you locate the PIB(s) which relate(s) to each key word in the Subject Index. At the end of the Subject Index is a list of the unique institutional identifiers for all institutions included in the Index.

IV Personal Information Banks – by Institution

This is by far the largest section of the Index, containing more than 100 chapters. There is one chapter for each government institution affected by the Privacy Act. The chapters are organized alphabetically. Each contains the following information:

- background information which briefly describes the institution;
- access procedures which tell the readers where their formal requests for information should be sent;
- a listing and descriptions of the personal information held by the institution, including those for the general public and for federal employees.

At the end of some chapters is a list of "Deleted Personal Information Banks", including, if relevant, a brief explanation of where the information in the deleted banks is now located. A PIB may be deleted when its retention period has expired or if its content has been incorporated into other PIBs.

V Cross-Reference Index of New and Former Identifiers

At the end of the Index is a cross-reference index that links the current identifiers with those used in 1986. Only those identifiers that have changed since 1986 appear in the cross-reference index.

C. Getting the Most Out of the Index: A Step-by-Step Approach

The following is intended to help those who are unfamiliar with the Index to learn to use it quickly and effectively. It may also be useful as a "refresher" for those who use the Index only occasionally.

To illustrate the process, an example is followed through from beginning to end of this seven-stage process.

The Example

You are interested in knowing what information was collected and stored about you in the 1981 Census. You turn to the Index of Personal Information for help.

1. Prepare Yourself

If you think the information you want might be published and available through a bookstore, library or other public institution, you might consider writing to or telephoning the Privacy Co-ordinator of the relevant institution to enquire about this possibility before you make a formal request using the Index.

Once you decide to use the Index you will need the Personal Information Request Form, located in the yellow display box with this Index.

2. Identify the Appropriate Federal Government Institution

If you already know which institution holds the information you want to see, proceed to Stage 3.

If you don't know which institution holds the information you want, you should use the Subject Index. The Subject Index contains key words which relate to a wide variety of subject matter found in the various personal information banks held by government institutions. It's easily recognized by the bright yellow colour of its pages.

The Example

. . . when you look up "Census" in the Subject Index you will see that there are three (3) key words related to it. Beside each key word is a Personal Information Bank Number (PIB number) which will lead you to the description of that PIB.

3. Note the PIB Number(s) You Want to Investigate

In the Subject Index, a PIB number is displayed beside each word. If you plan to investigate more than one key word and related PIB number, it's worth jotting them down on a piece of paper before you begin investigating.

The Example

. . . of the three key words listed under "Census", it appears that there is only one that contains the information you want:

Population censuses microfilmed records	STC/P-PU-005

4. Locate the Appropriate Chapter

As described earlier, the first three letters of the PIB number identify the federal institution that holds the information. If you can't tell from this three-letter identifier which institution it is, refer to the Listing of Unique Institutional Identifiers, located at the end of the Subject Index. This listing will tell you the name of the institution. At the beginning of Section IV, "Personal Information Banks by Institution", a chapter number is listed beside each institution's proper name.

The Example

. . . when you look in the Listing of Unique Institutional Identifiers for "STC" (the three-letter identifier for the key word you have chosen), you will find:

STC	Statistics Canada

. . . when you look for Statistics Canada in the Index of Departments, Agencies and Crown Corporations at the beginning of Section IV you will find:

Institutions	I.D.	Chapter
Statistics Canada	STC	97

5. Find and Examine the Personal Information Bank Description

Once you have identified the chapter you require, turn to it to locate the description of Personal Information Banks held by that institution. Each chapter has its own internal page numbering system.

Introduction

The Example

. . . turn to Chapter 97, Statistics Canada. Look for the PIB number under the heading "General Public" (you know it's a general public bank because of the "PU" found in the PIB number).

You will see that STC/P-PU-005 is the first PIB in that section, and that, according to the description, it contains the information you want.

6. Complete the Personal Information Request Form

Personal Information Request Forms are located with the Index in the yellow display box. Follow the instructions on the form when making a formal request for access to personal information. If you are, or have been, a federal employee and wish to consult your records, you may contact the headquarters of the institution you worked for, or one of its personnel agents in your region. However, if you want to request information under the Act, you must fill out a Personal Information Request Form.

The Example

. . . a sample of a completed form for the example we have followed appears at the end of the Introduction.

7. Send Your Request to the Appropriate Privacy Co-ordinator

There is no charge for any work required to research and process your requests. The mailing address and any specific requirements for accessing personal information from a specific government institution are located near the beginning of each chapter.

Once You Have Made a Request

Under the Act, you should be contacted about your request within 30 days of its being received by the Privacy Co-ordinator.

You may receive one of two responses:

a) your request is being processed; or

b) your request has been denied, for one of two reasons:

- the information you requested doesn't exist; or
- the information you requested is exempt from the Privacy Act. In this case you may wish to take further action. Refer to the complaint procedure outlined below.

If You Want to Change Your Record(s)

Personal information held on government files can be corrected if it contains errors or omissions. Requests for such changes may be refused by the institution which holds the records. In this case, the institution must make a notation outlining the nature of the correction which was requested but refused, and attach this notation to the appropriate information. Similarly, you can require the institution to notify anyone who has used the information during the past two years that a correction has been made, or that a correction was requested but not made. If the information was released to a government institution, that institution must either make the corrections required or attach the notice of correction to the record.

Other Information

Help

If you need help in using the Index or the Request Form, or if you would like assistance in determining whether the Index is the tool you should be using, you should contact the Privacy Co-ordinator with the government institution you think holds the information you want. Addresses and telephone numbers for the Privacy Co-ordinators are found near the beginning of each chapter, under the heading "Access Procedures".

More general information about the Privacy Act and Access to Information Act may be obtained by contacting:

Communications Division
Treasury Board of Canada
9th Floor, L'Esplanade Laurier
East Tower - 140 O'Connor
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0R5

Telephone: (613) 957-2400

Complaint Procedure

If you feel that your request was processed too slowly or was wrongly denied, or that the collection, use, disclosure and/or disposal is not being done according to the Act, or if the information you requested was not provided in the language you specified, you may complain in writing to:

The Office of the Privacy Commissioner
Place de Ville, Tower B
14th Floor, 112 Kent Street
K1A 1H3

The Privacy Commissioner will investigate your complaint and make recommendations to the institution as to the validity of your complaint. If the Commissioner recommends that your complaint be righted, but the institution still refuses, you may take your case to the Federal Court within 45 days of receiving the Commissioner's report.

Disclosure of Personal Information

Personal information about you can only be disclosed to someone else with your consent or when one or more of the criteria set out in the Privacy Act are met. These criteria, which permit the disclosure of information but do not require it, are as follows.

Personal information may be disclosed:

a) for the purpose for which it was collected or for a use consistent with that purpose;

b) to comply with another Act of Parliament;

c) to comply with a legal document such as a warrant or subpoena;

d) to the Attorney General of Canada for use in legal proceedings;

e) to an investigative body (e.g., RCMP or Military Police) to enforce a law;

f) to a province, foreign state or international body, for the purpose of administering or enforcing a law when an agreement or arrangement exists between the Government of Canada and the third party;

g) to a Member of Parliament to assist a constituent when the information relates to the constituent;

h) to carry out an audit;

i) to the National Archives of Canada for archival purposes;

j) for statistical or research purposes if the researcher provides a written undertaking that information provided will not be further disclosed;

k) to assist Native people in the preparation of claims;

l) to collect a debt owed to the government or to make a payment owed by the Crown to an individual;

m) to further the public interest; or

n) to benefit the individual to whom the information relates.

Government institutions are required to retain a record when personal information in a personal information bank is used for a purpose which is different from the uses set out for that bank. They must attach this record to the personal information in the bank.

Government institutions can, and do, have their own policies to deny the disclosure of personal information even when disclosure is permitted under the Privacy Act.

Personal Information Request Form

Individuals are required to use this form to request access to personal information about themselves under the Privacy Act.

STEP 1: Decide whether or not you wish to submit a request under the Privacy Act. You may decide to request the information informally, without using the procedures required by the Act, through the local office of the appropriate government institution or through the Privacy Co-ordinator listed in the Index of Personal Information. Copies of the Index are available in public libraries, post offices in rural areas and government information offices.

STEP 2: Consult the Index of Personal Information. If you have decided to exercise your rights of access under the Privacy Act, review the descriptions of personal information for institutions which are most likely to have the information you are seeking. Decide on the personal information bank or class of personal information likely to contain the information.

STEP 3: Complete this personal information request form. Indicate the personal information bank or class of personal information to which you are requesting access, and include any additional information indicated in the bank description to locate the information you are seeking, or to verify your own identity. Indicate whether you wish to receive copies of the information, examine the original in a government office, or if you are requesting other arrangements for access. There is no application fee for making a request under the Privacy Act.

STEP 4: Send the request to the person identified in the Index as the appropriate officer responsible for the particular personal information bank or class.

STEP 5: Review the information you received in response to your request. Decide if you wish to make further requests under the Privacy Act. You may wish to exercise your rights to request corrections or to require that notations be attached to the information when corrections are not made. You may also decide to complain to the Privacy Commissioner when you believe that you have been denied any of your rights under the Act.

II. FEDERAL EMPLOYEE INFORMATION BANKS

Federal Employee Information Banks

Introduction

The provisions for the protection of personal information in the Privacy Act apply to all personal information under the control of the federal government, including personal information about government employees, regular and reserve members of the armed forces, RCMP members and incumbents of Governor in Council positions.

Purpose

The purpose of this section is to provide descriptions of personal information banks relating to current and former employees of federal government institutions where the information pertains to their status as employees, along with procedures for access to these employee information banks. The standard descriptions are provided in order to ensure that the Privacy Act is applied in a consistent manner to employee information held by all government institutions. The banks listed in this section encompass information on all storage media relevant to the purposes for which they have been established.

Description

Employee information banks are described under the following headings as applicable for each government institution:

(a) Standard Banks, consisting of standard information which all government institutions may maintain on their own employees. It should be noted that some government institutions do not maintain for each employee all the records described in the Standard Banks and that the description of the Standard Banks does not in every case reflect the physical organization of the records maintained by federal government institutions.

While government institutions may declare additional employee information banks — where, for example, an institution is not subject to the Public Service Employment Act or the Public Service Staff Relations Act, — institutions are required to conform to all of the standards indicated in the twenty Standards Banks unless specifically exempted from doing so by the Treasury Board (see Standard Bank Descriptions following.)

(b) Central Banks, consisting of centralized information on employees in all or several government institutions, maintained by the Privy Council Office, the National Archives of Canada, the Public Service Commission, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Treasury Board and the Departments of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, External Affairs, Health and Welfare, Labour, Public Works and Supply and Services.

(c) Particular Banks, consisting of information over and above that in the Standard Banks, which some government institutions maintain on their own employees.

In case of Standard and Central Banks, the social insurance number (SIN) is specifically identified when it comprises part of the personal information in the bank. This is intended to more clearly indicate the purposes for which the SIN is collected and the main use and consistent uses to which the number may be put.

Access Procedures

(a) Informal Procedures

The informal procedures, in existence prior to the proclamation of the Privacy Act, are maintained to make employee information available to current employees of federal government institutions. Current employees, including employees who have transferred from one federal government institution to another, should seek access to their records by contacting the personnel officers of their current employing institution at headquarters, or in the regions, as appropriate. For access to employee records maintained in Central Banks, current employees should contact the personnel officer of the institution which presently employs them. Current employees are encouraged to provide reasonable identifying information about themselves and the records requested, to assist in prompt and efficient retrieval of their records.

(b) Formal Procedures

The Privacy Act extends the right of government employees to obtain access to information about themselves in their capacity as employees. To exercise their rights under the Act, government employees should complete a Personal Information Request Form and forward it to the Privacy Co-ordinator, or to other specifically designated officers in their institution. Former employees should in all cases contact the Personnel Records Centre, National Archives of Canada, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Canada K1A 0N3.

Two-Year Rule

Sub-section 4(1) of the Privacy Regulations requires that personal information, including employee information, be retained by an institution for at least two years following the last time the personal information was used for an administrative purpose, unless the individual concerned consents to its earlier disposal. The only exception to this rule is where an Act of Parliament or a Regulation specifically stipulates a shorter retention period. The reason for the two-year rule is to provide individuals with sufficient time to obtain access to personal information which the federal government may have collected or compiled about them for administrative purposes.

Standard Bank Descriptions

P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

P-SE-902

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

P-SE-905

Training and Development

Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.

Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

P-SE-906

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages, policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Description: This bank contains reports on accidents; claims of damages; legal decisions; settlement transactions and correspondence concerning accidents involving government-owned and leased vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft as well as privately-owned vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft used on official business. Records concerning occupational health and safety, as well as authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-907.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding vehicle, ship, boat and aircraft accidents involving employees of a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To determine liability for such accidents and to approve damage settlements.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after the settlement of individual claims, after which the records are destroyed.

Security Clearances

Description: This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done, after which the records are destroyed.

P-SE-910

Grievances

Description: This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board.
Consistent Uses: Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Board the records are destroyed.

P-SE-911
Discipline
Description: This bank contains notices of disciplinary action and correspondence about employee misconduct; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigations of possible misconduct and analysis reports of these investigations. It is important to note that notices of disciplinary action may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information used in disciplinary actions in government institutions and to determine the need for and nature of disciplinary actions.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on pay and benefits; attendance and leave; transfer, demotion and termination of employment.
Retention and Disposal Standards: For correspondence regarding investigations, testimony by witnesses and legal opinions — five years for cases where employee was found guilty of misconduct and three years for cases where employee was found not guilty. For notices of disciplinary action, including notices attached to the Employee Personnel Record, the time limit is that specified in applicable collective agreements or, where no such agreement exists, three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed.

P-SE-912
Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals
Description: This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation.

Description: This bank contains permit applications and correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on government-owned or leased property. Records for deductions for payment of parking fees are included in the Pay and Benefits Bank while records of parking violations are maintained by the RCMP.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information for the administration of parking privileges.
Consistent Uses: To issue parking permits.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the permit expires.

P-SE-915
Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code
Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.
Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.
Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

P-SE-916
Employee Assistance
Description: This bank contains information treated in a confidential fashion that is relative to an employee's involvement in an Employee Assistance Program (EAP); notice of voluntary or mandatory (supervisory work-performance related) referral; records of reference to, or reports and correspondence from a health professional or rehabilitation agency; and only non-medical interpretations concerning an employee's work capability or limitations. All personal medical data shall be maintained in a medical protected status under the control of the Medical Services Branch, National Health and Welfare. Records relating to work performance deficiencies, absenteeism and disciplinary matters are to be held in the appropriate institutional personal information bank and not held with EAP files.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary to the administration of the Employee Assistance Program. To determine the need for employee assistance counselling, referrals for medical evaluations and participation in rehabilitation programs.

P-SE-918

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

P-SE-919

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

P-SE-920

Incentive Awards

Description: The bank includes information on public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan. Such information may include curricula vitae, narratives in support of meritorious contributions related to their duties or practiced suggestions for improvement of Public Service operations and completed recommendation reports concerning either the Merit Award or the Suggestion Award.
Class of Individuals: Public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.
Purpose: To identify individuals who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.
Consistent Uses: The information in this bank is used to establish precedents for awards and to provide an audit trail for the disbursements of funds.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Operational files are kept for a minimum of two years then destroyed; financial files for six years then destroyed, and precedent setting files for 25 years then destroyed.

ADVISORY COUNCIL ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

Chapter 1

ADVISORY COUNCIL ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

Background

Established in 1973, the Canadian Advisory Council on the Status of Women (CACSW) is composed of 30 members appointed by the federal government to bring before the government and the public matters of interest and concern to women, and to advise the Minister responsible for the Status of Women on such topics.

The Council has 27 members appointed for specific terms, with representation from all the provinces and territories, plus a full-time president and two vice-presidents. Council meetings are held at least twice a year in Ottawa.

Overall Responsibilities

In addressing itself to the concerns of all Canadian women, the 30 members of the Council bring forward the particular problems of their regions. Research and background material provide the base upon which Council recommendations are made following deliberation by members at general meetings.

Recommendations for change in legislation and for other measures to improve the status of women are presented to the government through the Minister responsible. The Council has the unique right and responsibility to inform the public of its recommendations at the same time as it reports to Parliament. Council activities — briefs, speeches, responses to current events, open communication with the public — maintain an awareness of the inequalities facing women in Canadian society today.

Canadian Advisory Council on the Status of Women (CACSW) Talent Bank

The talent bank was established in 1979 at the request of the Minister responsible for the Status of Women for the purpose of promoting greater presence of women on federal boards, commissions and councils. The talent bank files contain an historical record of curricula vitae of women with expertise in a variety of areas who would be suitable for appointment to federal bodies. The curricula vitae were used to put forward names of qualified women in anticipation of impending appointments. Although the files have been retained, the talent bank is no longer active. The bank will be retained until December 1987.

PARTICULAR BANKS

ASW/P-PE-801

Conflict of Interest

Description: This bank contains voluntary disclosures by employees concerning potential conflict of interest situations and investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of employees and their official duties.
Class of Individuals: Departmental employees.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution, to record potential conflicts of interest and to resolve actual conflicts of interest.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after potential conflict of interest no longer exists or actual conflict of interest has been resolved, after which the records are destroyed.

STANDARD BANKS

ASW/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Consistent Uses: To administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

ATLANTIC PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Chapter 2

ATLANTIC PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Background

As a result of recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four pilotage authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes, and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Atlantic Pilotage Authority, Ltd. was incorporated in carrying out the Pilotage Act in 1972, and pursuant to the Financial Administration Act, (Schedule SC 1983-84, 31) was designated a Schedule C Part I Crown corporation.

Overall Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries — all coastal waters in the Atlantic region. As a further goal, the authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

APA/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

APA/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

APA/P-SE-907
Occupational Safety and Health

The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program. The information is used to support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions. The period of retention of the records is five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL BOARD

Chapter 3

ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL BOARD

Background

The Atomic Energy Control Board (AECB) was established in 1946 by the Atomic Energy Control Act (RSC 1970 c. A-19). In addition to this Act and its related Regulations, the AECB administers the Nuclear Liability Act. The head office is in Ottawa.

Overall Responsibilities

The AECB is empowered by the Atomic Energy Control Act to control the development, application and use of atomic energy. This is done by a comprehensive licensing system covering all dealings in prescribed atomic energy substances and items.

The objective of the AECB is to protect the health and safety of workers and the public, and to ensure the physical security and safeguarding of nuclear materials in the Canadian industry. In the occupational health and safety area, the AECB requires verification that workers in the industry are protected against radiation in excess of the limits set out in the Regulations. To this end all workers wear dosimeters, supplied by an approved dosimetry service, to record their exposures, and the AECB appoints inspectors both from its own staff and, by arrangement, from provincial governments and institutions, to assure compliance with AECB licence and Regulations requirements. The AECB also invites federal and provincial health authorities to name experts to act as medical advisers in the field of occupational radiological health and safety. These actions lead to the development of files in which personal histories and occupational data may be stored.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

Planning and Co-ordination Division

AEC/P-PU-005
Health and Safety Regulations: Medical Advisers

The bank contains names and details concerning present employment and area of jurisdiction, and communications between the AECB and parent agencies or the individuals prior to appointment. Individuals this bank relates to are all qualified medical officers, who may be from provincial government departments, hospitals, institutions, or the federal service. The purpose of the bank is to record information on the appointment of medical advisers to the AECB. The bank provides an up-to-date status of individual appointments by name. Records are retained during tenure of appointment, and for two years subsequently; and are then sent to the National Archives.

AEC/P-PU-010
Health and Safety Regulations: Inspection Officers

The bank may contain data on nationality, age, sex, education and special training, and employment history, as well as correspondence with provinces leading to appointments. There may be sensitive material relating to federal-provincial negotiations for service. The purpose of the bank is to record information relating to the appointment of employees of provincial government departments or health institutes, to act as inspectors under the Atomic Energy Control Regulations. The bank provides an up-to-date identification of individuals appointed as inspectors. Records are held during tenure of appointment, and for two years subsequently, after which they are sent to the National Archives.

Operator Certification and Research Facility Division

AEC/P-PU-015
Examinations and Results

This bank maintains a record of the examinations given to personnel at nuclear reactor facilities. Data includes names of individuals, titles of examinations written, and results in terms of success or failure. The AECB sets these examinations to ensure that the requirements for operating personnel are met. Records are retained in the bank for an indefinite period.

AEC/P-PU-020
Reactor Operators and Training

Data in this bank include a record of correspondence, details of education and experience, and basic personal information. The purpose of the bank is to provide an accurate and up-to-date record of all information on authorizations and appointments of individuals to designated positions at nuclear generating stations and research reactor sites. Records are maintained in the bank for an indefinite period.

AEC/P-PU-025
Reactor Personnel

Data include summaries of the individual's examination results, copies of all authorizations issued for the appointment of the individual to designated positions, and correspondence specifically relating to the individual. The purpose of the bank is to maintain a record of each individual's examination and authorization for designated appointments at nuclear reactor facilities. Records are retained for an indefinite period.

Planning and Administration Branch

AEC/P-PU-030
Temporary Assistance Records

The data content may include such information as: names, addresses, social insurance numbers, invoices or time sheets pertaining to the individual's period of employment with the AECB. The purpose of the bank is to maintain an inventory of all temporary assistance agencies and individuals as their services are required by the Board. The primary use of the bank is to keep an accurate record of the agencies and terms of employment as required, on the basis of verification of accounts. Records are retained in the bank for three years.

ATOMIC ENERGY CONTROL BOARD

Applications for Employment

This bank exists to maintain an inventory of applicants from the general public or the federal government for employment with the AECB. It includes correspondence, applications for employment, curricula vitae, interview data, and other personal information. This bank is used to identify applicants, their skills and abilities, work histories, and education, for possible future appointments to the Board staff. Records are retained in the bank for one year.

AEC/P-PU-040
Personal Service Contract Files

The bank includes basic personal data, subject matter and terms of contract. The purpose of the bank is to maintain an accurate account of all payments made under personal service contracts. The primary use of the bank is to record negotiations between the AECB and the individuals concerned. Records will be retained in the bank for an indefinite period.

AEC/P-PU-045
Access Request Data Bank

This bank contains the access request forms sent by individuals requesting access to their files, the replies to such requests and information related to their processing. It is used for processing access requests only, and to report on the number of access requests received annually. Files will be kept for two years.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the AECB, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specified banks described above. Such information relates to the occupational exposure of atomic radiation workers to radiation near or beyond the limits permitted by the Atomic Energy Control Regulations. Such exposure may occur in the mining, refining, fabricating, power generating and waste management sectors of the nuclear industry, and in the fields of use of radioisotopes in industry and medicine. For all these areas there are active files in which events of high exposure to individuals and groups may on occasion be discussed, particularly with respect to accurate determination of the dose value to be recorded in the National Dose Registry (of National Health and Welfare), and to decisions on the hazard presented by such doses to individuals and their continued working in similar environments.

Such records are retained in the subject files in which they arise. The information is retrievable given (particularly) the identification of the AECB licensee in whose facilities or under whose responsibility the event occurred, with additional specifics concerning an individual's name, the nature and date of the event, the location in Canada, and the sector of the industry involved.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

AEC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

AEC/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the informaton used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

AEC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

AEC/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

AEC/P-SE-905

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

OAG/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

BANK OF CANADA

Background

The Bank of Canada is Canada's central bank. It was incorporated in 1934 under the Bank of Canada Act which charges it with the responsibility to regulate "credit and currency in the best interests of the economic life of the nation, to control and protect the external value of the national monetary unit and to mitigate by its influence fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices and employment, so far as may be possible within the scope of monetary action, and generally to promote the economic and financial welfare of the Dominion."

Responsibility for the affairs of the Bank rests with a board of directors composed of the Governor, the senior deputy governor and 12 directors, appointed by the government for three-year terms. The deputy minister of Finance sits on the board but does not have the right to vote. The Governor is the chief executive officer of the Bank and handles the direction and control of the Bank's affairs.

STANDARD BANKS

The following standard banks are located at Head Office, 234 Wellington Street, Ottawa, Ontario.

BOC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: Information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; employment history, career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, tenure; performance reviews and employee appraisals; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record may contain summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics, however, is found in the various other standard banks described below. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. This bank provides a record of an individual's employment and is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security; where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In some of the above cases, the information in this bank is a summary which refers to other more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Personnel files for employees with three years service and under are kept for period of three years after separation; for those employees with over three years service, records are kept for a period of 10 years after separation.
TBS Registration Number: 000077

BOC/P-SE-903

While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form, as modules of institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are kept for a period of three years, then destroyed.
TBS Registration Number: 000079

BOC/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee including the social insurance number, as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some of the above information exists in a computer-based system in order to generate salaries, pensions, deductions or to adjust an employee payroll/personnel record.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements) and to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Files for employees with three years service and under are kept for a period of three years after separation; for those employees with over three years service records are kept for a period of 10 years after separation.

CANADA COUNCIL

Chapter 6

CANADA COUNCIL

Background

The Canada Council was created by the Parliament of Canada in 1957(Canada Council Act, 1957, RSC 1970 c-2, as amended). The mandate of the Canada Council (Section 8(1)) is "to foster and promote the study and enjoyment of, and the production of works, in the arts."

Overall Responsibilities

In particular, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the Council may, to further its objectives:

- assist, co-operate with and enlist the aid of organizations, the objectives of which are similar to any of the objectives of the Council;
- provide, through appropriate organizations or otherwise, for grants, scholarships or loans to persons in Canada for study or research in the arts in Canada or elsewhere, or to persons in other countries for study or research in the arts in Canada;
- make awards to persons in Canada for outstanding accomplishment in the arts;
- arrange for and sponsor exhibitions, performances and publications of works in the arts;
- exchange with other countries or organizations or persons therein knowledge and information respecting the arts; and
- arrange for representation and interpretation of Canadian arts in other countries.

The arts are defined (Section 2) as "architecture, the arts of the theatre, literature, music, painting, sculpture, the graphic arts, and other similar creative and interpretative activities." Council's concerns include not only existing but also emerging new artists, audiences, arts organizations and works in the arts.

The Canada Council has adopted as its general policy objective to recognize, foster, and promote excellence in the arts. Most grants are awarded through an extensive system of competitions, juried by practising artists and other independent specialists in the disciplines involved. The principles of advertised competition and peer evaluation are integral to the decision-making process of the Council.

The Canadian Commission for UNESCO

In addition to its mandate to foster and promote the arts, the Canada Council has been assigned responsibility for the Canadian Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) (Section 8(2), Order-in-Council PC 1957-831), in conformity with the constitution of UNESCO.

Communications Service

CAC/P-PU-030
Communications Service Mailing List

The Communications Service has direct responsibility for the management of this mailing list. The purpose of this mailing list is to compile and maintain addresses of individuals and organizations to whom selected Canada Council publications are sent. It contains names and addresses of individual artists, arts organizations, organizational contacts, government departments, universities and other organizations to whom publications are sent. In addition, each computer record contains a code which identifies the discipline and area of interest, a code which identifies whether or not the individual is a client of the Council, and a unique reference number. It is used to facilitate the sending of Canada Council publications to interested parties. The code which identifies whether or not the individual is a client of the Council is not included on the actual mailing labels. Files are revised on an ongoing basis. Names are added or deleted as programs change, or the status of recipients changes, etc.

Art Bank

CAC/P-PU-035
Purchase of Art Works from Artists Case Files

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of applications to the art bank for the purchase of art works from individual artists. It contains case files, including letters of application from individual artists, correspondence to and from artists, invoices, biographical data, and jury decisions. It is used to keep records on each application by artists for purchase of their work, to ensure payment is made for each work purchased, and to accumulate information on all works purchased from one artist. Files are kept permanently for successful applications. Files on unsuccessful applicants are retained at the Council for three years, after which they are destroyed.

CAC/P-PU-040
Art Bank Labels

These labels are affixed to art works to identify the work. They contain the name of artist, birthdate and place, title, medium, date of creation, and accession number. They are used for identification purposes and are kept for as long as the work is in the art bank collection.

CAC/P-PU-045
Installation of Art Work Files

The purpose of this bank is to collect descriptive data on works purchased, especially on how works should be installed. It contains diagrams, supplied by artists or their dealers, giving details on installation of art works and forms giving details on installation of art works and describing works purchased. It is used to identify works and assist with their installation. Records are kept permanently.

CAC/P-PU-050
Biographical Files

The purpose of this bank is to collect biographical information on artists, including biographies sent by artists or their dealers, invitations to exhibition openings, newspaper clippings, etc. It is used as research information by staff and the public. Records are kept permanently.

CAC/P-PU-055
Accession Cards

The purpose of this bank is to keep track of all works in the art bank collection as well as containing some basic information on the artists. It contains such data on purchased works as title, medium, size, signature on work, date of creation, jury members, date of purchase, history of location, of work, and rental fee. In addition, this bank contains basic information on the artist such as birthdate and place, citizenship, his/her dealer and place of residence when work was purchased. It is used to keep records of all works purchased by the art bank as well as their current location. In addition, it is used to provide statistical information on art works and artists represented in the art bank collection and to compile information for the art bank catalogue. Records are kept permanently.

CAC/P-PU-060
Art Bank Catalogue

This bank is used to list all works purchased for the art bank collection. It lists all works in the collection giving information on the artists, birthdate and place, title of work, medium, size and accession number. It is used for research purposes by the art bank and the general public. Records are updated on a yearly basis to account for changes in the collection. It is reproduced bi-annually.

CAC/P-PU-065
Damaged/Lost Works

The purpose of this bank is to document lost or damaged art bank works. It contains condition reports, correspondence with clients, conservators, insurance adjusters, etc, invoices, and copies of cheques. It is used to keep track of damaged works, restoration procedures, costs and payment and where works were lost or stolen. Records are kept permanently.

CAC/P-PU-070
Repurchase Program

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of artists' requests to repurchase works of art originally sold to the art bank. Financial transactions are also recorded in these files. It contains letters of application from artists or their dealers, details of repurchase costs, invoices, correspondence to artists informing them of the art bank decision and copies of cheques. The bank contains records on the repurchase program and the number of works each artist has requested for repurchase. Records are kept permanently.

CAC/P-PU-075
Application for Employment Search File

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of applications made directly to the art bank (outside of regular Canada Council competitions). It contains applications from prospective employees and generally includes resumés, covering letters with addresses, etc. After initial sorting, copies of applications are transferred to the personnel section of Canada Council in case suitable positions arise. Copies of applications are maintained at the art bank for three years, after which they are destroyed.

CAC/P-PU-080
The Canadian Painters and Canadian Sculpture Slide Sets

The purpose of this bank is to maintain slide sets of Canadian contemporary art work for sale to the public. Short biographies of the artists involved and descriptions of their works are included in order to identify the slides. The slides are for sale to the general public although the majority of buyers include libraries, universities, and art galleries. Slides are kept until all sets are sold.

Associate Director's Office

CAC/P-PU-085
Assessors Book

This information bank contains lists of names of individuals who are recognized as experts in the various arts disciplines. It is compiled by the advisory arts panel secretariat, which reports to the associate director. Each disciplinary section, together with the Arts Awards Service, draws up a list of experts in its particular field. After the lists are approved by the disciplinary subcommittees of the advisory arts panel, the secretariat compiles them into the Assessors Book. For each individual, the lists give a name, address, phone number and discipline. This information is organized alphabetically by name, within discipline. It is used exclusively by Council officers when selecting juries and individual assessors to adjudicate or advise on grant applications. The lists are used for no other purpose. They are updated periodically (once a year, or once every second year) and are maintained indefinitely.

Personnel Section

CAC/P-PU-090
Applications for Employment

The bank is used to maintain an inventory of applications received from individuals seeking employment with the Canada Council. Records include both applications solicited for specific competitions and unsolicited applications. It includes covering letters, career résumés, letters of recommendation, and acknowledgement of applications. Résumés normally provide individual's name, social insurance number, address, personal characteristics, employment history, education, and other personal information. In the absence of a résumé, applicants submit a Public Service of Canada application for employment. Applications are used to assist in filling available positions. Both solicited and unsolicited applications are kept for one year.

Canadian Commission for UNESCO

CAC/P-PU-095
UNESCO Mailing List

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of individuals to whom UNESCO publications, including reports, press releases, and the minutes of meetings may be sent. It contains addresses which normally include name, address, telephone number and codes identifying disciplines of interest such as general education, adult education, natural sciences, social sciences, culture, communications, etc. It is used to identify individuals to whom UNESCO-related documents can be sent. Information is held permanently, or until the client wishes to be removed from the list.

CAC/P-PU-100
Biographies

The purpose of the bank is to maintain a bank of selected biographical material on individuals who may be suited to serving UNESCO in some capacity (e.g. at international conferences or on related bodies). Most of the biographical material is obtained from suitable individuals applying for employment. In addition, UNESCO assembles biographies on its own or commissions biographies. Each file normally contains an individual's name, address, work history, educational background and date of birth. This bank is rarely utilized; occasionally the information is used to assist in choosing persons to participate in UNESCO-related activities, such as international meetings, or to aid in the election of members to the UNESCO executive committee. The bank also provides addresses for the UNESCO mailing list. Records are kept permanently, or until the client wishes to be removed from the list.

CAC/P-PU-105
National Commission Grants Case Files

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of the application and assessment of associations or individuals applying for travel and/or project assistance under the National Commission Grants Program. This bank contains application letters, supporting data presented by the applicant, the project proposal, financial data, the decision of the Commission, and in the case of a funded project, financial and administrative data. It is used to maintain a record of the application and assessment of associations or individuals applying for travel and/or project assistance. Records are retained permanently.

CAC/P-PU-110
Applications for Employment

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of applications from individuals for employment with UNESCO in Paris and elsewhere abroad (i.e. positions other than with the secretariat of the Canadian Commission). The bank contains names, addresses and requests. Applications including résumé, covering letter, etc. are forwarded to the relevant office or body. Only a copy of the covering letters which normally accompany applications are retained. These copies are retained solely for record tracing purposes. Records are retained for five years, after which they are destroyed.

STANDARD BANKS

CAC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CAC/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

CAC/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

CAC/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

CAC/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

CAC/P-SE-906

Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

CAC/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health. The information is used to support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions. The period of retention of the records is five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

CAC/P-SE-910

Grievances

This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Boards the records are destroyed.

CAC/P-SE-911

Discipline

This bank contains notices of disciplinary action and correspondence about employee misconduct; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigations of possible misconduct and analysis reports of these investigations. It is important to note that notices of disciplinary action may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information used in disciplinary actions in government institutions and to determine the need for and nature of disciplinary actions. The information is used to support decisions on pay and benefits; attendance and leave; transfer, demotion and termination of employment. The period of retention for correspondence regarding investigations, testimony by witnesses and legal opinions is five years for cases where employee was found guilty of misconduct and three years for cases where employee was found not guilty. For notices of disciplinary action, including notices attached to the Employee Personnel Record, the time limit is that specified in applicable collective agreements or, where no such agreement exists, three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed.

CAC/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

CAC/P-SE-913

Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

CAC/P-SE-914

Parking

This bank contains permit applications and correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on government-owned or leased property. Records for deductions for payment of parking fees are included in the Pay and Benefits Bank while records of parking violations are maintained by the RCMP. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information for the administration of parking privileges. The information is used to issue parking permits. Records are destroyed two years after the permit expires.

CANADA DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

Chapter 7

CANADA DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

Background

The Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation was established in 1967 by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation Act. The Corporation's primary role is to provide, for the benefit of persons having deposits in a bank, trust or loan company, insurance against the loss of all or part of their deposits to a maximum of $60 000 in the event of the failure of the member institution concerned. The definition of "deposit" may be summarized as moneys received by a member institution which it is obligated to repay on demand, or on a fixed or determinable date that is within five years from the date of the deposit. Deposits not payable in Canada or repayable in foreign currency are not insured. In the furtherance of its main function, the Corporation may, amongst other powers, acquire assets from, or make or guarantee loans to, or deposits with a member institution for the purpose of averting or reducing a threatened loss to the Corporation.

Organization

The affairs of the Corporation are administered by the Board of Directors which presently consists of the Chairman who is appointed by the Governor in Council, and four directors who hold the offices of Governor of the Bank of Canada, Deputy Minister of Finance, Superintendent of Insurance and Inspector General of Banks. Legislation presently before Parliament will, if passed, provide for the addition of four members to be appointed by the Governor in Council. The Corporation reports to Parliament through the Minister of Finance.

CANADA EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION COMMISSION AND DEPARTMENT OF EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION

Chapter 8

CANADA EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION COMMISSION AND DEPARTMENT OF EMPLOYMENT AND IMMIGRATION

Background

The Employment and Immigration Reorganization Act, passed in 1977, created the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission (EIC) by integrating the former Unemployment Insurance Commission and the former Department of Manpower and Immigration. The legislation also created the Department of Employment and Immigration, which provides services to the Commission and the Minister.

Overall Responsibilities

The specific federal mandate assigned to the Minister of Employment and Immigration under this Act encompasses all matters not assigned by law to other departments, branches or agencies of government, relating to the development and utilization of labour market resources in Canada, employment services, unemployment insurance, and immigration.

Two major objectives dominate the work of the Commission/Department: to realize the full productive potential of Canada's human resources, while supporting the initiatives of individuals to pursue their economic needs and, more generally, their self-fulfilment through work; and to administer the admission of immigrants and non-immigrants in accordance with the economic, social and cultural interests of Canada.

Organization

The Commission/Department's National Headquarters is made up of nine major groups. Of these, four are directly concerned with services to the public, and collect, generate and use the bulk of personal information on clients.

Employment Services Group

This group develops and disseminates policies, guidelines and procedures for the delivery of employment services to regional and field offices. It also provides programs, services and information to workers, employers, industries and other designated persons or groups, in order to promote the efficient functioning of the Canadian labour market. The group also develops and promulgates policies, guidelines and procedures to meet the needs of particular client groups such as women, natives, youth, disabled persons, visible minorities and other individuals who are considered disadvantaged. Other responsibilities include the monitoring and analysis of all such services offered by EIC, and responding to ministerial enquiries.

Insurance Group

This group develops and executes legislation, policies, programs and systems with respect to benefit payments and control of payments according to the Unemployment Insurance Act, 1971, administered by the Commission, including regular unemployment insurance benefits, benefits paid to claimants referred to approved training, benefits paid to claimants in approved work sharing and job creation projects, and labour adjustment benefits. The group represents the Commission in submitting or contesting appeals with respect to decisions concerning such benefits. It is also responsible for the development of financial parameters under the Unemployment Insurance Act as well as for policy development with respect to the Social Insurance Number Program, the Canadian Government Annuities Program and the Unemployment Insurance Premiun Reduction Program.

Canadian Jobs Strategy

This group designs and administers programs to improve employment opportunities in the Canadian labour market. Programs — either operated directly by the group or purchased from provincial governments through negotiated agreement — deal with skills training; apprenticeship courses; technical or financial assistance; community-based employment incentives; and job creation schemes for student, adult, community or disadvantaged workers.

The Canadian Jobs Strategy announced at the First Ministers Conference in February 1985 is founded on five basic principles which are: training and job creation that is economic in orientation with emphasis on small business and support entrepreneurship; programming that is innovative, flexible and responsive to regional and local needs; a recognition that responsibility for training and employment development has to be shared between governments and the private sector; a commitment to equality of access to training and employment development programs; programs that are simple, understandable and avoid wasteful duplication.

These principles take shape through six major new thrusts which are the cornerstone of federal policy for job creation and training: Skill Investment — to enable workers to obtain new skills in response to changing technology; Job Entry — to help young people and women enter the labour market successfully; Job Development — to provide those unemployed for a long time with new opportunities in the labour market, and with private sector support whenever possible; Skill Shortages — to encourage training in areas of critical occupational shortages, when these exist; Community Futures — to extend new opportunities to workers in declining communities through community action, training and mobility; and Innovations — to stimulate innovation, pilot programs, and experimentation by the private sector, the provinces and their educational institutions.

Targets and means of monitoring are established to ensure the equitable participation by women in all labour market programs. There also are special approaches tailored to the needs of individuals with employment disadvantages, and to the special needs of Canada's aboriginal peoples.

Immigration Group

This group is responsible for the development, implementation and assessment of immigration policies and services. Its activities include the recruitment and selection of immigrants and the regulation of the entry of refugees, temporary workers, foreign students and visitors to Canada. (Responsibility for processing applications from prospective immigrants and for issuing various types of visas resides with employees of External Affairs posts abroad when the request is initiated outside Canada.) Other responsibilities include assisting Canadian residents on their return to Canada and assisting with the adaptation of recently arrived immigrants. The work of the group also encompasses the exclusion, control or expulsion of persons whose admission or stay in Canada is prohibited by law.

The activities of the above groups are supported by the five remaining groups.

Public Affairs Group

This group is responsible for all information activities to promote EIC's objectives, and for all media relations.

Strategic Policy and Planning Group

This group has broad responsibility for developing and maintaining statistical information banks which may be used for research, evaluation, policy and program analysis, and development in support of the various EIC programs and services. The data are frequently extracted from the personal information banks described in the previous sections and they may be supplemented by questionnaires, surveys or other research tools. These data may be of interest to several groups within EIC.

Systems and Procedures Group

This group is responsible for the development and operation of the manual and electronic data processing systems required to execute EIC's programs.

National Services

National Services is responsible for the administration of the Social Insurance Number, the Canadian Government Annuities and the Unemployment Insurance Premium Reduction programs.

Finance and Administration

This branch provides financial and administrative management services to EIC. In addition, an Executive Secretariat co-ordinates and provides direction and support for a wide range of corporate activities with organizational lines, including the administration of human rights, Privacy and Access to Information legislation, federal-provincial and international relations, emergency planning and security.

Regional Organization

EIC maintains an extensive field organization, comprising some 900 local and district offices across Canada, which is divided into 10 regions, corresponding to the provinces (with the Yukon and Northwest Territories included in the British Columbia and Alberta regions, respectively). Canada Immigration Centres deliver the programs of the Immigration Group, and Canada Employment Centres deliver the programs of the Employment Services, Insurance, and Canadian Jobs Strategy Groups. Local activities are directed by a regional office in each province.

Electronic Data Processing (EDP) Systems

The Employment Services Group uses integrated clerical, manual and EDP systems to deliver its programs and services. The following systems support the various Employment Services programs. These systems may support several of the information banks already described; the numbers of the corresponding banks are given in all instances.

- Employment Systems — Employment Client Services (EDP-1): this system supports the administration of Employment Client Services and may contain information relating to the Canadian Mobility Program; Canadian Classification and Dictionary of Occupations; Client/Claimant Index; and the National Job Bank. Information is held on magnetic tape/disk. (EIC/P-PU-015)

- Information Systems — Advanced Systems (EDP-2): this system uses data from the above bank to make client data available via computer terminals located in local and regional offices and to run the Metropolitan Order Processing System (MOPS). MOPS provides, via computer terminals in selected Canada Employment Centres, data on jobs available, employers, job seekers, referrals to employment and related data. Information is held on magnetic tape/disk. (EIC/P-PU-020)

Information in the bank may include the individual's name, address, social insurance number, telephone number, demographic data, number of dependants, education, pre-training labour force status and occupation, situation following the course, training course information and related financial transactions. Records may contain course test results and termination or discontinuation notices. Individuals requesting access should state the Canada Employment Centre (CEC) where last registered and the appropriate name of the training institution. This personal information relates to registered clients in a CEC who undergo institutional training. The purpose of this bank is to document trainees for institutional training and related income support and to monitor their participation in the training program. As consistent uses, some provincial educational institutions receive this information for purposes of administering training programs. This information is partially duplicated in computerized form for use in monitoring and control, and for statistical and information purposes. The information is shared with the Department of Supply and Services which issues the training allowance cheques. The bank is also shared with other federal, provincial and municipal social agencies such as Health and Welfare, Veterans Affairs and social welfare and education departments, for the co-ordination of services to clients. As well, the RCMP uses the information for investigation of offences against the Unemployment Insurance Act, and Revenue Canada/Taxation uses it for cross-audit purposes. Records at the CEC are discarded two years after training.

Records in this bank contain application data on project sponsors and those representing sponsoring organizations, and details of all project proposals. It contains correspondence relating to the programs, the various projects and individuals involved. It also contains curricula vitae of directors and board members of LEDA corporations. Participant Record Forms, if used, contain personal data such as the name, address, social insurance number, income, employment status, salary, etc. Individuals seeking access to personal information on this file must supply the project name, number and location and if possible, the name of the sponsor or sponsoring organizations. This personal information relates to project sponsors, those representing sponsoring organizations, directors and board members of LEDA corporations, and project participants. This bank was used for the administration of funding for the Local Employment Assistance Program (LEAP), the Local Economic Development Assistance Program (LEDA) and the Canada Community Services Projects (CCSP). The Local Employment Assistance Program created employment opportunities for those who, despite normal opportunities in the labour market, remained unemployed. The Local Economic Development Assistance Program was introduced in 1980 to assist in the development of continuing private sector jobs in rural and semi-rural areas with populations of less than 50,000 and with potential for increased business activity. Canada Community Services Projects were introduced in the fall of 1980 to create long-term jobs for unemployed persons through non-profit organizations, with a potential funding capacity of up to three years. The main use of this bank is to determine whether projects were eligible for funds and whether they were approved. Consistent uses are that information on project participants is supplied voluntarily by employees and may be used by Employment and Immigration Canada for administrative and statistical program evaluation purposes. Other uses may include sharing selected information from this bank with federal, provincial and municipal social agencies (such as Health and Welfare, Veterans Affairs, Indian Affairs, Workers' Compensation Boards and welfare and educational departments) for co-ordination of services to clients; with other provincial departments for comments on project proposals; with RCMP in cases of fraud investigation and with Revenue Canada/Taxation for cross-audit purposes. Individuals seeking access to this file must provide the agreement number, and, if possible, the name and location of the employer. This personal information relates to employers (private sector, municipalities, non-profit organizations) of students and returning students themselves. This initiative provides returning students with summer jobs that will be career-related or offer a practical work experience. This bank is used for the administration of employment development funding for the Challenge '85 Program. As consistent uses, information on participants may be used for administrative, statistical, internal audit purposes and program evaluation. The information may also be shared with federal, provincial and municipal social and educational agencies to better co-ordinate services to clients; with the RCMP in cases of fraud investigation and also with Revenue Canada/Taxation for cross-audit purposes. The greater portion of the information is stored on computer at national headquarters, while some other portions are kept on manual systems in the regions.

Refugee Claim Tracking System

Manager
Canada Immigration Centre
Employment and Immigration Canada (consult telephone directory for address)

This bank contains some or all of the following information: name, date of birth, citizenship, country of last permanent residence, sex, details of enforcement action taken, passports/travel documents, marital status, dates for the various stages of the refugee determination process and the decisions of the Minister's Delegate and the Special Review Committee. This system records information on persons who during the course of the inquiry stage of the enforcement process have made claims that they are Convention Refugees. The system also records information on persons in Canada with Valid Visitor Status who have requested that they be considered as Convention Refugees. The short-term purpose of this bank is to establish the extent of the refugee claims backlog. The long-range purposes are to maintain a record of the processing stages to establish where backlogs are likely to occur in the future and to provide information on persons who make refugee claims and their progress through the refugee claim process. The information in this bank may be used by headquarters staff of EIC, the Refugee Status Advisory Committee, Canada Immigration Centres, the Special Review Committee, the Immigration Appeal Board, and the federal courts. It also may be used for internal audit purposes. Manual records are retained at Canada Immigration Centres for up to five years. Magnetic tape and microfilm records are maintained indefinitely at Headquarters in Ottawa. Persons seeking access to this information must supply their name, date of birth, and the approximate date on which the refugee claim was made.

Electronic Data Processing (EDP) Systems

The Immigration Group uses an integrated clerical, manual and EDP system to deliver its programs and services. The following sub-systems support the various immigration programs and services. These sub-systems may support several of the information banks aready described; the numbers of the corresponding banks are given in all instances. All sub-systems are linked to each other, either by a full computer connection (interface), or by information enabling a physical check of the systems. Therefore, actions in one sub-system can and do effect the smooth running of others. Approximately 25 separate immigration forms, with a total volume of 1,000,000 documents, are processed through these sub-systems each year.

- Immigration Data System Overseas (IDSO) (EDP-1); Immigration Data System Canada (IDSC) (EDP-2): IDSO and IDSC maintain a record of all applications for permanent resident status either at an overseas office or from within Canada. The systems produce information in support of the recruitment and selection function. The data is case-oriented and can only be accessed by providing the case serial number recorded on the landing record. Files, including microfilm records, date back to 1975. Records are kept indefinitely. There are approximately 1,000,000 records on file. (EIC/P-PU-225)

- Landed Immigrant Data System (EDP-3): the Landed Immigrant Data System retains a permanent record of the granting of permanent residence to individuals. Its main purpose is to create an official name index which is used by immigration officers in Canada and abroad to verify an individual's status in Canada as well as legal proof of residence for citizenship, Old Age Security, Family Allowance, welfare, etc. In addition, information from the system is the sole source for all Commission reports on permanent residents. (EIC/P-PU-230)

- Visitor Data System (EDP-4): the Visitor Data System retains a permanent record of all persons who have been granted permission to enter or remain in Canada for a temporary period either as a visitor, student, temporary worker or permit holder. Its main purpose is to create an official name index which is used by immigration officers in Canada to verify an individual's status in Canada. In addition, information from this system is the sole source for all Commission reports on visitors and Minister's permit holders. Data to produce the annual report to Parliament on Minister's permits is retained in this system. (EIC/P-PU-285; 290; 295; 300)

- Enforcement Information Index (EII) (EDP-5): (See EIC/P-PU-265 for details.)

- Enforcement Data System (EDS) (EDP-6): (See EIC/P-PU-270 for details.)

- Field Operational Support System (FOSS) (EDP-7): FOSS is designed to extract relevant information from other Immigration sub-systems in order to allow status checks by field offices via computer terminal or microfiche. It is the basic support of the enforcement function. The feeder systems are: Enforcement Information Index (EII); Enforcement Data System (EDS), the Landed Immigrant Data System, and Visitor Data System (VIDS). The integrity of FOSS is dependent upon the other sub-systems. FOSS output is available through an on-line terminal system in Canada. A set of microfiche containing EDS and EII cases is also distributed in Canada and abroad. (EIC/P-PU-270)

Program Evaluation Barnch

This file contains information from various surveys done as part of the unemployment insurance program evaluation activities. The information covers situtations that precede or follow the use of the program. Workers, the unemployed and unemployment insurance claimants must provide identification and their social insurance number to obtain access to these files. Employers and insurance companies must provide identification and their RC/T account number. This file contains information gathered from workers, unemployed people and unemployment insurance claimants. It also contains information gathered from various participants involved in the program such as employers, insurance companies, doctors, members of Boards of Referees and Commission employees. The use of this file helps to determine the effectiveness and efficiency of the unemployment insurance program, whether or not its objectives are being attained and its effects on clients. It also provides information about the behaviour, expectations and perceptions of users and participants involved in the program. Where necessary, this information is compared with information from groups that are not involved. No other research use is planned. The information may be used for internal audit purposes. The questionnaires are kept one year after publication of the evaluation report. The data on tapes are kept for three years after publication of the evaluation report.

Policy and Program Development Immigration
Employment and Immigration Canada
Place du Portage, Phase IV
Hull, Québec
K1A 0J9

The information collected by telephone includes the following subjects: the place of permanent residence; the size and type of household; the relation with the sponsor; the main help received from the sponsor; the status of the sponsor's permanent residency in Canada; the number of persons who have been and who may be sponsored; school attendance and training; the type of course; the registration time and whether the course was arranged by a Canada Employment Centre; the outcome of the course; knowledge of French and English; activity status; self-employment; the relation with employer; the number of simultaneous jobs; type of work (full-time, part-time) and the main reason; occupation; industry; work status and usual occupation in last country of permanent residency; labour force activity status during last year; the level of earnings from employment and total income; geographical mobility and main reason; uses of Canada Employment Centres and settlement services proposed by immigrant. The data collected on the above subjects were merged with corresponding administrative data (date of landing in Canada, age, sex, country of last permanent residence, marital status, family situation; mother tongue, place of destination in Canada, intended occupation in Canada, education and knowledge of official languages) taken from the "Immigration Visa and Record of Landing" application form stored in the Landed Immigrant Data System of Employment and Immigration Canada. This personal information relates to family class immigrants, aged 18 to 64 years, landed in Canada during the period of April 1981 to March 1984 who had the intention of settling in the metropolitan areas of Montréal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver. The survey is carried out with the purpose of establishing a better data source and therewith reporting certain aspects of the settlement and integration experience of family class immigrants in Canada. Part of the data could be included in the "Annual Report on Future Immigration Levels" presented to Parliament. This improved data bank will be used for planning and administration by identifying priority areas where a policy or a program could be beneficial. The information may be used for internal audit purposes. The data will be kept on the files of Employment and Immigration Canada for use during the years following fiscal year 1985-86.

Description: This bank is created from copies of individual Record of Employment forms, received by the Department of Employment and Immigration's head office from employers. Each record may contain employee's name, address, social insurance number and occupation; employers' name, address and RC/T number; data pertaining to the length of employment, date and reason for separation, expected date of recall, and insurable weeks and earnings of the employee. All requests for access must contain the period of employment covered by the record of employment.
Class of Individuals: Unemployment insurance claimants as well as those people who changed jobs but did not claim unemployment insurance benefits.
Purpose: This bank is used in the administration and enforcement of the Unemployment Insurance Act.
Consistent Uses: The information may be used by the Department of Employment and Immigration for statistical, planning and internal audit purposes and may be shared with other federal or provincial departments, subject to formal agreement, for research, planning, evaluation and administrative purposes. It may also be released to the issuing employer in exceptional circumstances. Releases of information are subject to the provisions of Section 114 of the Unemployment Insurance Act.
Class of Individuals: Files are retained for four years.

Information in the individual records includes the applicant's first name, middle name, and surname, date of birth, surname at birth, other surnames formerly used, sex, whether the applicant is a twin, place of birth, father's full name, mother's maiden name; it also shows the social insurance number (SIN) issued or re-issued, marital status, status in Canada, telephone number, mailing address, and may include the name and address of the employer. The microfilm image also shows the date of application and witnesses when required. The SIN program provides for the control and issuance of SINs to Canadian citizens, permanent residents, individuals who are neither Canadian citizens nor permanent residents, and for the confirmation of SIN information for certain government departments. This bank contains a microfilm image of each approved application for issuance of a social insurance number, for issuance of a replacement social insurance number card, or for amendment of social insurance register records. This information is collected for use in the administration of the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Canada Pension Plan Act and the Old Age Security Act; It is therefore accessible to the federal government officials whose responsibilities lie in those program areas. It may also be used for internal audit purposes. Exchange of information with Revenue Canada/Taxation and other federal departments is also provided for, both under the Canada Pension Plan Act, under the Health and Welfare's Family Allowance Act, and under the Unemployment Insurance Act. Similarly, special social insurance numbers are issued for immigration and other purposes to persons who are neither Canadian citizens nor permanent residents pursuant to the Unemployment Insurance Regulations in conjunction with the Immigration Act. Therefore, information on the Social Insurance Number Register is exchangeable with EIC officials administering the immigration program. Section 126(4) of the Unemployment Insurance Act provides for the use of Social Insurance Register data for the accurate identification of individuals and for the effective use by such individuals of their social insurance cards and numbers. On this basis, the Central Index will, If an authorized enquirer presents data about a SIN holder sufficient to identify that holder on the Social Insurance Registers, divulge the holder's SIN to the enquirer. This is known as "give the SIN" and is extended to employers including some federal and provincial departments. This service is also extended to other government departments, and to organizations in other levels of governments, where the Commission has approved such an exchange with the enquiring organization. Examples are: Department of National Defence (the social insurance number is used as a service number by armed services personnel), Department of Veterans Affairs, Prince Edward Island Medical Care Plan (administration of Health Insurance Plan), Régie des rentes du Québec (administration of the Québec Pension Plan), and Régie de l'assurance-maladie du Québec (administration of the Québec Health Insurance Plan). Moreover, an employer or former employer who has lost contact with an employee and who needs his/her SIN to meet legal requirements, can obtain it through the Central Index. The RCMP may request data from the bank when they are required for the purposes of investigations under the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Canada Pension Plan Act, Family Allowance Act, the Income Tax Act, and the Old Age Security Act. Data may also be released to the RCMP to assist the Force to identify deceased persons and to inform their next of kin, of death would otherwise make such identification and notification difficult. Finally, the RCMP may request the identity of the person whose social insurance number appears inscribed upon an item of property believed stolen, where it appears that the owner intended his/her SIN to be used this way. The RCMP may also request information from the Social Insurance Registers for the purposes of accurate identification of individuals. Other police forces may request similar information, but only through the RCMP. Data are retained for an indefinite period. All requests for access by individuals must include name, social insurance number, place and date of birth of the individual and mother's maiden name and be accompanied by the same documentary proof of identify required in submitting an original application for a social insurance number. Particulars of the documentary evidence required can be obtained by contacting any local office of the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission.

The purpose of the bank is to administer annuity contracts entered into by employers and individuals. The information is shared for administrative purposes with the departments of Veterans Affairs Canada, National Health and Welfare, and Supply and Services. It also may be used for internal audit purposes. The information is also shared with the Department of National Revenue (Taxation) and provincial taxation services, these being uses authorized by law. Some of these agencies and others use the information for statistical purposes. Files are retained until all benefits from the annuities are paid.

Electronic Data Processing (EDP) Systems

National Services uses integrated clerical, manual and electronic data processing systems to deliver EIC's services. The following systems support the administration of the social insurance number program and the Canadian Government Annuities program, which are administered by the group, as well as the Record of Employment (third copy) program.

- Information Systems — Social Insurance Number Registration (EDP-1): these systems support the administration of the social insurance number (SIN) program by maintaining a database of all SINs issued in Canada which is used to validate SIN data, produce reports and micrographics. Information is held on magnetic tape. (EIC/P-PU-390)
- Information Systems — Annuities (EDP-2): these systems support the administration of the Canadian Government Annuities Program, and are used to produce payments; T4 slips for annuity contracts in payment; related financial, actuarial and administrative reports; and a database for contracts not yet in payment. Information is held on magnetic tape. (EIC/P-PU-395)
- Insurance Systems — Control (EDP-3): these systems support the insurance control activities, by using information from the Record of Employment, Report on Hirings, Wage Loss Insurance Program and other EIC control systems to identify fraud and abuse of insurance programs. (EIC/P-PU-385)

EIC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus two years and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Affirmative Action Program

(See under Access Procedures for addresses of Regional Offices)
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible miniority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as then these identifiers are required to locate employee records. Within the CEIC, the classification "Affirmative Action" has been replaced by "Employment Equity — Personnel".
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information system) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

CANADA LABOUR RELATIONS BOARD

Chapter 9

CANADA LABOUR RELATIONS BOARD

Background

The original Canada Labour Relations Board (organized in 1948) was composed of members representing both management and labour appointed by the federal government to deal, on a part-time basis, with the orderly resolution of trade union representation disputes under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act.

The Canada Labour Relations Board was established in its present form in 1972 by the amended Canada Labour Code (R.S.C. 1970, CL-1 as amended by S.C. 1972, c.18) and became effective March 1, 1973. The Board is a quasi-judicial body with statutory and regulatory powers pertaining to the administration of Part V of the Canada Labour Code dealing with industrial relations. The members of the Board are non-representational full-time appointees with experience and knowledge of industrial relations and labour law. As members of a non-partisan board they are prohibited from holding any other remunerated office or employment.

In general, Part V of the Canada Labour Code charges the Board with a two-fold responsibility; that of granting, modifying and terminating bargaining rights, and that of resolving, through mediation or adjudication, complaints of unfair labour practice concerning violations of the Code by trade unions or employers.

The Board, under Part IV of the Code, hears appeals against safety rulings in cases where imminent danger has been alleged. It also rules on complaints by employees that they have been discriminated against or punished for exercising their rights in relation to safety.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

CLR/P-PU-005

Violations of the Canada Labour Code

Description: This bank contains case files concerning complaints by individuals that a section, or sections, of the Canada Labour Code, Parts IV and V have been violated by their employer, their union, or another individual. Files may contain information on grievances, work records, or letters from unions or employers containing opinions or comments about individuals.

Class of Individuals: Individuals who work for companies under federal jurisdiction, as set out in the Canada Labour Code.

Purpose: Information about individuals is obtained solely for the purpose of bringing about a settlement to the dispute or, failing settlement, for the purpose of adjudication by the Board on the merits of the complaint.

Consistent Uses: Information contained in case files, along with testimony given at public hearings may be published in written judgements which set out the Board's reasons for rejecting or upholding a complaint. Personal information is used solely for the purpose of settling or deciding on the merits of each case and is published solely for the purpose of explaining the Board's reasons for its decision and its policy in like cases.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Case files are kept for five years if successful and three years if unsuccessful, and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Settled cases are kept for the minimum two years required and then destroyed.

Termination of Bargaining Rights

Description: This bank contains case files concerning applications for revocation of certifications which grant bargaining agents (unions) the right to represent employees in collective bargaining with employers in the federal jurisdiction.

Class of Individuals: Individuals who work for companies under federal jurisdiction, as set out in the Canada Labour Code.

Purpose: Personal information is obtained solely for the purpose of determining whether an individual is a member of the bargaining unit and therefore entitled to express his support for or against his bargaining agent.

Consistent Uses: Applications for revocation may occasionally require a public hearing in order to determine complex issues which could affect the Board's decision and may result in the publication of a written judgement which will contain the facts surrounding the application and the Board's reasons for granting or rejecting it.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are kept for five years for successful applications and three years for unsuccessful applications, then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Cases which are withdrawn are destroyed after two years.

Classes of Personal Information

Other case files and subject files held by operational services may contain personal information such as names of individuals, addresses, position titles, job descriptions, salaries, and membership in a trade union. The information is not retrievable by personal identifiers and is collected solely for the purpose of administering the Canada Labour Code. All files are organized by file number and are maintained by operational services at headquarters in Ottawa. Regional offices retain duplicate files for the purposes of investigation until the settlement of a case.

No case files have been destroyed since 1973. A schedule for the retention and disposal of these files has not yet been approved.

Some personal information such as job descriptions and salaries may be published in written judgements where it is pertinent to the background of a case in which the Canada Labour Relations Board decides its decision requires formal elaboration. Such information is usually the result of testimony given at public hearings.

STANDARD BANKS

CLR/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Chapter 11

CANADA MORTGAGE AND HOUSING CORPORATION

Background

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) was incorporated as a Crown corporation in January, 1946, by an Act of Parliament. CMHC has authority to act for the Government of Canada in all matters prescribed under the Housing Acts, principally the National Housing Act (NHA).

CMHC reports to Parliament through a designated Minister. Its affairs are managed by a board of directors consisting of the chairman of the board, the President, a designated vice-president, five members from the public at large and two members from the public service, all appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Overall Responsibilities

The functions of CMHC, as stated in the National Housing Act, are to promote the construction of new houses, the repair and modernization of existing housing, and the improvement of housing and living conditions. Some of these programs have been used to further government objectives such as economic growth, job creation and energy conservation.

CHMC activities are grouped into three components: Government Programs, Administered Funds, and Asset Administration.

NHA Mortgage Backed Securities Program

This bank contains the files for the NHA Mortgage Backed Securities Program. Legislation was passed in 1984 and proclaimed in early 1985 to allow CMHC to guarantee timely payment of principal and interest relating to securities backed by mortgage loans it has insured. The files are maintained by the administrators of the program for a period of five years. This information relates to investors and lenders involved in the mortgage pool. The information was obtained to collect reference information on mortgages, mortgage backed securities, and monthly reports from CPTA (central payor and transfer agents). Files will be used to monitor the system. Consistent uses are the ongoing monitoring of the program, providing assistance as necessary, and approval of issuers application status. Records will be retained for a period of at least five years.

Classes of Personal Information

The National Housing Study

Formerly entitled the General Occupant Survey, the National Housing Study is a survey of homeowners, landlords and tenants in single detached and low rise multiple residential structures. The questionnaire will be mailed out for completion by the respondent. Information on physical condition, renovation history and plans, and socioeconomic characteristics of households will be collected. Follow-up physical inspections will be conducted by CMHC inspectors, for a subset of respondents who authorize such a visit. All name and address information of property owners and tenants authorizing these inspections will be separated from the dwelling unit data. It will be kept on computer tape files stored in the tape library at CMHC and kept for a maximum of two years. The substantive data on renovation activity, etc., from the questionnaires will also be stored and kept for an indefinite period to allow for future research by CMHC and other research establishments. The questionnaires will be kept for one year after the research report is written, and will then be destroyed.

The CHOSP Survey

The survey of Canadian Home Ownership Stimulation Plan (CHOSP) clients is entitled "Purchasing a Home: A Survey of Home Buyers". It is being conducted by the Program Evaluation Division in order to gather information about the success of the program, from the client's point of view. A mailout questionnaire will be distributed for completion by the respondent. It will request information on how the CHOSP money was spent, and whether the program made any difference to the client when deciding about buying a home. One version of the questionnaire is for new home buyers, while a second is for existing home buyers. All information will be stored and retained in the same manner as for the National Housing Study.

The CHRP Survey

The survey of Canada Home Renovation Plan (CHRP) recipients is entitled "Renovating a Home: A Survey of Home Renovators". It is intended to provide the Program Evaluation Division with information on how the CHRP forgivable loan was employed, experiences with contractors, house conditions, and socioeconomic characteristics of the recipient household. All information will be stored and retained in the same manner as for the National Housing Study.

Program Evaluation

This class of personal information contains data collected specifically for CMHC program evaluation studies. The data are used to support program evaluation, policy analysis and program development. Included in this bank are data related to client surveys, dwelling surveys, industry surveys and data collected to measure the impact of programs. This bank is located at CMHC national office. Routine files are destroyed two years following completion of evaluation. Files are retrievable by program evaluation study.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

CMH/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Records
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

CANADA PORTS CORPORATION

Chapter 12

CANADA PORTS CORPORATION

Background

Canada Ports Corporation was established in 1983 pursuant to the Canada Ports Corporation Act. This Act amended the National Harbours Board Act of 1936, the Government Harbours and Piers Act and the 1964 Harbour Commission Act. Reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Transport, Canada Ports Corporation is a Schedule C Part II Crown Corporation under the Financial Administration Act.

Since 1983, pursuant to the Canada Ports Corporation Act, the ports of St. John's, Halifax; Saint John, Québec; Montréal; Vancouver; and Prince Rupert have met the criteria of national and regional significance and financial viability and have been established as local port corporations. These too are Schedule C Part II Crown Corporations.

Non-corporate ports, which are directly administered by the Canada Ports Corporation, are located in Belledune, New Brunswick; Chicoutimi, Baie des Ha! Ha!, Sept-Îles and Trois-Rivières, Québec; Prescott and Port Colborne, Ontario; and, Churchill, Manitoba.

Overall Responsibilities

Canada Ports Corporation is responsible for administering its ports under a common objective and ensuring that they meet the federal government's responsibility for national ports and the optimum deployment of resources. Canada Ports Corporation shares, with other marine components, the broad objective of attending to the development and operation of a safe and efficient national marine transportation system.

Canada Ports Corporation is also responsible for ensuring that ongoing maintenance, upgrading and major expansions to port facilities and infrastructure will provide enhanced services to port users, on a competitive and cost-effective basis, both for domestic and international customers.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records disposal schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

STANDARD BANKS

CPO/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CANADA POST CORPORATION

Chapter 13

CANADA POST CORPORATION

Background

Canada Post Corporation, a Crown corporation, was established by the Canada Post Corporation Act on October 16, 1981. It collects, sorts and delivers almost 8 billion pieces of mail yearly within Canada, and between Canada and more than 165 other countries around the world.

Canada Post, with approximately 61 000 employees and $2.5 billion in revenue, is a large and important part of the transportation and communications sector of the Canadian economy. The Corporation delivers mail to 10 million homes and businesses across Canada, involving over 8 000 retail outlets located in more than 6 000 communities.

In the course of doing business, Canada Post maintains and uses records on employees, contractors, customers and others. The Corporation places a high value on the protection and propriety of such personal information; employee access to their records and customer confidentiality are longstanding traditions.

Access Procedures

Individuals may seek formal access to their records under the Privacy Act by completing and sending a personal information request form to the

Corporate Privacy Co-ordinator
Corporate Affairs and Audit
Canada Post Corporation
Sir Alexander Campbell Building
Confederation Heights
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0B1
Telephone: (613) 998-9742

Please note:

— There is one main file per Canada Post employee, the Employee Personal File (CPC/P-PE-802). It is a cumulative record of an individual's employment with Canada Post, including summaries and notations concerning more detailed records described in other information banks. While certain of these categories of records may be stored in part or in whole in the Employee Personal File, separate bank descriptions allow for distinct records systems, where necessary, as well as selective access by employees.

— Records contained within information banks are limited to relevant data subjects. For example, if an individual has never bid on nor been awarded a contract with Canada Post, no record of that individual would exist in the applicable contract bank.

— To facilitate access and record retrieval, specific details should be provided, such as those outlined in individual bank descriptions.

— If Canada Post exempts any information, the individual refused access is provided with the precise reasons for the exemption and the applicable appeal procedures.

— Records are routinely destroyed when their useful life expires; thus, access requests for older records may prove unsuccessful.

Individuals are encouraged to seek informal access to their records — employees via their supervisors, and customers, contractors and others via the Canada Post officials with whom they have been dealing.

Description: This bank contains such records as enquiries, complaints or claims, declarations (in the case of claims) and information relating to their processing. Certain information exists in automated form in the Customer Claims Information System (CCIS). Data elements include the names and addresses of the sender and addressee, the nature of the shortcoming (delay, loss, damage, the type and value of the item, any special services purchased (registration), dates of mailing and claim, insured amount, result of investigation and amount paid. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the date and subject matter of their previous enquiry, as well as the names and addresses of the sender and addressee on the article.
Class of Individuals: The bank contains records on customers who have submitted written enquiries or complaints to Customer Service regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail, postal rates, mail classification and regulations; or who have applied for indemnification. Generally, no records are kept of telephone enquiries. (Note that payment records also are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC/P-PU-060; that enquiries and complaints also are processed through the Corporate Correspondence system, CPC/P-PU-100; and that Risk Management Claims, CPC/P-PU-050, also includes claims records.)
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the preparation of responses to customer enquiries, as well as the resolution of complaints and claims regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail.
Consistent Uses: The records are used to analyze and resolve complaints and claims regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail; to respond to enquiries about mail services, regulations and rates; and for audit and market research purposes. Certain information may be disclosed to Transport Canada, Revenue Canada (Customs and Excise), foreign postal authorities, law enforcement agencies and others, where necessary, to solve the claim or enquiry.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for two years after last administrative use (which is normally the issue of a response to an enquirer or indemnification), and then destroyed. Disposal of payment records stored in Accounts Payable is governed by the retention schedule for that bank.

Classes of Personal Information

Administrative Records

Certain information provided by or about individuals may also be found in administrative records, such as general correspondence and organizational planning files, minutes of committee meetings, library load and distribution lists, fixed asset inventory control reports, audit reports and evaluations, video recordings and records relating to visits and conferences involving officials of other postal authorities.

Marketing and Sales

This class includes Postage Meter Services and marketing information such as market research studies, various coded mailing lists, market surveys and tests reports concerning householders and other Canada Post customers (for example, large volume mailers). The records include correspondence, reports, accounts of sales calls and other meetings with customers, which may contain the names, titles and business addresses of company representatives, as well as profiles of key executives. These records are used for business purposes only, namely to identify customer needs and perceptions and to help make marketing decisions related to product and service mix, price and promotion. Canada Post also temporarily retains certain records which may contain personal information under arrangements with customers and business partners. Such records are not under the Corporation's sole control and may not be accessed without the prior consent of the customer or business partner involved. Note also that claims and enquiries related to collection and delivery services have been indexed and described as a Canada Post information bank (see Customer Service, CPC/P-PU-030). Certain records are held in electronic form in the following systems — Cash Receipts, Money Order Information, Canadian Wildlife Service, Major Account Sales and Marketing Mailing List.

Collection and Delivery of Mail

This class includes copies of receipts given to customers for mail accepted at post office counters and other locations, redirection/hold mail request cards, delivery records for signature services (Registered Mail, Cash on Delivery Service, Certified Mail, Insured Mail with Proof of Delivery and Priority Post) and directories or lists of customers used to ensure the proper delivery of mail and the provisions of related services (e.g., Supermailbox Delivery, Letter Carrier Delivery, Group Mail Box and Rural Mail Box Delivery, Electronic Mail). These records facilitate signature mail services, the redirection and holding of mail, address corrections and the delivery of mail in areas not having well defined civic street and house numbering or where address changes are frequent. Note that address information may be disclosed to certain federal government and other institutions where authorized for specific purposes, such as to facilitate the collection of Crown debts and the making of Crown payments. Records consist normally of customer names and addresses held in hardcopy form at the individual postal delivery installations serving the customers. Certain records are held in electronic form in the following systems — Accounts Receivable, Lock and Key, Priority Post Information and Mail Shipment Reporting. This class of records also includes undeliverable mail, which is governed by the Undeliverable Mail Regulations. Mail is opened to facilitate delivery or return to sender. If neither action is possible, it is destroyed.

Security and Investigation Services

This class includes information detailing complaints received by Security and Investigation Services (S&IS) and the remedial action undertaken. The records are chronologically ordered and thus not retrievable by individual identifier. They include occurrence reports, which contain the name, address and phone number of the complainant, the names of the other parties involved, the name of the investigating officer and details concerning causes and remedial action. Should the enquiry result in a suspicion of a postal related crime or offence, or a Criminal Code offence involving the mail, a file number is added to the occurrence report which is transferred to personal information bank Postal Related Crimes/Offences (see CPC/P-PU-085, or CPC/P-PE-824). Otherwise, the occurrence reports are retained for two years, at which time they are destroyed. The purpose of such retention is to allow for statistical analyses and quality control.

CPC/P-PE-801
Staffing and Employment
Description: This bank contains such records as solicited and unsolicited job applications, acknowledgement of receipt letters, staffing action requests, job descriptions, salary ranges, selection profiles, competition posters, transfer requests, lay-off and priority lists, human resources inventory printouts, résumés of work experience and education, reference letters and checks, official languages knowledge examination papers, tests and results, lists of candidates, interview notes and rating board assessments, eligibility lists, offers of employment, notices to candidates of right to appeal, other appeal documents and related correspondence. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the competition number and date, if applicable, as well as position title and location.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records on individuals who apply for or are hired to fill temporary and permanent positions with Canada Post Corporation.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support internal staffing and external recruitment activities.

Consistent Uses: Job applications are screened when vacancies arise. Staffing records are used to provide impartial information to match new and vacant positions to the most qualified candidates (notations of staffing decisions may be stored in the Employee Personal File, CPC/P-PE-802; in Payroll and Attendance, CPC/P-PE-815; and in the Human Resource Information System, CPC/P-PE-804; to assist in succession planning and career development; to provide feedback to candidates regarding their applications and job interviews; and to process complaints and grievances concerning appointments and promotions (see Grievances, CPC/P-PE-813).

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use (which is usually the expiration of the appeal period for competitions), and then destroyed.

Employee Personal File

Description: This bank contains compensation and benefits and, where applicable, official languages, conflict of interest and disciplinary records, as well as summaries and notations regarding more detailed records described in certain other employee information banks. Compensation and benefits records include letters of offer and staffing transaction reports, rates of pay and entitlements, terms and conditions of employment for Management Professional Specialist (MPS) employees, year-to-date earnings statements and supporting documentation (for example, concerning income tax, unemployment and health insurance and Canada Pension Plan deductions, group surgical-medical insurance, public service management and disability insurance, union dues, maternity and displacement allowances, performance and acting pay, savings plan and deposit instructions, incentives, perquisites, bilingual bonuses, rebates, overpayments, records of fines and suspensions, garnishment and termination). Other supporting documentation includes copies of birth certificates, previous employment history, physicians' certificates associated with sick leave, marriage/separation/divorce papers, next of kin in case of emergency, powers of attorney and estate records such as the names of beneficiaries. Where applicable, the Employee Personal File also includes disclosure statements and other conflict of interest documents, notices of disciplinary action and related correspondence. Summaries of other employee records stored in the Employee Personal File include: Staffing and Employment (CPC/P-PE-801); Human Resource Information System (CPC/P-PE-804); Payroll and Attendance (CPC/P-PE-815); and, where applicable, Training (CPC/P-PE-805); Relocation (CPC/P-PE-816); Honours and Awards (CPC/P-PE-807); Automotive Services (CPC/P-PE-825); Security Clearances (CPC/P-PE-821); and Occupational Health and Safety (CPC/P-PE-808). Depending on the size and functions of the Canada Post office or facility, certain of the above categories of records may be stored in distinct records systems. Separate bank descriptions allow for distinct records systems, where necessary, and also facilitate selective access by employees to their files. The records are combined when the administrative need arises (for example, upon transfer or termination). Note that certain records on Canada Post employees are stored apart from the Employee Personal File as a matter of policy, for example, detailed occupational health and safety and security clearance information, as well as Grievances, Employee Assistance, Human Rights, Affirmative Action and Special Services (CPC-P-PE-813, 811, 809, 810 and 812, respectively); and that managers may retain indices and duplicate administrative records concerning staff over which they exercise line or functional control. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify position title and employment location and dates. Note that the above-identified bank descriptions covering specific categories of records facilitate more selective access.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records on all existing and recently terminated Canada Post employees.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the compensation and benefits function, to facilitate co-ordination among a variety of personnel functions, and to retain records of enduring value related to each.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to ensure appropriate salaries, deductions and contributions (see also Payroll and Attendance [CPC/P-PE-815]) and to provide authorized benefits and counselling related thereto; to support and authenticate decisions relating to appointments, transfers, awards, promotions, discipline, demotions and termination of employment; to facilitate and co-ordinate among certain personnel functions, namely compensation and benefits human resource planning and development, executive development, training, relocation, honours and awards, automotive services, occupational health and safety, and security clearances; for research purposes (e.g., salary and benefits level comparisons with other firms in the industry, career management, organization improvement, applied personnel research); and to verify employment. Certain information is disclosed to third parties, as detailed in the above-referenced personal information bank descriptions (notably Payroll and Attendance).

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are selectively retained for the duration of employment with Canada Post. (Notices of disciplinary action are retained in accordance with collective agreements and garnishment records are retained for two years after settlement and then destroyed. One year after termination of employment, records are transferred to National Archives of Canada and destroyed when the employee reaches the age of seventy; or two years after death (provided two years have elapsed since last administrative use). If the records are judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical/archival value, they are retained permanently.

Personnel Database (PDB)

Description: This computerized bank contains such information as first language, public service start date, Canada Post start date and years of Canada Post service, pensionable service base date and years of pensionable service, termination date and reason for leaving, employee type (indeterminate, term, full-time, part-time, etc.), title, classification and level, security level, length of work week, salary, organization in which employee works and location, bargaining unit designator, exclusion code, whether a curriculum vitae is on file, various elements of data concerning bilingual capability and the position held and its place in the organization. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide full name, social insurance number and employment location.

Class of Individuals: There are records on existing and recently terminated Canada Post employees.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support personnel administration.

Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to verify information and to facilitate supervisory tasks, as well as the mailing of Corporation surveys, publications and notices; for analysis of staffing complements and for other analytical purposes, such as organizational studies comparing positions and incumbents and the evaluation of employees eligible for early retirement or women in the work force; and to support other personnel functions, such as human resources planning and executive development, training and security clearances (see CPC/P-PE-804, 805 and 825, respectively). Limited information is provided to Great West Life Insurance Company for the purpose of validating employee benefit claims.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are updated continuously and the latest record on an employee is retained for three years after termination of employment. Source documents, namely change of address forms and copies of pay input and classification forms, are destroyed upon verification of the data entered. Output reports are retained until superseded (e.g., monthly, quarterly, annually) or obsolete, whichever occurs first.

Human Resource Information System (HRIS)

Description: This bank contains records relating to staffing, work performance, training, development, official languages and salary. It includes reports on staffing transactions, such as appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; previous employment history, such as career résumés and references; performance appraisals and assessments; career development forms; education and training records, such as transcripts, certificates and diplomas; periods of employment and other classifications such as geographical and organization location, position number, group level, title, salary, collective bargaining and official languages status. Certain information exists in automated form in the Human Resource Information System (HRIS). HRIS is an extension of the Personnel Data Base, CPC/P-PE-803; additional data include the requirements of the position vis-à-vis the employee's education, work experience, appraisal results, training and degree of mobility. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify position title and employment location and dates. Individuals seeking access to computerized records that may exist on them must so specify.

Class of Individuals: These are records on all employees and executives of Canada Post Corporation.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the efficient management and utilization of human resources.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to facilitate such human resource management and employee development functions as career management and internal staffing (for example, manpower inventory searches) and human resource development (for example, developmental assignments), as well as personnel applied research (for example, projecting attrition rates and making other labour supply and demand forecasts, and human rights and employment equity). The executive development records are also used for training and development, performance management and resource planning purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Performance appraisals and assessments are retained for ten years, subject to the provisions of collective agreements. Career résumés are retained until superseded or for ten years, whichever occurs first. One year after termination of employment, these records are transferred to National Archives of Canada and destroyed when the employee reaches the age of 70 or two years after death (provided two years have elapsed since last administrative use). If the records are judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical/archival value, they are retained permanently. Computerized records are updated as required (usually weekly) and retained for two years after termination of employment. An historical master file is maintained for 40 years, for statistical purposes only.

Training

Description: This bank contains such records as course applications, authorizations, registrations and evaluations, official languages declarations, examination results and certificates, copies of staffing actions, fee payment records and related correspondence. Information on file includes date hired, position occupied, first official language, work location, training requested, required or taken, dates of training and comments of trainers. Limited personal information exists in automated form, as a module of the Personnel Database (See CPC/P-PE-803). Portions of these data are retained in automated form (Training Management System), including tombstone data on and a record of training undertaken by employees. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify position title and employment location and dates, as well as types, locations and dates of training courses taken. Individuals seeking access to computerized training records that may exist on them must specify the system.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records of employees engaged in training programs or taking outside courses sponsored by Canada Post Corporation, such as in management, official languages, marketing and sales, equipment maintenance, encoding and quality control. (Note that vehicle driving training records are stored in Automotive Services, CPC/P-PE-825.)

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the training of employees.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to support the approval, registration, participation and evaluation of employees in training programs (including courses conducted by outside parties), and to certify their achievements (certain fee payment records are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC/P-PE-820; to help carry out needs assessments and prepare skill profiles of positions and their incumbents; to project training requirements, course schedules, instructor workloads and budgetary needs; to support decisions on succession planning, attendance and leave, payroll, entitlements and benefits, expense accounts, transfers, promotions and performance appraisals; and to respond to enquiries by employees, their supervisors and their bargaining agent. Participation, exemption and achievement records may be attached to the Employee Personal File (see CPC/P-PE-802), while information on employees' needs and achievements may be contained in Human Resource Information System (CPC/P-PE-804). Note that official languages and other training information on Canada Post employees is shared with and created by the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Most records (authorizations and tests in particular) are destroyed two years after completion of training. Permanent documents (including official language exemptions, language competence tests, certificates and course descriptions), as well as computerized records, are retained for two years after termination of employment. An historical master file is maintained for 10 years, for statistical purposes only.

Employee Involvement

Description: This bank contains such records as job descriptions, career résumés, reports on cost-saving measures, community services or other noteworthy achievements, the opinions of relevant third parties and recognition granted (including cash awards). Limited personal information also exists in computerized form in the Employee Involvement Program (E.I.P.) system. Data elements include name, SIN, suggestion number and subject. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the suggestion award number, date and location.

Class of Individuals: These are records on Canada Post employees who have submitted applications or been nominated for Corporation awards, such as suggestion awards, long service awards, merit awards, good citizenship awards and awards of excellence. (Note that safe driving awards are stored in Automotive Services, CPC/P-PE-825, and that payment records regarding awards also are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC/P-PE-820.)

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the Employee Involvement Program.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to promote, help identify and recognize the outstanding job performances or community services of Canada Post employees. (Notices regarding awards may be permanently attached to the Employee Personal File, CPC/P-PE-802, and/or to the Human Resource Information System, CPC/P-PE-804.) Lists of suggestions are distributed to managers for possible application in their respective areas of responsibilty. The computer system is used to control the processing of suggestions and the giving of awards, when appropriate. Limited personal information about award winners may be disclosed to the general public via poster displays, the news media and the Corporation's publications.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for three years and then destroyed.

Occupational Health and Safety

Description: This bank contains such records as first aid treatment and certification documents; physicians' certificates associated with sick leave; accident and work injury or illness investigation reports; workers' compensation board claims and associated correspondence and forms; occasional legal opinions; periodic medical reports for designated jobs and situations such as isolated postings and absenteeism; fitness and life style evaluations; special records concerning exposure to noise, radiation and dangerous substances; records and correspondence regarding referrals and results of work related immunizations and health evaluations. Certain non-occupational medical information may also exist on file, for example, regarding preplacement diseases or injuries, or those occurring since employment with Canada Post began that are unrelated to work. Certain records also exist in automated form, in the Accident Information Reporting System (AIRS). AIRS contains background data on injured employees (age, sex, etc.), as well as the location, nature, cause and severity of the accidents and their associated direct and indirect costs. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location as well as date, location and details of injury or illness. Individuals seeking access to any computerized occupational health and safety records that may exist on them must so specify.

Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees who have had injuries and accidents on duty; who have made accident or workers' compensation board claims; who have used the Occupational Health Service; or whose physicians have sent information to the Service. (Note that accident information involving Corporate vehicles or claims by or against the Corporation unrelated to workers' compensation boards is stored in Automotive Services, CPC/P-PE-825, and Risk Management Claims, CPC/P-PU-050; P-PE-819, respectively.)

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the management and the Occupational Health and Safety program.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to assist employees in dealing with medical problems and to avoid aggravating given conditions via meaningful intervention, medical education and counselling; to authorize leave and benefits related to work-related injuries and illnesses; to facilitate the processing of provincial workers' compensation board claims and the administration of injury-on-duty leave and disability benefits (AIRS supports the resolution of claims and the reconciliation of accounts); to establish conditions under which employees subject to certain occupational risks or with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work; to provide health and safety details for accident prevention and health protection purposes; and to process grievances and appeals related to Occupational Health and Safety (see Grievances, CPC/P-PE-813). The records also facilitate the study and correction of workplace conditions that contribute to illness or injury, such as the development of preventative programs based on the incidence of certain illness and injuries. Composite information may be used in epidemiological studies. Certain information may be disclosed to provincial workers' compensation boards, Labour Canada, medical practitioners and bargaining unit representatives, to facilitate claims administration. Limited information is disclosed to Transport Canada, regarding, for example, chemical spills involving Canada Post employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper records are retained for the duration of employment with Canada Post. One year after termination, they are transferred to National Archives of Canada and destroyed when the employee reaches the age of 70, or two years after death (provided two years have elapsed since last administrative use). Data in AIRS are retained for five years after last administrative use and then destroyed.

Human Rights

Description: This bank contains confidential letters of complaint and interview notes with complainants, those alleged to have discriminated against the complainant and witnesses, as well as investigation and analysis reports and records of decisions taken. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the name of the complainant and the location and date of the incident.

Class of Individuals: There are records on individuals submitting discrimation complaints and on those alleged to have discriminated against complainants.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the resolution of the allegations of discrimination based on prescribed grounds set out in the Canada Human Rights Act.

Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to help determine whether or not discrimination has occurred. (Note that records of complaints are not stored on the complainant's Employee Personal File, CPC/P-PE-802); and to recommend and support management decisions on the transfer and discipline of employees. Individuals found to have discriminated may have a notice to that effect placed on their Employee Personal File. Information may be disclosed in confidence to the Canadian Human Rights Commission, to facilitate resolution of complaint.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use, which is usually resolution of the complaint.

Affirmative Action

Description: This bank contains census data about employees including such characteristics as sex, race, disability and education. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide their social insurance number.

Class of Individuals: Employees who have responded to the workforce census questionnaire. (The questionnaire is answered on a voluntary basis; target groups include women, visible minorities, disabled persons and native groups.)

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to develop a database to support the Corporation's affirmative action program, to help ensure the equitable representation of target groups in Canada Post.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to compile profiles of employee groups and to compare the situation of designated group members with non-target group members within the Corporation and the general labour market. The statistical data is used to determine designated groups' representation by geographical location, salary and group within Canada Post and, where underrepresented, to identify appropriate policy and programs to rectify the situation.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper records are retained for three years after their use to compile reports to Parliament. A retention schedule for the electronic records is under development.

CPC/P-PE-811
Employee Assistance
Description: This bank contains a very limited amount of information as, due to the confidential nature of the program, cases are handled through personal counselling, without records. Where information is retained (with the full knowledge of the employee concerned), it is strictly factual, such as a statement of the problem as identified by the employee concerned and, if applicable, the name of the community resource which the employee selects for assistance. Note that, as a matter of policy, records on medical problems, performance deficiencies and absenteeism are not stored in the Employee Assistance bank (see CPC/P-PE-808, 804, and 815 respectively). Similarly, employee assistance information is not stored in any other personal information bank. Individuals seeking access to records that may exist on them in this bank are encouraged to deal directly with the person consulted for assistance. Individuals seeking formal access under the Privacy Act should specify position title, employment location and dates, as well as the referral agent used.
Class of Individuals: A case is initiated when an employee requests assistance from, or is referred to an employee assistance referral agent.
Purpose: Employee Assistance is a voluntary program for Canada Post employees experiencing personal problems that may be resolved through professional care.
Consistent Uses: Where information exists, it is used to support meaningful assistance and follow-up, such as counselling and, where the employee agrees, medical evaluations, professional help and rehabilitation programs; to assist in the development of preventative education and training programs, based on the incidence of certain problems; and for program evaluation purposes (for example, referral agents keep statistical summaries; all personal information is rendered anonymous). Note that referral agents do not diagnose cases and that no personal information is disclosed by referral agents to third parties without the expressed consent of the individual to whom it relates.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for two years following the date of the most recent referral to employee assistance and then destroyed.

Special Services
Description: This bank contains personal information compiled during the handling of sensitive personnel issues including assessments of the problem, alternative solutions, recommendations and the eventual decision, such as continuation, discipline, redeployment, demotion or separation.
Class of Individuals: The records contain confidential information on a small percentage of excluded Canada Post employees, namely those referred to Special Services because they are believed to be problem employees or because their positions have been declared redundant.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the provision of objective advice to senior management on sensitive cases involving excluded employees.
Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to ensure that referrals are handled legally, humanely and consistently. Notations of decision taken (without reasons) may be attached to the individual's Employee Personal File (CPC/P-PE-802).
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use (e.g., resolution of the issue), and then destroyed.

Grievances
Description: This bank contains such information as presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives, receipt notices and replies by management, testimony by witnesses, legal opinions, investigation and analysis reports, job descriptions (for classification grievances) and decisions and statements by arbitrators, the Canada Labour Relations Board and the Federal Court and related correspondence. Certain information exists in automated form, in the Labour Relations Grievance and Jurisprudence Information Systems (LRGIS and LRJIS, respectively). LRGIS contains such data as grievor name, the location, level and subject of the grievance, dates, and other information relating to its processing. LRJIS contains summaries of arbitration cases, such as grievor name and type of grievance, decision grounds and arbitrator's comments. Individuals seeking access to records in this bank should specify the name of the bargaining unit and the grievance/arbitration number or other particulars, such as date, location and subject matter. Individuals seeking access to any computerized grievance records that may exist on them must specify the system.
Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in issues submitted by certified bargaining units, or by Canada Post Corporation, who have alleged a violation of a collective agreement.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the resolution of grievances related to the interpretation of collective agreements.
Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to process and resolve collective agreement interpretation grievances through all levels in the grievance process, including referrals to divisional headquarters, corporate head office, arbitration, the Canada Labour Relations Board, or the Federal Court; for research purposes, such as trend and subject analyses; to inform senior management of landmark cases and of growing or recurring labour relations problems; and to train and educate Labour Relations officers. LRGIS facilitates the processing of grievances and generates reports used in collective bargaining. LRJIS provides management with ready access to arbitration summaries (which are largely a matter of public record).
Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper records are retained for two years after resolution and then destroyed, unless the case goes to arbitration, in which case the records are retained for five years. The electronic records are retained for three years after last administrative use, unless they are judged by the Dominion Archivist to have historical/archival value, in which case they are transferred to National Archives for permanent retention. If the records are judged to have jurisprudential value, publicly available summaries are retained (in LRJIS) until superseded or obsolete (e.g., newer decisions) or for 15 years, whichever occurs first.

Payroll and Attendance
Description: This bank contains such records as letters of authorization (for example, performance pay, bilingual bonus, acting pay, unemployment insurance exemption), registration forms (for example, staffing forms, group surgical-medical and public services management insurance plan applications), TD1, T4 and other tax deduction information, time cards, attendance and leave forms, year-to-date earnings statements and, if applicable, records related to allowances, incentives, perquisites, overpayments, garnishment and termination. Certain payroll and attendance information exists in automated form, in Supply and Services Canada computer systems and in the following Canada Post systems: The Attendance Management Information System (AMIS) and similar systems (for example, Headquarters Leave and Attendance); the Salary Warrant System (for semi-staff and revenue post offices); and the National Overpayment System. Employees seeking access to this bank should specify employment location, social insurance number and dates of interest, as well as whether specific payroll records are required and whether attendance or pay information is required. In addition, individuals seeking access to computerized payroll records that may exist on them must specify the system.

Class of Individuals: This bank contains records on all existing and recently terminated Canada Post Corporation employees.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the attendance and leave function and the payment of salaries and financial benefits to employees.

Consistent Uses: Consistent uses are that the records are used to provide information necessary for all salary administration and payroll functions for Canada Post Corporation — for example, to calculate pay, to issue cheques, to make deposits for employees and to respond to employees' pay enquiries; to enable the audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (such as to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Corporation, and to enforce orders of garnishments); to assist supervisors in performing managerial duties (such as managing attendance and verifying reliability when staffing positions); and to generate manpower utilization reports and provide other payroll and attendance data to management for pay/benefits costing and productivity analyses, for collective bargaining purposes, for budgeting, etc. Information is shared with Supply and Services Canada (to facilitate cheque issue and pension administration), with Revenue Canada — Taxation (re: income and deductions) and with provincial health insurance agencies, group medical insurers and, where applicable, unions (re: new members or change of employment status). Information is also disclosed to Employment and Immigration Canada, notably with regard to terminated employees, in accordance with the *Unemployment Insurance Act*and Regulations. The records are also used to assist in the processing of disability and workers' compensation claims and pay related employee complaints and grievances (CPC/P-PE-813).

Retention and Disposal Standards: Attendance and leave forms are retained for three fiscal years. Annual attendance records and other payroll records are retained for the duration of employment with Canada Post. One year after termination, these records are transferred to National Archives of Canada and destroyed when the employee reaches age 70 or two years after death (provided two years have elapsed since last administrative use). If the records are judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical/archival value, they are retained permanently. Data in AMIS and the Headquarters Leave and Attendance System are retained for five and ten years, respectively. Year-end Salary Warrant data files are retained for two years. Data in the National Overpayment System are retained for five years after last administrative use.

Financial Accountability Cases

Description: This bank includes such information as job titles, work locations, occasional credit reports, investigation reports on losses, statements by persons involved, legal advice concerning disposition of cases, the decisions of the committees and follow-up information (for example, concerning prosecution, garnishment, other legal proceedings). (Note that legal documents are stored in Legal Affairs, CPC/P-PE-827.)

Class of Individuals: The bank contains information on Canada Post employees, agents, contractors and others involved in actual or suspected losses of financial assets.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support committees on financial accountability, which review financial losses incurred by the Corporation, and to facilitate the collection of accounts due to the Corporation.

Consistent Uses: The records in the bank are used to help correct situations that have led to financial losses within Canada Post, both in terms of recovering funds and preventing future losses.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years after last administrative action, such as the recovery or write-off of the debt or loss. Disposal of related records in the above-noted information banks is governed by the retention schedule for those banks.

Risk Management Claims

Description: This bank contains records regarding claims for damages involving property, liability and automobile accidents, legal opinions, settlement transactions and other correspondence related to motor vehicles, and other accidents involving third parties. The records contain information on the parties involved, their insurers (if applicable) and the nature of the injury or loss (e.g., lost employment or salary). The records also concern losses due to fire and such crimes as robbery, break and enter and vandalism. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify details such as incident location and date.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records on Canada Post employees involved in claims, such as drivers of Corporation vehicles and letter carriers, as well as on third parties making claims or from whom the Corporation is seeking damages. Note that payment records are also stored in Accounts Payable, CPC/P-PE-820; that vehicle driver records (including records of accidents not involving third party claims) are stored in Automotive Services (CPC/P-PE-825); that workers' compensation board claims are stored in Occupational Health and Safety (CPC/P-PE-808); and that claims involving delayed, lost or damaged mail are stored in Customer Service (CPC/P-PU-030).

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the resolution of Corporation and third party claims.

Consistent Uses: Records in it are used to determine liability for motor vehicle, fire and other accidents involving third parties; to approve damage settlements, such as payments by and to the Corporation (as postal vehicles are insured, claims are handled by outside adjusters); to support claims by Canada Post against insurance policies in force; and to facilitate loss control and other measures to prevent recurrences. Note that certain information may be provided to insurance companies, lawyers acting on behalf of either party and the police, to facilitate resolution of the claim.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are retained for six years after the claim by or against the Corporation has been settled, unless a minor was involved, in which case the records are retained for six years after the minor's age of majority (varies from province to province).

Accounts Payable

Description: This bank contains such records as claims, authorizations, expense reports, receipts, cheque requisitions, advances, correspondence and other supporting documents relating to expenses being reimbursed, fees being paid, claims being settled and other payments. Records of transactions also exist in automated form in the Accounts Payable System. (Note that payment and related records pertaining to permanent transfers and relocations are stored in Relocation, CPC/P-PE-816.) Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify whether they are an employee, contractor or claimant and provide details of the payment such as location, type and dates. Individuals seeking access to computerized records that may exist must so specify.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records of payments to Canada Post employees claiming travel and hospitality expenses, education course fees, isolation allowances and membership fees, or receiving incentive awards, rewards, ex gratia and other sundry payments; to suppliers of goods and services provided to the Corporation; and to members of the general public, indemnified for claims made against the Corporation. (See Canada Post's contract and claims personal information banks for details.

Purpose: The information deals with payment of suppliers accounts and expenditures which are not in accordance with received authorizations.

Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to help correct situations that have led to financial losses within Canada Post, both in terms of recovering funds and preventing future losses.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years after last administrative action, such as the recovery or write-off of the debt or loss. Disposal of related records in the above-noted information banks is governed by the retention schedule for those banks.

Corporate Correspondence

Description: This bank contains such records as letters addressed to the Minister, Chairman and President, background material compiled in the preparation of responses and the responses. Certain information, such as current draft replies and an index, exists in automated form in the Correspondence Unit System. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the date and subject matter of the previous enquiry.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records of enquiries by customers, employees, Members of Parliament and the general public. The records may contain personal information on other individuals, where they are the subject of the enquiry (e.g., regarding Canada Post Corporation employees and contractors).

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the preparation of responses to Ministerial, Chairman and Presidential enquiries pertaining to the operations and administration of Canada Post Corporation.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to support the correspondence system, to monitor the preparation of responses; and for reference purposes when subsequent or similar enquiries are received.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Draft replies stored in automated form are deleted when the correspondence is signed. Paper records and the automated index are retained for seven years after last administrative use and then the former are transferred to National Archives of Canada. Information judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of archival/historical value is retained permanently by National Archives of Canada. The remainder is destroyed. Disposal of records retained in the subject files of organizational units drafting responses is governed by the retention schedules for those files.

Security Clearances

Description: This bank contains such records as personal history forms, fingerprint cards and, if applicable, criminal histories, security briefings, summaries of RCMP and Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) investigations and related correspondence. Limited information exists in automated form, in the Security Clearance Reporting System (which is a module of the Personnel Database, CPC/P-PE-803). Data elements include name, social insurance number, clearance level granted versus level required for the position and whether it is due for renewal. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and dates. Individuals seeking access to any computerized security records that may exist on them must so specify.

Class of Individuals: The bank contains records on those Canada Post employees and contractors who occupy or are about to occupy positions involving access to financial and other assets and sensitive information and systems.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to help determine the suitability of employees and contractors being considered for or in security-risk positions.

Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to determine the level of security clearance; and to support decisions on transfers, promotions and termination of employment. Monthly computer printouts are used to ensure the security clearance level of individuals is adequate for the positions they occupy. A notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personal File (CPC/P-PE-802). Details of RCMP and CSIS investigations that may have taken place are stored in those agencies' security clearance banks.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper records are retained for two years after termination of employment or contract and then destroyed. If notified that a pardon has been granted, the criminal records in question are destroyed immediately. Monthly computer printouts are destroyed when superseded, while the automated data is retained in accordance with the schedule described in Personal Database CPC-P-PE-803.

Postal Related Crimes/Offences
Description: This bank contains information gathered during investigations and contain details of the crime(s) committed. For example, information on employees involves such offences as theft of mail or embezzlement. Information on members of the general public involves national or international crimes, burglary of post offices and street box equipment, forgery of money orders, theft of mail, the illegal transportation of explosives and other dangerous substances and mail vehicle robberies. In addition, intelligence is collected regarding individuals or firms suspected of using the mails for an illegal purpose.
Class of Individuals: The bank contains information on those Canada Post employees, contractors and members of the general public who are suspected or known to be involved in the above-noted postal related crimes/offences as defined by the Canada Post Corporation Act and Regulations, as well as Criminal Code offences involving the mail.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to help solve and reduce postal related crimes and offences.
Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to support investigative and intelligence activities designed to solve or reduce crimes against Canada Post Corporation. Certain information may be shared with other federal investigative bodies and police agencies and, where warranted with the Department of Justice for possible prosecution.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for ten years after completion of the investigation or judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings and then destroyed. Records of proceedings dealt with under subsection 41 of the Canada Post Corporation Act, when a prohibitory order has been issued, are retained for three years after the order is revoked or the subject dies.

Automotive Services

Description: This bank contains such records as vehicle operator declarations, factual statements regarding medical restrictions on driving vehicles, safe driving awards, accident histories and reports, preventability assessments, training undertaken and copies of claims for damages, legal decisions, settlement transactions and other correspondence about accidents involving Corporation-owned and leased motor vehicles. (Note that the greater proportion of records on motor vehicle accidents involving claims are stored in Risk Management Claims, CPC/P-PE-819.) Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and, if applicable, such accident details as location and date.
Class of Individuals: Drivers of Canada Post vehicles.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the efficient and safe use of vehicles.
Consistent Uses: Consistent uses for the records are to validate provincial permits; to help determine liability for and the preventability of motor vehicle accidents and to help reach damage settlements with third parties; to grant safe driver awards; and to identify and provide for training needs and other preventative measures. (Notations concerning training undertaken and preventability assessments may be attached to the Employee Personal File, CPC/P-PE-802.) Identifying information is provided to provincial transportation departments with the full knowledge of the individual concerned, to obtain driving records (for example, demerit points, license suspensions).
Retention and Disposal Standards: Vehicle operator history cards (which include a summary of training taken) are retained for two years after an individual ceases to be an operator and then destroyed. Test scores are retained in accordance with the requirements of various collective agreements, but for a minimum of two years. Accident reports, preventability assessments and copies of claims settlement records are retained for six years after last administrative use.

CANADIAN AVIATION SAFETY BOARD

Chapter 14

CANADIAN AVIATION SAFETY BOARD

Background

The object of the Board is to advance aviation safety in Canada by:

- identifying safety deficiencies as evidenced by aviation occurrences;
- conducting independent investigations and, if necessary, public enquiries into aviation occurrences in order to make findings as to their contributing factors and causes; and
- reporting publicly on its investigations and public enquiries and on findings in relation to them, and by making recommendations designed to eliminate or reduce safety deficiencies.

It is not the object of the Board to determine or apportion any blame or liability in connection with aviation occurrences.

Investigation Files

Aircraft accident/incident files contain information gathered during the course of an investigation. During the field phase, all basic information is documented. Safety Deficiency notifications are prepared, laboratory examinations are requested to test and analyze material and metallurgical component failures, and specimens from surviving crew are analyzed at a medical laboratory. The investigative information is then sent to headquarters where a public report is prepared and released.

STANDARD BANKS

ASB/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

ASB/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

ASB/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel data bases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

ASB/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

ASB/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

ASB/P-SE-906

Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

ASB/P-SE-909

Security Clearances

This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank. The information is used to to support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done the records are destroyed.

ASB/P-SE-910

Grievances

This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Board the records are destroyed.

ASB/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

ASB/P-SE-913

Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

CCC/P-PE-802
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. Information concerning these topics may be found in various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CANADIAN CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT REVIEW BOARD

Chapter 17

CANADIAN CULTURAL PROPERTY EXPORT REVIEW BOARD

Background

The Cultural Property Export Review Board was established through the Cultural Property Export and Import Act on September 6, 1977. The duties of the Review Board as set out in Section 17 of the Act are:

- pursuant to Section 23, to review applications for export permits;
- pursuant to Section 24, to make determinations respecting fair cash offers to purchase; and
- pursuant to Section 26, to make determinations for the purpose of subparagraph 39(1)(a)(i.1) or 110(1)(b.1) of the Income Tax Act.

Administrative services to the Review Board are provided through the Department of Communications by the Movable Cultural Property Secretariat. All Review Board files are housed with the secretariat. The personal information they contain pertains to appeals against the refusal of cultural property export permits and to applications on behalf of donors or vendors. These are filed by application number but can be accessed through a manual cross-indexing system containing the name of the appellant (in the case of an appeal) or the donor/vendor (in the case of certification).

STANDARD BANKS

CPE/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CPE/P-SE-902

Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the informaton used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

CPE/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

CPE/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

CPE/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

CPE/P-SE-906

Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

CPE/P-SE-909

Security Clearances

This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank. The information is used to support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done the records are destroyed.

CPE/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

CPE/P-SE-913

Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

CPE/P-SE-914

Parking

This bank contains permit applications and correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on government-owned or leased property. Records for deductions for payment of parking fees are included in the Pay and Benefits Bank while records of parking violations are maintained by the RCMP. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information for the administration of parking privileges. The information is used to issue parking permits. Records are destroyed two years after the permit expires.

CPE/P-SE-917

Identification and Building-Pass Cards

This bank contains photographs, identification forms including social insurance number, and correspondence related to the issuance of identification and building pass cards. Provision of the SIN by individuals is not mandatory. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information relating to the issuance of identification and building-pass cards. The information is used to issue identification and building pass cards. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of identification and building-pass cards.

CANADIAN DAIRY COMMISSION

Chapter 18

CANADIAN DAIRY COMMISSION

Overall Responsiblities

The Canadian Dairy Commission (CDC) was established by the Canadian Dairy Commission Act, 1966-67. The Commission consists of a chairman, a vice-chairman and one other member appointed by the Governor-in-Council; it is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of Agriculture. To assist the Commission with advice on production and marketing matters, there is a consultative committee of nine members, appointed by the Minister, who represent a variety of interests.

The objectives of the Commission are to provide efficient producers of milk and cream with the opportunity of obtaining a fair return for their labour and investment, and to provide consumers with a continuous and adequate supply of dairy products of high quality.

The Commission, under its authority to purchase and sell dairy products, supports the market price of major processed products, principally butter and skim milk powder. The prices that producers receive for industrial milk and cream are related to these product support prices.

The Commission operates a major export marketing program for skim milk powder and whole milk products such as evaporated milk, cheese, whole milk powder and other specialty products.

The Commission makes direct payments to producers from funds provided by the government, to supplement returns from the market. These payments are made on qualifying milk and cream shipments produced within a market share quota system to meet domestic market requirements, and a special export program.

The supply of industrial milk and cream is managed nationally through a market share quota program administered under the federal-provincial Comprehensive Milk Marketing Plan. The Commission, as chairman of the Canadian Milk Supply Management Committee (CMSMC), directs the development of policy and co-ordinates the administration of the national quota and provincial market shares, which are determined by the CMSMC, and individual producer market shares which are determined and administered by the provincial milk marketing agencies.

CANADIAN FILM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Chapter 19

CANADIAN FILM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Background

The Canadian Film Development Corporation, now called Telefilm Canada, was established by the Canadian government in 1967 to "foster and promote the development of a feature film industry in Canada."

The Corporation, under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Communications, is headed by a Board of Directors and a Chairman appointed by the Governor in Council. The Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Corporation's board, also appoints an executive director who acts as the chief executive officer and is responsible for day-to-day operations. Headquarters is located in Montreal, with offices in Toronto, Vancouver, Halifax, Los Angeles, Paris, London and New York.

The Corporation, which does not produce or distribute films or television programs itself, carries out its mandate by providing advice and financial assistance to individual production and distribution companies and various industry organizations. The Corporation works with federal and provincial government ministries and cultural agencies towards the formulation of film and video policy and programs.

CANADIAN HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION

Chapter 20

CANADIAN HUMAN RIGHTS COMMISSION

Background

The Canadian Human Rights Commission was given its mandate with the passage in July 1977 of the Canadian Human Rights Act. The Act became operative on March 1, 1978 and was amended July 1, 1983.

Overall Responsibilities

The Commission's mandate is to foster the principle that every individual should have an equal opportunity to participate in all spheres of Canadian life, consistent with his or her duties and obligations as a member of society.

This mandate is carried out in two ways. First, it deals with complaints of discrimination in employment or in the provision of goods, services, facilities or accommodation based on ten prohibited grounds of discrimination: race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, age, sex, marital status, family status, disability, or conviction of an offence for which a pardon has been granted. Its jurisdiction includes federal government departments and agencies, Crown corporations and institutions such as chartered banks, airlines, interprovincial transportation systems, as well as the federally regulated portions of the private sector. In order to deal with complaints of discrimination, the Commission must collect personal information about the complainant, employees of the respondent, and third parties. The information could include race, age, marital status, medical or educational history, and is used in order to determine whether there has been a violation of the Canadian Human Rights Act.

Secondly, the Commission conducts information programs in the field of human rights, provides advice, issues guidelines, conducts research, reviews regulations and other instruments, maintains close liaison with the provinces and endeavours to reduce discriminatory practices.

Classes of Personal Information

Complaints and Compliance Branch Files

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Complaints and Compliance Branch, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information may include an individual's race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, age or marital status, views or opinions of another individual about the individual, etc., which are stored as part of the general subject files, where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier.

This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning personnel/employment policies and practices of, or special programs, plans or arrangements undertaken by federally regulated employers or service providers, or concerning Commission policies about the application of the Canadian Human Rights Act to employment policies, practices and special programs/arrangements.

The retention period for these classes of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Research and Policy Branch Files

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Research and Policy Branch, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information may include an individual's race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, age or marital status, views or opinions of another individual about the individual, etc., which are stored as part of the general subject files, where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier.

This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning research related to the duties and responsibilities of the Commission, including policy analysis and development, surveys to monitor current public opinion, socioeconomic studies of human rights problems, preparation and analysis of statistics, bibliographies, and other data.

The retention period of these classes of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Enquiries Received Under the Canadian Human Rights Act, Part III

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Complaints and Compliance Branch, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. Such personal information is accumulated in the course of responding to complaints of discriminatory practices and policies on various grounds which may or may not be prohibited by the Act. This form of personal information is retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the nature of the complaint, the date, and the office to which it was addressed. The files are retained for one year from date of correspondence and then destroyed.

STANDARD BANKS

HRC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CANADIAN IMPORT TRIBUNAL

Chapter 21

CANADIAN IMPORT TRIBUNAL

Background

The Canadian Import Tribunal was established under, and derives its authority from, the Special Import Measures Act (SIMA). The Tribunal's main function is to inquire as to whether imports into Canada are causing material injury or retardation to Canadian industry. The Tribunal's inquiries result in the issuance of findings or reports. Findings of material injury establish the basis under which anti-dumping or countervailing duties are levied. Reports assist the government in determining whether safeguard action should be taken respecting other imports.

SIMA came into force on December 1, 1984, and replaced the 1969 Anti-dumping Act. SIMA modernized and streamlined previous anti-dumping and countervailing legislation and brought it in line with Canada's international obligations under the GATT Anti-Dumping Code and Subsidies and Countervailing Duties Code. These agreements were negotiated under the auspices of the GATT "Tokyo Round" of multinational tariff negotiations and signed by Canada in 1979. The prime purpose of SIMA is to protect Canadian industry from unfair import competition.

The Tribunal, an independent agency, conducts several types of proceedings generally in a quasi-judicial fashion. The Tribunal consists of five regular members, to which may be added up to five temporary members. It is supported by a secretariat, which provides support services, and by a research unit, which conducts economic studies. The Tribunal is located in Ottawa. In conducting its inquiries and arriving at its decisions, the Tribunal requests information from interested parties, receives representations, hears evidence and holds public hearings. Although hearings normally are held in Ottawa, they may be held anywhere in Canada.

The Deputy Minister of National Revenue for Customs and Excise, (Deputy Minister) is responsible for several activities under SIMA. These include: receiving from domestic industry complaints of alleged injury to Canadian production from dumped or subsidized imports; conducting investigations to determine the existence of dumping or subsidization; accepting undertakings from exporters; and also levying anti-dumping and countervailing duties where appropriate. Reference to SIMA should be made for further information regarding the Deputy Minister's role under the Act.

The Tribunal conducts different types of proceedings under SIMA which are summarized as follows:

1. Advice to the Deputy Minister (sections 33,34,35 and 37 of the Act) — When the Deputy Minister decides not to proceed with a dumping or subsidization investigation because the evidence does not disclose, to his satisfaction, a reasonable indication of material injury or retardation, the Deputy Minister or the complainant, under section 33(2) of the Act, may refer this question to the Tribunal. The Tribunal's advice as to whether the evidence before the Deputy Minister discloses a reasonable indication of material injury or retardation is conclusive. If the Tribunal's advice is that the evidence discloses a reasonable indication of material injury, then the Deputy Minister must proceed with the investigation.

Where investigations have been initiated by the Deputy Minister, the exporter, importer or government of the country of export may refer to the Tribunal, under section 34(b) of the Act, the question as to whether the evidence before the Deputy Minister discloses a reasonable indication of material injury or retardation. This is done in an attempt to terminate proceedings at the investigation stage. Here again, the Tribunal's advice on the question is conclusive and determines whether the investigation continues or not.

There are also provisions in section 35 of the Act for similar references and advice where the Deputy Minister, after initiating an investigation, concludes that the evidence does not disclose a reasonable indication of material injury.

2. Material Injury Inquiries (section 42 of the Act) — These are economic inquiries involving the examination of a wide variety of factors and the formulation of findings by the Tribunal as to whether the importation of dumped or subsidized goods is materially injurious to Canadian producers of like goods. Findings of the Tribunal that such imports are the cause of material injury result in the imposition of anti-dumping duties or countervailing duties. In addition, pursuant to section 45 of SIMA, the Tribunal must report to the Minister of Finance if it is of the opinion that the imposition of duties in full or in partial amount would not or might not be in the public interest.

3. Report to the Governor in Council (section 48 of the Act) — The Tribunal is asked to inquire into and report on matters referred to it by the Governor in Council. These inquiries are generally more extensive and far-ranging than injury inquiries. Services as well as goods may be included in this type of inquiry.

4. Reviews of Prior Material Injury Findings (section 76 of the Act) — The Tribunal may, on its own initiative or at the request of the Deputy Minister or any person or government, review its prior findings and may rehear any matter in this process. In addition, the Tribunal may review any findings of material injury made under the Anti-dumping Act and still in effect at the time of the proclamation into force of SIMA.

5. Importer Ruling (section 89 of the Act) and Reconsideration of Finding (section 91(1)(g) of the Act) — The Tribunal may be asked to rule on the question as to which of two or more persons is the importer in Canada of goods on which anti-dumping or countervailing duty is or may be payable. Also, the Tribunal may reconsider any finding it has made when its ruling as to who is the importer identifies a person other than the one specified by the Deputy Minister.

The Special Import Measures Act, the Regulations and the rules should be consulted for the purpose of interpreting and applying the law.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassmen at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

STANDARD BANKS

CIP/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CIP/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

CIP/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

CIP/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

CIP/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

The Human Resources Inventory of Persons Serving or Prepared to Serve Overseas

The record consists of personal data, academic qualifications and experience. This data bank is used as a current inventory of individuals with appropriate skills wishing to participate in CIDA projects, as well as those presently on assignment overseas with CIDA. The information is used to maintain and to build a computer inventory enabling CIDA to respond to needs of developing countries. The inventory is also used to identify suitable candidates who have expressed a desire to serve with international development organizations. Other uses include the production of statistical data for CIDA purposes. The completed form is kept for two years and the staffing file is kept for 35 years and after last correspondence the computer inventory is kept for two years.

IDA/P-PU-010

Consultants Registration Data Bank (No. 7510)

This data bank contains names, addresses and telephone numbers of consultants (firms, organizations or individuals) as well as an adequate description of their resources, professional expertise, specialization, general experience and language capabilities. Any particular file remains in the bank as long as the firm or individual wishes to remain registered with CIDA, and also remains Canadian owned. The purpose is to provide the Consultant Selection Committee and, ultimately, CIDA senior management and the Minister, within the framework of the decisional process, with information on the qualifications and experience of individuals and firms wishing to obtain contracts to undertake CIDA projects in developing countries overseas. The information is used to produce statistical data for internal management and information purposes. Files are kept for five years and the information on the computer system is kept for two years after last correspondence.

IDA/P-PU-015

Applicants for and Holders of CIDA Awards for Canadians

This data bank contains a record of Canadians who have applied for or been granted an award under the CIDA Program for Canadians. The file includes personal and professional references, proposed program of study and career intentions. Individuals may access their file. The information relates to Canadians who have applied for or been granted an award. This bank is used to select candidates for awards and for scholarship holders. The personal information and the school papers may be used for recruitment purposes in CIDA projects, private sector projects within Canada and organizations outside of Canada. CIDA files are maintained for two years for review of applications and for 15 years for file of granted awards.

IDA/P-PU-020

Accounts Payable and Receivable

The bank contains a copy of the contract and information needed to initiate and control fee payments and tax deductions, and documentation on payments made. The purpose of this data bank is to monitor and control all payments, as well as recoverable items and payments made to co-operants under contract to CIDA. Any individual's files dealing with a particular contract and computerized data are kept for six years after the contract is terminated.

IDA/P-SE-918

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

Chapter 26

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

Background

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) is an independent public authority established by Parliament in 1968 as a successor to the Board of Broadcast Governors, an earlier regulatory agency. Its mandate was to regulate and supervise all aspects of the Canadian broadcasting system. These responsibilities were enlarged in 1976 by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission Act, under which the Commission assumed responsibility from the Canadian Transport Commission for regulating telecommunications carriers within federal jurisdiction.

Overall Responsibilities

In broadcasting matters, the CRTC regulates both the public and the private broadcasters. It has the power to issue, renew, amend, suspend or revoke licences and to set any conditions of licence it feels necessary. With respect to federally-regulated telecommunications carriers, the CRTC has the power to ensure that the rates charged by the carriers are just and reasonable, and not unjustly discriminatory. The Commission's approval is also required for traffic agreements and capital stock issues.

In order to fulfill its mandate, the CRTC collects a variety of information on applicants and existing licensees operating broadcasting undertakings (cable, radio and television) across the country. Financial and operating information is collected on a yearly basis in Annual Returns filed under the Statistics Canada Act. Programming on radio and television is monitored, and operating stations submit detailed program logs every year. In the course of the public hearing process, information concerning the applications being heard is made available for public examination, as outlined in the CRTC Rules of Procedure. These public files include the text of any intervention made by anyone wishing to express their views with respect to particular applications or issues raised in public hearings. In telecommunications hearings, interrogatories and other more formal practices may be carried out, as outlined in the CRTC Telecommunications Rules of Procedure.

The Commission receives complaints and enquiries from specific individuals or corporations regarding both broadcasting and telecommunications.

Grants and contributions are occasionally made through the commission's research branch. However, this program has been temporarily abandoned.

General Information

General information can be obtained either in person, by telephone, or by writing to CRTC headquarters at: Central Building, Les Terrasses de la Chaudière, 1, Promenade du Portage, Hull, Québec, specifying the appropriate service and floor.

The CRTC maintains four regional offices to establish the Commission's presence in the community. These offices provide a link between the head office and the licensees, provincial and municipal governments, local groups, and the public.

In addition to searching out areas needing new broadcasting services, and assessing existing services, the regional offices are available to provide general information and assistance to the public, applicants, interveners and licensees in the regions.

CRT/P-PU-005

Complaints and Representations File

The purpose of this file is to maintain a record of any person who wishes to lodge a complaint with, or make any representation to the Commission, with respect to any matter within the powers of the Commission that is not directed to any application. The file contains the name, address, and telephone number of the person and agent, if any, lodging the complaint or making a representation. Files are kept for ten years.

Financial and Corporate Analysis

CRT/P-PU-010

Ownership Profiles

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of ownership profiles relating to individuals authorized under the Broadcasting Act to own and operate broadcasting undertakings in Canada. The bank contains the name of the individual ownership shareholding, together with the location and type of undertaking (cable, AM, FM or TV). The bank is established on a national basis and is used in preparing ownership comments (Factum Book) for the various public hearings held across the country, with respect to the granting of licences for broadcasting undertakings. Manual files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

CRT/P-PU-015

Annual Returns

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of financial analysis and ownership information relating to individuals and/or companies authorized under the Broadcasting Act to own and operate broadcasting undertakings (cable, AM, FM or TV) in Canada. Some of the financial data contained therein is used in the assessment of annual licence fees to be paid by licensees. Assessments and a record of payments are maintained. The annual returns are filed alphabetically on a national basis and are used in (a) compiling and analyzing the broadcasting industry, e.g. growth trends and industry performance; and (b) preparing financial analysis comments for the various public hearings held across the country with respect to the granting or renewing of licences for broadcasting undertakings. Manual files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

Broadcast Operations

CRT/P-PU-020

Programming Correspondence Files

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a correspondence with licensees, including AM and FM radio, television and cable TV, concerning programming matters such as logs, tape records of programs, commercials, Canadian content, etc. Comments, enquiries, and complaints cover a wide range of topics, most of which are related to the Broadcasting Act, 1968, and regulations under the Act. The life cycle of these files is approximately two years.

Telecommunications

CRT/P-PU-025

Telecommunications Complaints, Enquiries and Briefs

The purpose of this bank is to provide a depository for case files pertaining to complaints and/or enquiries from customers or users of telecommunications services, furnished by the telecommuncations companies under the Commission's jurisdiction. Such files contain all information relevant to the submission, processing, investigation and disposition of such complaints or enquiries, and include correspondence between the individual originating the complaint or enquiry and the Commission, as well as investigative material and correspondence between the Commission and the telecommunications company against which the complaint or enquiry is directed. Complaints and enquiries deal with such matters as quality of service, rates and charges, credit and collection practices. The information in this bank deals only with the federally-regulated telecommunications companies, e.g. Bell Canada, British Columbia Telephone Company, CNCP Telecommunications Northwestel Inc., Terra Nova Telecommunications Inc., and Telesat Canada. The files in this bank are active only during the period of investigation or enquiry, normally 30 to 60 days, after which they are closed. They are retained in the bank for a period of two years.

CRT/P-PU-030

Contributions and Grants

The purpose of this bank is to keep a record of payments made to universities, associations and individuals to reimburse them for certain types of disbursements made by the recipients in relation to research in broadcasting. Disbursements by universities and associations include remuneration to individuals who have worked on the project. This information is mainly used for control of expenditures. The bank contains a résumé of the research consultant and an assessment of the proposed study and its cost. Files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

CRT/P-PU-035

Applicants File

The purpose of this bank is to provide information on individuals, partnerships, and individuals doing business under a registered name, relative to obtaining, renewing and amending a licence for broadcasting undertakings. This bank contains identification of the applicant; investment (equity and/or securities) held by the applicant in a CRTC licence holder, newspaper or other media publisher, theatre or cinema, advertising agency, broadcasting sales representative, broadcasting program material producer or distributor, music recording producer or music publisher, lessor of property, plant or equipment of the licensee, company owning securities in any of these categories, potential advertising client of the undertaking; staff information; service information; capital costs and facilities; and financial operations. Manual files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

CRT/P-PU-040

Intervenors File

The purpose of this file is to maintain a record of any person who is interested in an application and who wishes to file with the Commission an intervention for the purpose of supporting, opposing or modifying an application. The file contains the name, address and telephone number of the intervenor and his or her agent, if any. Details accompany the interventions on most occasions. Interventions are public documents. Manual files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

Legal

CRT/P-PU-045

Legal Branch

The purpose of this bank is to provide a record of legal opinions and advice given to the CRTC by this branch and other sources and to retain some of the material upon which such advice was given. The bank provides a record of prosecutions and investigations conducted by this branch and retains some of the material upon which such prosecutions and investigations were contemplated or carried out. It also provides a record of cases in which the CRTC is involved and some other material relevant to such cases. The life span of this bank is indeterminate.

Commission Secretariat

CRT/P-PU-050

Personal Service Contracts

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of individuals who have been engaged under contract by the Commission. It contains basic data such as social insurance number, educational qualifications, employment history, appointment and termination dates, amount of fees paid and other allowable expenses and payments. The information is used to determine taxable income and to issue the T-4 Supplementary for income tax purposes, and as source data for personnel required to carry out special studies from time to time. Files are retained for ten years by the Commission.

CRT/P-PU-055

Travel and Removal

The purpose of this bank is to maintain records of individuals' travel costs and to determine the costs of particular programs such as public hearings and special projects. The frequency of travel is used to determine eligibility for standing advances from the Working Capital Advance. Special information on these advances is maintained for semi-annual reports to Treasury Board, forecasting the continued requirement of funds from the special allotment available to the Board for distribution among departments. The principal use of this bank is to provide managers with data on travel and removal costs for estimate purposes and for budget control. Individuals identified in this bank are employees and former employees of the Commission, and individuals who have entered into personal service contracts with the Commission. Travel and removal data may be disposed of after six years for both active and former employees.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

CRT/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development
Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.

Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

CANADIAN SECURITY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

Chapter 27

CANADIAN SECURITY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

Background

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) operates pursuant to the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. It collects, analyzes and retains information and intelligence respecting activities that may on reasonable grounds be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada, and reports to and advises the Government of Canada in relation to these matters.

The Service also plays a role in providing security assessments to departments of the Government of Canada (in accordance with section 13 of the CSIS Act and government security policy) and may provide security assessments to the government of a province or any department thereof, any police force in a province, and to the government of a foreign state or institution thereof or an international organization of states or institutions thereof. As well, CSIS may advise any Minister of the Crown on matters relating to the security of Canada, or provide any Minister of the Crown with information relating to security matters or criminal activities that is relevant to the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty or function by that Minister under the Citizenship Act or the Immigration Act, 1976. It may also conduct such investigations as are necessary in order to provide security assessments or advice to Ministers.

Further, CSIS may, in relation to the defence of Canada or the conduct of international affairs, assist the Minister of National Defence or the Secretary of State for External Affairs, within Canada, in the collection of information or intelligence relating to the capabilities, intentions or activities of any foreign state or group of foreign states or any person other than a Canadian citizen or permanent resident, or corporation.

Security Assessments

Description: This bank contains personal information on individuals who are or have been the subject of security screening procedures in relation to pre-employment/employment with federal departments and the private sector working under federal government contracts. Similar records are held in respect to clearances required by the government of a province, a foreign state, or an international organization of states. This bank may also contain personal data, criminal records, security analysis, security assessments and investigative reports, related correspondence and a notation of the level of security clearance granted. The bank also contains personal information collected through the process of security clearances on individuals who are not themselves the subject of the clearance process.

Class of Individuals: Persons for whom CSIS was asked to provide a security assessment, including CSIS employees. By virtue of the screening process, personal information may be held on individuals who are not themselves the subject of the security assessment.

Purpose: To provide security assessments in accordance with section 13 of the CSIS Act and government security policy.

Consistent Uses: To support the decision taken in determining the suitability for a domestic or foreign security clearance. It may also be used in matters which may on reasonable grounds be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada and in other lawful investigations. Information may be provided to the Inspector General and the Security Intelligence Review Committee.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank may be retained from two years to twenty years, subject to the Retention and Disposal schedules approved by the Dominion Archivist. When files have been designated as historical, they may be transferred to the custody and control of the National Archives of Canada.

Canadian Security Intelligence Service Records

Description: This bank contains information on individuals whose activities may, on reasonable grounds, be suspected of directly relating to espionage or sabotage that is against or is detrimental to the interests of Canada; or, activities directed toward or in support of such activity; foreign influenced activities within or relating to Canada that are detrimental to the interests of Canada, and are clandestine or deceptive, or involve a threat to any person; activities within or relating to Canada directed toward or in support of the threat or use of acts of serious violence against persons or property for the purpose of achieving a political objective within Canada or a foreign state; and, activities directed toward undermining by covert unlawful acts, or directed toward or intended ultimately to lead to the destruction or overthrow by violence of the constitutionally established system of government in Canada. This bank may also contain personal information that, in relation to the defence of Canada or to the conduct of the international affairs of Canada, pertains to the capabilities, intentions; or activities of any foreign state or group of foreign states; of any person other than a Canadian citizen or permanent resident; or, any corporation except one incorporated pursuant to the laws of Canada or of any province. Information is also held in respect to CSIS providing advice relating the Citizenship or Immigration Acts.

Class of Individuals: Individuals suspected of espionage or sabotage against Canada or to the interests of Canada; foreign influenced activities within or relating to Canada that are clandestine or deceptive or involve a threat to any person; activities within Canada directed toward the use of serious acts of violence to achieve a political objective within Canada or a foreign state; or, activities of a covert unlawful act to destroy or overthrow the constitutionally established system in Canada.

Purpose: Collected and obtained under Section 12 of the CSIS Act with respect to threats to the security of Canada; under Section 15 pertaining to the requirement to provide security assessments, and under Section 16 concerning the collection of information or intelligence relating to the capabilities, intentions; or, activities of foreign states and certain persons.

Consistent Uses: CSIS may only disclose information it obtains if it does so in accordance with the controls of subsection 19(2) of the CSIS Act. First, it may disclose information for the purposes of the performance of its duties and functions under the CSIS Act or the administration or enforcement of that Act, or as required by any other law. The Service may thus disclose personal information to the Government of Canada, for example, as part of its duty to report, and give advice, thereto in relation to activities suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canda. Secondly, where the information in its possession may be used in the investigation or prosecution of an alleged contravention of the law, or where it relates to the conduct of Canada's international affairs or to the defence of Canada, then it may be disclosed to the appropriate police officials and Attorney General; to the Secretary of State for External Affairs, and to the Minister of National Defence, respectively. Thirdly, information may be disclosed where, in the opinion of the Minister, disclosure to any Minister of the Crown or person in the Public Service of Canada is essential in the public interest and that interest clearly outweighs any invasion of privacy that could result from the disclosure. Information may also be used in the preparation of security assessments for the federal government or, with ministerial approval, for provincial governments, foreign governments or international organizations. Personal information may be used, as well, as part of the federal government programs relating to Citizenship and Immigration security clearances. Personal information may also be disclosed to the Inspector General and to the Security Intelligence Review Committee.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank may be retained from two years to thirty years, subject to the Retention and Disposal schedules approved by the Dominion Archivist. CANADIAN TRANSPORT COMMISSION

Chapter 28

CANADIAN TRANSPORT COMMISSION

Background

The Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) regulates transportation in Canada that is under federal jurisdiction. Established by the National Transportation Act on September 19, 1976, it succeeded and absorbed the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada, the Air Transport Board, and the Canadian Maritime Commission. In accordance with an earlier cabinet decision, the Western Division was established in May 1979 in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, to enable the Canadian Transport Commission to have a more visible presence in Western Canada and to provide more direct access to and develop easier, more effective communication with the total western community.

Overall Responsibilities

The CTC's objective is to promote the co-ordination and harmonization of all operations by carriers engaged in transport under federal jurisdiction, through effective economic regulation, research and participation in policy development and, with respect to rail, to foster optimum development of safety regulations consistent with the public interest. In the course of fulfilling these responsibilities, personal information may be collected and retained concerning individuals participating in some of the activities, or from whom the Commission was required to obtain personal information.

The CTC performs all the functions vested in it by the National Transportation Act, the Railway Act, the Aeronautics Act, the Transport Act and other statutes. It is a court of record and its decisions, though binding, are subject to appeals to the Federal Court of Canada on questions of law or jurisdiction, and, in other cases, to its own Review Committee, the Minister of Transport, or the Governor in Council.

The Commission consists of a maximum of 17 commissioners including a president, one vice-president responsible for law and the superintendence of the work of the committees, and one vice-president responsible for study and research programs. All are appointed by the Governor in Council.

The powers and duties of the Commission are assigned on the basis of committees and branches. There are seven committees, five of which regulate each of the different transport modes — air, rail, water, motor vehicle, and commodity pipeline. The sixth committee deals with review and appeals, while the seventh is concerned with international transport policy matters. The branches specialize in traffic and tariffs, research, and departmental administration.

Access Procedures

Any Canadian citizen or permanent resident, as defined by the Immigration Act, 1976, who believes the Commission holds information of a personal nature about them, may request access to that information by writing to

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

Railway Transport Committee

CTC/P-PU-005
Rail Accident Investigations
Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain records concerning rail accidents. These comprise reports on occurrence of accidents and information reports on the more serious categories — derailments, collisions, crossing accidents and trespass resulting in injury. Reports may contain names of railway employees, passengers, highway users or others injured, and names of employees disciplined. Reports of derailments or collisions contain both circumstantial and causal information, whereas other reports usually contain only circumstantial information. Since files are maintained by accident date and location, access requests should specify them.
Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in railway accidents.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

CTC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

CTC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

CTC/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g.

the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD

Chapter 29

THE CANADIAN WHEAT BOARD

Background

The Canadian Wheat Board was established by the Canadian Wheat Board Act in 1935 to provide for the orderly marketing of wheat, and since 1949, oats and barley, produced in the area designated by the Act.

Overall Responsibilities

The Board is obliged by law to purchase wheat, oats and barley offered to it for sale by producers at an elevator or railway car and to pay an initial payment for same in accordance with the Act. The Board is then obliged to market this grain in interprovincial and international markets. The surplus proceeds received upon sale and available for distribution, are divided equitably among the producers delivering grain to the Board after the initial payment made to the producers and the Board's operation costs are deducted. The Board is also responsible for administering a delivery quota system which is designed to ensure equality of delivery opportunity among producers wishing to deliver grain for sale in interprovincial and international markets to elevators and railway cars. The Board also administers the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act pursuant to which advance payments are made to producers undertaking to deliver wheat, oats and barley as quotas permit.

Grain Growers Advance Payment Records

This bank is used to record the value of cash advances issued and refunds received from grain growers under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. The information gathered is used to monitor the growers repayment of monies advanced. Repayment is conditional on the growers delivery and sale of grain as soon as the grower is able to do so. The information is shared with grain companies that act as agents of the Board in making and collecting cash advances. The information is summarized and controlled as required by the federal government. Files are retained for three years following the retirement of the advance payment.

CWB/P-PU-015
Grain Growers Delivery Records

This bank contains a record of each producer certificate issued to a grower by a grain company, in payment for the growers delivery of grain to the Board account. The growers delivery records are the basis for equitable distribution of profits realized from the sale of grain by the Canadian Wheat Board. The information produces statistical statements by district(s), grain company and type of grain. Files are retained for seven years.

CWB/P-PU-020
Grain Growers Permit Records

This bank is used to establish and maintain a record of each grain growers entitlement to market grain under the quota system. The permit book application information is used to monitor and record grain growers delivery and sale of grain to Board Account and verify grain growers entitlement for Cash Advances under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. The grower's name and address are used to distribute profits realized from the sale of grain. Some of the information is shared with the Western Grain Stabilization Authority as well as the growers choice of grain company. Summary statements are produced by district(s) and type of grain for planning purposes. Files are retained for seven years.

STANDARD BANKS

CWB/-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

Chapter 30

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

Overall Responsibilities

Operations Branch

The branch supervises the administrative conduct of federal elections; trains federal returning officers; prepares books of instructions for election officers; applies the provisions of the Act pertaining to the eligibility of persons to vote; supervises the revision of polling division boundaries; compiles statistics and statutory reports and, as required, assists eleven electoral Boundaries Commissions in carrying out their mandate under the Electoral Boundaries Readjustment Act to determine the boundaries of the electoral districts assigned to each province.

Election Financing Branch

The branch examines the election expenses returns of candidates and registered political parties at federal elections, establishes the amounts to be reimbursed and arranges payments; refers to the Commissioner of Canada Elections those cases where a breach of the Canada Elections Act is suspected; audits and pays statements of fees and claims submitted by election officers.

Commissioner of Canada Elections

The Commissioner of Canada Elections is responsible by Statute for ensuring, under the general supervison of the Chief Electoral Officer, that the provisions of the Canada Elections Act are complied with and enforced.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

CEO/P-PU-005
Election Operations

This information bank contains the names of candidates and their official agents as recorded in the candidates' nomination papers, as well as the names of the electors who sign the candidates' nomination papers; preliminary lists of electors; revision officers' record sheets; record of decisions in cases involving a person's eligibility to vote; complaints with respect to the manner in which election officers discharge their duties; personal data on individuals who are deprived of their right to vote and/or be a candidate because of a conviction under the Canada Elections Act. This information relates to the Canadian electorate and candidates at federal elections. It has been compiled in the preparation of voters' lists and the completion of nomination papers as required by the Act. Candidates use voters' lists during their election campaign and at polling stations to check on the right to vote of citizens. Nomination papers are public documents which can be inspected at the office of the returning officer during the election; after the election the Chief Electoral Officer retains these documents. All the election documents are retained by the Chief Electoral Officer for a period of one year following the election as required by the Act. After that year, most of those documents are sent to National Archives; voter's lists are microfilmed.

CEO/P-PU-010
Election Financing

This information bank contains the names and addresses of candidates, official agents and auditors; the names of registered political parties; their registered agents and auditors; the election expenses returns of candidates seeking election to the House of Commons and of registered political parties; the amounts of money reimbursed to political parties and the candidates who qualify; the name and address of each election officer and other personal data; the amount of fees paid and of claims reimbursed to election officers; and the particulars of cases referred to the Commissioner of Canada Elections for investigation. This information relates to candidates, official agents, auditors, chief agents, political parties and Election officers, including returning officers, deputy returning officers, poll clerks and election clerks. This information is necessary in order to reimburse election expenses of candidates, political parties and in order to pay fees to various election officers for their services in connection with a federal election. All candidates' and registered parties' election expenses returns are turned over to National Archives for storage when they are no longer required. Information relating to election officers is disposed of in the same manner as all other financial payment records.

CEO/P-PU-015
Files of the Commissioner of Canada Elections

This information bank houses correspondence with respect to the appointment of persons who represent the Commissioner during elections, the names of lawyers who act as counsel, and particulars of complaints alleging violations of the Act. The information in this bank is used by the Commissioner of Canada Elections, the R.C.M.P. for investigative purposes, and the Courts in deciding on the guilt or innocence of an accused person. This information relates to representatives of the Commissioner, names of lawyers acting as Counsel, and complaints and subjects of complaints. It was compiled for investigative purposes to ensure compliance with the Canada Elections Act. The bank's information can be used for investigations and prosecutions under the Canada Elections Act. Information is retained for ten years.

Employee Information

The bank contains information relating to the administration of superannuation, information on staffing of positions, classification of positions, appeals, grievances, appointments, appraisals, leave, pay, personal history of employees, and training. The information relates to current permanent and term employees of the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer and was compiled to maintain personal information on current and past employees for the purposes of personnel administration. The information is also used in relation to pay and benefits administration, appointments and termination of employment, transfer to other government departments, administration of the pension plan, counselling to employees, and advice to managers. Current employees' information is retained for the period of employment. For past employees, it is retained for two years.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

Chapter 31

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER OF OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

Overall Responsibilities

The terms of reference of the Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages (OCOL) are set out in the Official Languages Act. This legislation was passed in July 1969 and came into effect in September of that year. The terms of reference consist of ensuring recognition of the status of each of the official languages and compliance with the spirit and intent of the Act in the administration of the affairs of the institutions of Parliament and the Government of Canada. The first Commissioner took office on April 1, 1970.

The Commissioner fulfils his or her duties in three ways: he/she investigates complaints regarding matters governed by the Official Languages Act; he/she carries out studies, research, analyses and audits with respect to the equal status of and rights and privileges connected with the official languages; and, lastly, he/she encourages application of the Act by providing information and advice, and by working with the public as well as with federal organizations. The Commissioner's mandate encompasses the entire federal apparatus — departments, agencies, Crown corporations, and so on.

Commissioner of Official Languages Information Distribution
Description: Files kept are on individuals and organizations to whom information produced by the Office of the Commissioner of Official Languages (OCOL) and pertaining to official languages issues is distributed. The specific information filed comprises: name, address, occupation, telephone number and official language preference of the individual or organization, and the information requested.
Class of Individuals: The information pertains to individuals who have requested information and to persons in positions of official language significance designated by the OCOL for receipt of information. Subcategories include: federal and provincial political representatives; public servants; official language minorities; media; libraries; educators; and interested citizens.
Purpose: For distribution, analytical and statistical purposes, files are kept on individuals and organizations who receive information produced by the OCOL, and other information pertaining to official languages in Canada in general.
Consistent Uses: This bank is used mainly for the purpose of distributing information related to official languages, with the occasional analysis and statistics being produced to support this purpose. Third party access to this may be linked to a multiple OCOL bank of information number for more extensive evaluations.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Eleven thousand names and records are stored electronically on a permanent distribution list which is updated annually. In addition, 90,000 names of persons who have made a one-time request for information are stored on paper or electronically, and held for a three-year period.

Policy and Liaison Program

In order to keep abreast of trends, and with a view to ensuring recognition of the status of Canada's official languages in co-operation with individuals and organizations, the branch keeps some information on those organizations and individuals with whom it is necessary for the Commissioner's office to communicate on a regular basis, to obtain or verify information having to do with minority official language rights: languages and education; federal official languages programs; and private sector initiatives in the area of official languages. At this point these files are mainly in the form of lists of names and addresses; they do not contain any personal information beyond that which is necessary to identify the person and/or organization. They are located in Ottawa and in the five regional offices — Edmonton, Winnipeg, Sudbury, Montréal and Moncton.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.
Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program

The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records. This bank relates to employees of the institution. This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected. The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action. The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

COL/P-SE-919

Personal Harassment

This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank. This bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation. The information is used to support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees. Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL

Chapter 32

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL

Background

The position of Comptroller General of Canada was created by Bill C-10, an amendment to the Financial Administration Act on June 30, 1978. The Comptroller General reports to the President of the Treasury Board. The role of the Office of the Comptroller General (OCG) is to see to the establishment of sound management practices in the federal government.

OCG officials work with program managers and functional specialists in departments to establish policy and to give advice on management practices, particularly in such areas as financial administration, operational planning and control, internal audit, and program evaluation.

The Office of the Comptroller General has three branches and a small planning and co-ordinating staff support unit.

STANDARD BANKS

OCG/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

OCG/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 001518

OCG/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development
Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.
Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 001520

OCG/P-SE-906
Official Languages
Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

OFFICE OF THE CORRECTIONAL INVESTIGATOR

Chapter 33

OFFICE OF THE CORRECTIONAL INVESTIGATOR

Background

The Office of the Correctional Investigator was established by Part II of the Inquiries Act. The office investigates complaints from inmates as defined in the Penitentiary Act and reports upon problems of inmates that come within the responsibility of the Solicitor General of Canada and meet the following conditions:

(1) The subject matter of the complaint concerns an incident occurring within twelve months of the lodging of the complaint;

(2) The complainant has taken, in the opinion of the Commissioner, all reasonable steps to exhaust legal or administrative remedies;

(3) The subject matter of the complaint does not involve the preparation of material for consideration by the National Parole Board.

The Commissioner need not investigate if the subject matter of a complaint has previously been investigated, or in the opinion of the Commissioner, a person complaining has no valid interest in the matter.

Complaints

A file is maintained on each inmate who has complained to the office and contains correspondence and interview reports with the complainant as well as information concerning action taken. All information is collected for the purpose of dealing with and attempting to resolve matters of complaint and reporting problems to the Solicitor General of Canada on an annual basis. Information is kept for a period of two years after completion of an investigation.

Classes of Personal Information

The class contains personal information which does not qualify as a bank of information but has reached the Office of the Correctional Investigator as a result of such activities as visits by Correctional Investigator staff to institutions, requests for particulars concerning administrative policies at all levels, minutes of meetings with various inmate committees, or with institutional and volunteer groups. When requesting access, an individual must provide the name of the institution about which information is requested and the approximate date of the event prompting the information held.

CORRECTIONAL SERVICE OF CANADA

Chapter 34

CORRECTIONAL SERVICE OF CANADA

Background

In 1977, the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) was formed through the amalgamation of the Canadian Penitentiary Service and the National Parole Service. The Correctional Service of Canada, as it stands today, provides programs for offenders from pre-admission until the expiration of their sentence. It operates on the basis that the offender must be viewed from physical, emotional and cultural aspects.

Overall Responsibilities

The Correctional Service of Canada, as part of the criminal justice system has as its mission to contribute to the protection of society by exercising safe, secure and humane control of offenders while helping them become law-abiding citizens.

Organization

The Correctional Service of Canada has three levels of management: a national headquarters, five regional headquarters and the institutions. In keeping with the management principle of centralized policy and decentralized administration, the headquarters plan, develop, evaluate and control broad policies while the facilities develop, control and implement detailed policies, taking into account the regions varying environments, offender populations and resources.

Overall control is exercised by the Commissioner and CSC's Senior Management Committee, comprising the Commissioner, the Assistant Commissioner of Administrative Policy and Services, the Deputy Commissioner of Offender Policy and Program Development, the Executive Secretary, the Director General of Corporate Policy and Planning, and the five Deputy Commissioners of regions. Line management is exercised by the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioners of regions and the Wardens. Functional direction is provided by branch heads.

Access Procedures

All access requests should be addressed to

Access to Information and Privacy Co-ordinator
Correctional Service of Canada

Classes of Personal Information

Pardons Records

This group is a class of records on offenders incarcerated in federal institutions and in the community who have been pardoned under the Criminal Records Act. This class is used to permit the Correctional Services of Canada, when pardon is granted, to collect all records on the individual and segregate them from the regular records holdings in order that they may not be used for any purpose. These records are returned to the regular records holdings if the pardon is revoked. The records are normally retained until the offender reaches 80 years of age. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives.

Security Inquiries

This group is a class of records on serious security incidents. For each incident, the report includes the inquiry terms of reference, facts gathered and recommendations. This class of records also encompasses police reports and intelligence assessments and is used to provide documentation to prevent recurrences of security incidents. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the type of incident, the location and approximate date of the incident. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives.

Correctional Investigator Inquiries Records

This group is a class of records on inquiries initiated by the Correctional Investigator. This class of records is used to analyse and make action recommendations resulting from these inquiries conducted by the Correctional Investigator. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives.

Disciplinary Court Hearings (New)

This group is a class of records on disciplinary court hearings. For each session of disciplinary court, audio recordings are made which contain the transcripts of the hearings on offenders who have been charged while incarcerated in an institution. This class of records is used to make decisions on the discipline of offenders resulting from the disciplinary court and during the grievances process. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the institution in which they were charged and the date of the disciplinary hearing. These records are retained for two years following the suspension of all actions relating to the disciplinary hearing.

Institutional Security Threats (New)

This group is a class of records on national and international groups, organizations and criminals. This class of records is used to provide background information on threats to institutional security and to provide reports on all security investigations to aid in preventing recurrences. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the location and approximate date of the threat or investigation. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions:

CSC/P-SE-901 Formerly Identified as: CPS/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

CSC/P-SE-903 Formerly Identified as: CPS/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

CSC/P-SE-904 Formerly Identified as: CPS/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program
The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records. The information relates to employees of the institution. This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected. The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimation in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action. The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

DCL/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of Public Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the Public Archives of Canada.

DCL/P-SE-902

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

DCL/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

DCL/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

DCL/P-SE-905

Training and Development

Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.
Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

DCL/P-SE-906

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

DCL/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Chapter 36

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Background

The aim of the Department of Agriculture is to develop and assist the Canadian agriculture and food system to provide for the needs of Canadian consumers and export markets in a manner which ensures a dependable supply of safe, nutritious food at reasonable prices; to ensure equitable returns to producers, processors and marketers; and to meet Canadian food and technological aid commitments to international development.

The Minister of Agriculture, the Department and agencies administer 43 Acts concerning food and agriculture industries. The activities of the Department extend from the farmer to the consumer, through all phases of production, processing and marketing of crops and livestock. The Department also assists farmers through crop insurance, price stabilization, and agricultural adjustment programs to alleviate losses caused by the weather, changing markets, and certain other hazards. While the collection and use of personal information is necessary for the performance of most activities, it is especially important for the following activities: research; regulation and licensing of imports and exports of livestock and plant products; control and eradication of animal diseases; and administration of the various loan and subsidy programs.

Classes of Personal Information

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. For example, Federal-Provincial Agreements such as those under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA) are concerned with rural problems of unemployment and social disadvantages. Special ARDA agreements have been used as a vehicle to improve the economic circumstances of native people by providing financial and other assistance to create job opportunities. A 15-year development agreement, the Prince Edward Island Comprehensive Development Plan, was signed by Canada and the Island in 1969, under the authority of the Fund for Rural Economic Development Act. The Plan has allowed for the design and implementation of a broad range of programs to stimulate economic growth, create jobs and raise per-capita income. Special areas have been designated in Canada, such as the Magdalen Islands, in order to deal with special problems of economic expansion and social adjustment. In addition, under the Federal Development Strategy for Prince Edward Island, the Department delivers the Small Business Assistance Program which provides financial assistance for capital projects.

Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the name of the program concerned and the name of the specific project.

General Correspondence and Enquiries

Personal information in this class relates to routine correspondence concerning the regulatory and licensing activities associated with meat inspection, pesticides, feeds and fertilizers, veterinary biologics, and the humane treatment of animals. It also relates to general enquiries concerning agricultural research, market intelligence, food advisory information and financial assistance to marketing boards and cooperatives. The personal information contained in this class normally includes the name and address of the enquirer, but is neither arranged nor retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information exists in a fragmented form throughout the subject files controlled by the Department and is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject and the date of the correspondence. The retention period for this class of personal information is controlled by the retention period of the files in which they are stored.

Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries, performance appraisals; may include language proficiency, leave and attendance records. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Departmental employees.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. Should the employee move to another government department, the file is transferred as well. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at both headquarters and the regions.

DOA/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions made about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and, when this is the case, to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATIONS

Background

The role of the Department of Communications is to encourage the growth of national and international telecommunications, broadcasting networks and facilities, and to anticipate and plan for change by conducting research into communications and space technology. It manages and regulates the airwaves, ensuring the efficient use of the radio spectrum. In recognition of the increasingly close link between culture and communications, the Department was given responsibility in 1980 for the federal government's arts and culture program, and for a number of cultural agencies.

Radio Station Licensing Data Bank

This bank contains non-broadcasting radio station licensing information, derived from applications submitted by applicants for radio station licences. It contains information such as radio frequencies, call signs, emissions, station location and personal data of applicants. This information relates to holders of radio licences. Information was obtained in order to licence and control the use of all non-broadcasting radio station systems in Canada for the planning and management of the radio frequency spectrum. In particular, this bank is used in the frequency selection process for new or existing stations and in associated electromagnetic compatibility studies. It also provides information needed for the identification of sources of interstation interference, policy formulation, and frequency utilization study purposes. The licensee and licence fee accounting information is used as a basis for the collection of annual licence renewal fees. Information such as names and addresses of licensees, assigned radio frequencies, call signs, emissions, bandwidth and power is provided to selected government bodies, persons or companies in connection with frequency co-ordination procedures for station or system planning, for reference or for similar purposes. Part of this information is shared with the following organizations, agencies and government departments: the Department of Transport for licensing information on the invoicing of ship board radio traffic; the Canadian Coast Guard, to ascertain whether a vessel has a valid radio equipment licence prior to placing telephone calls or passing traffic; a call sign and or name is provided to the Search and Rescue Co-ordination Centre so that vessel/aircraft routes may be established to facilitate the location of lost vessels or aircraft; various agencies and organizations in Canada and the U.S. for co-ordination of frequencies and system parameters; Amateur and General Radio Service (GRS) organizations for membership surveys and drives; publishers of the Radio Amateur Call Book (Canada and the U.S.) for the name, address, level of certificate and call sign for the purpose of pursuing activities related to amateur radio; law enforcement agencies for investigations relating to offences under the Radio Act; organizations providing radio services to the public in order to establish that their clientele is licensed; equipment suppliers to facilitate the commissioning of their clients' communications systems; and the Department of Transport, National Defence and other organizations to provide information on privately operated non-directional navigation beacons in the interest of safety.

DOC/P-PU-015
Complaints and Suppressions — Interference

This bank contains records pertaining to the investigation of complaints and recommended actions for suppression of radio interference. Each file contains the complainant's name and address and the nature of the complaint. Information was obtained to document the manner in which complaints are handled and to provide management with information and technical statistics of radio interference complaints. Only the technical information is released to the Canadian Standards Association and Comité Internationale de Standardisation des Perturbations de Radio as per international arrangements. These records are retained for 10 years (active for three and dormant for seven years).

Telecommunications

Description: This bank contains information regarding telecommunication equipment and services, long distance usage, telecommunication service orders, location of equipment and services, and the cost associated with this equipment and services. It includes lists of employees who are authorized to use long distance call codes for the government network. It also includes call detail recording information for all long distance calls placed from government telephones, or using governmental authorization codes, including originating number, number dialed, time call started, time call ended, duration of call, long distance route, and whether call was placed during business hours. Telephone numbers dialed may include any member of the general public who might be called by a government employee or from a government telephone. Since many government telephone numbers are identified with specific employees, the call patterns and numbers dialed may reveal information about a specific government employee.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the Department.

ITU Headquarters and Field Staffing Data Bank

This bank contains applications and curricula vitae sent by individuals seeking employment in the International Telecommunications Union (ITU). In some cases, the applications are submitted to the ITU and copies are retained on file. In other cases where the applications are not forwarded to the ITU, they are kept in an inventory for possible future submission to the ITU. This information relates to the public with specialized knowledge of telecommunications. All applications for employment at the ITU are channelled through the International Relations Branch of the Department for transmission to the Public Service Commission, External Affairs and, ultimately the ITU. The information is used, at the request of the applicants, for position application purposes. If requested by the general public through the Access to Information Act, personal information is protected. These records are retained for 15 years (active for five — dormant for ten), then forwarded to National Archives for selective retention.

DOC/P-PU-065
Unpaid Telephone Accounts

This file contains information on subscribers of foreign telephone companies who have moved to Canada, leaving behind unpaid telephone accounts. The same situation applies to Canadian telephone company customers who have moved out of Canada. All of this is done under CCITT Recommendation D173, of the International Telecommunication Union. This information relates to customers of Canadian and foreign telephone companies who have left unpaid telephone accounts. In the case of Canadian customers having left Canada, this bank is compiled to try to collect the money owing to the respective Canadian telephone companies. For overseas customers who are now residing in Canada, it is used to try to contact them and, if successful, suggest that they pay the outstanding amounts. In the case of Canadian customers, letters are sent to the foreign administrations seeking their help in collecting the account. Addresses are given if available, or telephone numbers to which long distance calls have been made. For overseas customers living in Canada, a registered letter is sent to them suggesting that they pay the outstanding amount to the foreign administration. If more convenient for them, they can send it to the Department here and it is then sent to the respective foreign administration. These records are retained for 15 years (active for five — dormant for ten), then destroyed.

Telephone Call Detail Information

This bank contains details of all commercial long distance calls and government intercity network calls placed from government telephones which are provided as part of GTA's Local Shared Service and all calls placed on the GTA intercity network using government authorization codes. For calls orginating from GTA Local Shares Service telephones, the information includes the originating number, the number dialed, the intercity route taken, the date and time the call started and the duration of the call. For calls placed using authorization codes, the authorization code is added to the above information and the originating number will be replaced by an incoming trunk number. Telephone numbers dialed may include any telephone which is accessible on the commercial long distance network, the government intercity network or other dedicated departmental networks. People placing the calls include government employees, anyone who subscribes to GTA Local Shared Service, and anyone having access to a GTA-provided telephone. This includes Members of the House of Commons, Senators and their staffs; employees of agencies and Crown corporations included under Schedules A and B of the Financial Administration Act. Since many of the GTA-provided Local Shared Service Telephone numbers can be identified with a specific individual and call authorization codes are assigned to a specific individual by departments, the calling patterns and numbers dialed may reveal information about that individual. It can also reveal information about calls to a third party. GTA does not maintain in the call-detail files either the names to whom telephone numbers have been assigned or a list of which individuals have been assigned specific call authorization codes. Maintenance of this information, if necessary, is the responsibility of the department/agency which pays for the usage charges. GTA does maintain a separate directory database which is public knowledge and is published in government telephone directories either semi-annually or annually. The information is collected and processed to provide a basis for the billing of government departments/agencies for the charges incurred by GTA in providing the government intercity network; to provide particulars needed by departments/agencies to manage and control their use of GTA-provided network facilities and the resulting costs; to allow GTA to monitor, manage, control, forecast and plan the government intercity network. It is also used to monitor the performance of the network so that GTA can judge whether value has been received from the suppliers of the network. The information is provided to all GTA regional offices and to all government department/agency telecommunications officers or their authorized representatives so that they may manage and control their organization's use of the GTA intercity network, further allocate the costs within their department and ensure that the intercity network facilities are being used appropriately. Retention period for records in this bank is yet to be determined.

Classes of Personal Information

Behavioural Research

This bank contains reports, studies, field trial evaluations, surveys, and interviews involving individual reactions, views and opinions related to the intellectual, creative and productive capabilities of human beings in information communication and related processes, especially human perceptual and cognitive processes, human behaviour and the interaction between people and communications technology. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, reflect collective human behaviour and not personal information about an individual. Personal information may be obtained in the process of preparing a report, to establish the identity and credibility of the source. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged by or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the report involved. The retention of information depends on the length of time it is needed for related research. It is active for the fiscal years in which the project is active; otherwise, it is active for the current fiscal year; thereafter it is inactive but retrievable for the next two years, after which it is transferred to the National Archives. (See also Access to Information Register: DOC/BRT-155).

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATIONS

Cultural Affairs and Broadcasting Sector

Canadian Audiovisual Certification

This class of documents contains personal information pertaining to the creative personnel employed in productions which have been submitted for certification to determine the eligibility of the production for the capital cost allowance program. It contains names, addresses, citizenship and remuneration paid. Information is not filed by personal identifier, but is filed with application forms for the production. Files are retained for five years and then transferred to National Archives for selective retention. (See also Access to Information Register: DOC/ACF-255).

Cultural Initiatives Program

This class of personal information contains applications and supporting documentation submitted by cultural organizations seeking financial assistance for their activities. These documents may contain personal information pertaining to the directors and officers of cultural organizations including names, addresses and earnings. As well, the curricula vitae of participants and/or expert advisors to the proposed activity may be held on file. This information is not filed by personal identifier, but rather by cultural organization or activity title. This information was compiled to assess applications for funding of special projects under the program including management development projects, capital projects and special events such as festivals or conferences, etc. Records are retained for seven years, then transferred to National Archives for selective retention.

Book Publishing Industry Development Program

This class of documents contains separate files for each application for funding under the Book Publishing Industry Development Program. Files contain information about the corporate and financial status of the book publishers or industry groups involved. Personal information retained could include citizenship, nationality and other personal and financial information of company presidents, vice-presidents, and shareholders. The information is used to determine eligibility for funding under the program. Files are retained for seven years and are then forwarded to National Archives for selective retention. (See also Access to Information Register: DOC/BCI-250).

Insurance Program for Travelling Exhibitions

This class of personal information contains applications and supporting documentation submitted by museums, galleries, archives and libraries seeking insurance coverage for exhibitions which they organize and host. These documents contain the names and addresses of lenders of objects to the exhibition, as well as a description and the monetary value of the objects being loaned. This information is not filed by personal identifier, but rather by title of the exhibition. This information is used to determine the eligibility of the exhibition for insurance coverage through the program and for the preparation of insurance certificates for lenders to the exhibition. Records are retained for seven years, then transferred to the National Archives for selective retention. (See also Access Register: DOC/AC-270).

Arts and Culture Organizations Inventory/EDP

This class holds records pertaining to orgnizations identified on a regional basis. The information at present consists of name, address, contact and phone number. The class is to be up-dated on an ongoing basis and used for making announcements, organizing meetings and preparing correspondence, as well as possibly identifying eventual recipients to be sent survey questionnaires. These files are retained for seven years.

Labour Market Study

Part 1 of this bank contains personal information on approximately 1200 employees of the museums across Canada and responses to questions on training and professional development opportunities, employment conditions, educational and training background, and some demographic data. Part 2 contains data on 500 museums and responses to questions on the museums labour market such as number of full time and part time positions; number of people employed for each job and their classifications; current budgets, etc. Records will be kept for five years (plus two years dormant).

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

DOC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

DOC/P-SE-918
Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

DEPARTMENT OF CONSUMER AND CORPORATE AFFAIRS

Chapter 38

DEPARTMENT OF CONSUMER AND CORPORATE AFFAIRS

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs was created in 1967 to bring together, as much as was practical, federal law governing the marketplace.

The Department is organized into four bureaus: Consumer Affairs, Competition Policy, Policy Co-ordination and Corporate Affairs.

The Bureau of Consumer Affairs promotes and protects the consumer interest in the marketplace. The Bureau also promotes and protects the consumer interest through consumer information, advocacy within government and with industry, and by financial and technical support of consumer groups.

The Bureau of Competition Policy administers the Competition Act, which is intended to maintain a competitive market system, promoting increased efficiency in the economy and fairness in the marketplace.

The Bureau of Policy Co-ordination is responsible for conducting research, policy analysis, evaluation and communication activities as well as liaison with external organizations in the area of consumer and corporate affairs.

The Bureau of Corporate Affairs seeks to provide a legal framework for the orderly conduct of business. It develops federal commercial institutions through incorporation, regulates bankruptcy proceedings for insolvent companies and individuals, and licences and supervises trustees in bankruptcy. It also encourages invention, innovation and creativity in Canada through granting exclusive property rights for inventions (patents), trademarks, industrial designs and copyright of original literary, dramatic, musical and artistic works.

The Metric Commission of Canada, established in 1971 for the purpose of advising the Minister on plans for conversion to the metric system in Canada, was abolished as of March 31, 1985. The Office of Measurement Information was created in the Bureau of Policy Co-ordination to follow up on the work of the commission and to assume the various tasks involved in completing metric conversion in Canada.

The Urea Formaldehyde Foam Insulation (UFFI) Information and Co-ordination Centre was created in June, 1981, to administer the technical and financial assistance program for homeowners with UFFI. The Centre was closed on March 31, 1987 and a home-owner information service was established in the departmental secretariat.

In addition, the surveys provide information on the extent to which CCA's operations affect the conduct of business in Canada and promote the existence of a competitive economy and the integrity of the marketplace. The surveys also provide data on the costs and benefits to be derived from CCA's different programs. The period of retention for each individual data collection project undertaken will vary according to the timeframe planned for each particular evaluation. It is intended that data be retained on departmental dormant files or given to National Archives in order to serve as reference for future evaluations to be conducted over a seven-year period.

Classes of Personal Information

Bureau of Consumer Affairs

Consumer Complaints and Enquiry Assistance Classes

These classes contain individual complaints and enquiries about goods and services, the results of mediation, solutions, and replies. Please note that files in this bank may be identified by means of the name of the company concerned rather than the complainant. Some complaints are handled by telephone and filed by subject matter or referred to the appropriate regional office. Few complaints and enquiries are recorded or retained in the database. These files are kept active for one year after which time they are considered to be obsolete.

Enquiries Regarding Acts Administered in Whole or in Part by the Department

- Canada Agricultural Products Standards Act
- Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act
- Electricity Inspection Act
- Fish Inspection Act
- Food and Drugs Act
- Gas Inspection Act
- Hazardous Products Act
- National Trade Mark and True Labelling Act
- Precious Metals Marking Act
- Tax Rebate Discounting Act
- Textile Labelling Act
- Weights and Measures Act

This class contains records on establishments that have been inspected with respect to the requirements or the legislation listed above. It contains inspection reports, complaints, warning letters and other correspondence, and reports of prosecution. The names of individuals who are sole owners of companies appear in the files. These files are kept for several years in order to plan inspection visits and monitor the compliance level in relation to the regulatory requirements of the legislation administered by the Department.

With respect to the Tax Rebate Discounting Act, the bank also contains the statements of discounting transaction submitted by discounters, and information relative to their processing and verification. It contains names, addresses and amounts of refunds for persons using tax discounting services. Retention periods vary according to the subject.

Bureau of Competition Policy
Enquiries Class

The purpose of this class is to maintain in a secure place all material relating to the conduct of private enquiries under the Combines Investigation Act and the Competition Act. The records may relate to any category of product or service. Most of the filing is done according to standard industrial classification coding. There is some cross-indexing, but in most cases only the companies associated with a given enquiry can be identified, although the names of individuals who are sole proprietors may also be available. Except in cases of misleading advertising, it would normally not be possible to locate the names of individuals who happen to be mentioned in information assembled during the course of enquiries under the Combines Investigation Act and the Competition Act. These records are retained for periods of five to 10 years.

Bankruptcy Branch

Unclaimed Dividends/Undistributed Assets — This class contains records relating to Section 125 of the Bankruptcy Act, under which the superintendent is the depository for all funds that are distributed to creditors but which, for whatever reason, remain unclaimed by the creditors. Under the same section of the Act, the superintendent receives all funds from trustees that cannot be distributed to creditors in an economically feasible manner. This particular fund also includes trust funds in the possession of the estate that are not estate and are available to the particular creditors providing appropriate identification.

Departmental Secretariat

Ministerial Correspondence — This class of information contains correspondence received from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other similar submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Consumer and Corporate Affairs activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are held at headquarters and in the regions. Current employees seeking access to their records should consult their supervisor or their local personnel unit.

CCA/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Records
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's Affirmative Action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY, MINES AND RESOURCES

Chapter 39

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY, MINES AND RESOURCES

Background

Although the history of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources is comparatively short, some branches have been in existence for more than a century. The Geological Survey of Canada, founded in 1842 by Sir William Logan, is the oldest scientific organization in Canada. Earth Physics, formerly the Dominion Observatory, dates from 1871 and parts of the Surveys and Mapping Branch were established in 1872.

The Department of Energy, Mines and Resources (EMR) was created in 1966 by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources Act. Previously known as the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, it took on a new and important role as policy maker in energy development. Since then, the Department has been given a stronger mandate to fulfill its role as the principal federal agency responsible for the discovery, investigation, development and conservation of Canada's mineral and energy resources.

Overall Responsibilities

The department administers three programs: the Energy Program, the Minerals and Earth Sciences Program and the Administration Program. Collectively, the programs of the Department provide a continuum of initiatives directed towards national economic development issues.

The objective of the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources is to promote the discovery, development and efficient use of the country's mineral and energy resources and to broaden the knowledge of Canada's landmass for the benefit of all Canadians. To attain this objective, the Department devises and fosters national policies based on research and data collection in the earth, mineral, and metal sciences; and on policy, economic and social analyses. The Department also carries out an earth sciences program directed toward the conservation and use of the Canadian landmass, and it provides, as a national service, the scientific and technical information generated in this program (such as topographic and geological maps, atlases and remote sensing data) to a wide span of customers across the country.

Access Procedures

Formal requests for personal information under the Privacy Act and complaints and enquiries concerning the administration of the Act within the department should be addressed to

Co-ordinator
Access to Information and Privacy
Department of Energy, Mines and Resources
580 Booth Street
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0E4
Telephone: (613) 995-9544

At the corporate level, the assistant deputy minister of Finance and Administration, through the Access to Information and Privacy Secretariat, directs the implementation of policies and administrative procedures concerning the application of the Act throughout the Department, and will investigate all complaints on issues relative to applications and service to the public. The deputy minister oversees final resolution of any complaints or legal actions concerning the disclosure of information held by the Department.

Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program (CEDIP) (New)
Description: This bank contains information relating to the Canadian Exploration and Development Incentive Program. The incentive is available to any individual, corporation or trust incurring an eligible expense for oil and gas exploration in Canada. The applicant will complete a summary form which provides for the identification of the applicant, the amount of incentives claimed and a certification as to the completeness and accuracy of the information submitted. One form is required for the eligible expenses of each well or program claimed. The applicant will be required to submit technical data and detailed expense summaries for each well or program only when not submitted previously. Where the applicant shares the $10 million annual expense limit with another person, a form specifying the amount allocated to each person must be completed.
Class of Individuals: Individuals who apply for incentives for oil and gas exploration and development in Canada.
Purpose: The objective of collecting this information is to determine the eligibility of claimant and expenses for the purpose of making an incentive payment.
Consistent Uses: This information will also be used to determine cost norms for expenses; to track and control outstanding and completed applications; to facilitate recovery of incentives paid in error; to audit claimants expenses and eligibility; and to establish internal performance measurement to aid in improving efficiency and effectiveness of the incentive payment process.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained for 10 years after program termination. Information would then be transferred to federal Archives Division, National Archives for archival purposes.

Classes of Personal Information

Personal information concerning departmental employees and individuals employed under contract is held for personnel and other administrative functions as described under Employee Personal Information Banks.

Most of the personal information held by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources results from the energy conservation and oil substitution components of the National Energy Program. This information is used to administer and control grants and other financial incentives provided to eligible individuals under the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) and the Canada Oil Substitution Program (COSP).

Voluntary responses to telephone surveys and written questionnaires received from individuals for the purpose of evaluating the progress and effectiveness of the above and other departmental programs, is also held by the department as indicated in this index.

The Department also holds other personal information voluntarily submitted by individuals in response to surveys and questionnaires relating to departmental scientific, statistical and other publications, as indicated in this index. These responses are used to identify the needs of clients in terms of the adequacy of the contents of the publications, to determine if publications meet the client needs and to ascertain how the information content should be changed or modified to better suit the needs of the clientele.

Some departmental programs and activities result in the accumulation of personal information which is not contained in the personal information banks (PIBs) described in this index. This personal information is stored within subject files where records are not normally retrieved by the name of the individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information consists of: personal opinions and attitudes about a variety of subjects; requests for publications, reports, etc.; enquiries for information of a general nature, enquiries concerning energy, minerals and earth sciences technology. It is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. Retention of this form of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the subject files in which the information is stored. Personal Information Classes (PICs) to identify this type of information have been included.

Explosives Branch

Explosives Safety and Accident Statistics

The purpose of this class is to provide a record of statistics on safety measures in the explosives industry as well as on all accidents related to explosives. The files contain information on the nature of the accident as well as the victim's name, age and address, if applicable. Records are retained for varying periods depending on the accident. Records containing information on serious incidents are retained permanently.

Surveys and Mapping Branch

Crown Canada Lands Survey Contracts

This class contains information related to contracted surveys on Crown Canada Lands, such as Indian reserves, national parks and territorial lands. The data consists of names and addresses of surveyors interested in performing survey work, their proposals based on specifications, cost estimates, technical information on surveys, relevant correspondence, evaluations of surveyors' performance and reports on the quality of the survey. The information is used to enable the execution of necessary surveys to the required standards at the most economical price. The information is also used to compile lists of acceptable surveyors for performing required surveys. Routine records are retained for three years and technical records are assigned a permanent retention period.

Gazetteer of Canada Users' Survey

This class contains information provided to the Department by users of the "Gazetteer of Canada". The data includes the frequency of use of the Gazetteer listings of Canada's geographical names, the preferred format of the Gazetteer, and the content of the Gazetteer, etc. The users' responses are used in tailoring future publications to suit users' needs. Information will be retained for five years.

Energy Conservation and Oil Substitution Branch

Car Mileage Questionnaire

This class contains information provided to the Department by readers of the "Car Mileage Book" who complete its questionnaire. The answers provide data on the number of cars owned by households, the occupation of the chief wage earner in the household, vehicle data such as year of manufacture, make, model, number of cylinders, engine size, serial number and odometer reading. The respondent may also provide information on the number of kilometres driven in the past year, kilometres per litre attained (overall, city and highway driving), whether any cars are used for commuting to work and the commuting distance and time. The information is used to assess the impact of the publication, acquire perceived fuel economy information and compare trends compiled with those of other comparable surveys such as the "Journey to Work" survey compiled by Statistics Canada for Labour Canada. Questionnaires are retained for a period of five years.

Enersave for Home Insulation

This class consists of data obtained from homeowners who submit data to the Enersave for Home Insulation information service in order to know what changes to upgrade the quality of their home's insulation will be effective and worthwhile. The homeowner completes and returns a questionnaire and in return, receives a "personalized" analysis of his/her home, recommendations for improvements, estimates of improvement costs and estimates of potential energy and dollar savings. Data include the date when the house was built, the style, measurements of the perimeters of the house, as well as type of insulation, number of windows and doors, the type of fuel used, the cost of the fuel, and the type of hot water heater used. The questionnaires are retained for two fiscal years and the computer data is retained for five years.

The Garbage Book Questionnaire

This class contains information provided to the Department by readers of the "Garbage Book", who complete its questionnaire. The answers provide data on the comprehension and usefulness of the book, on the application of ways to conserve energy and reduce garbage at home, what results were obtained in applying certain measures and if the book has changed the reader's perception regarding energy, garbage, home and society. Space is provided for personal comments and respondents' ideas on ways of cutting down waste. Questionnaires are retained for a period of five years.

Keeping the Heat In Questionnaire

This class contains information provided to the Department by readers of the book "Keeping the Heat In" who complete its feedback forms. The answers provide data on the comprehension and usefulness of the book. Feedback form 1 provides general comments about the book, and the simplicity and comprehension of the diagrams and instructions provided in the book. Feedback form 2 (to be completed after re-insulation) provides details on where insulation was done, the size and type of dwelling, the amount and type of insulation put in, R-value added, if the work was done by the homeowner or a contractor and the costs. Respondents may provide the name and address of the contractor and a rating of the work performed. Feedback form 3 (to be completed the year following re-insulation) provides data on where and how much insulation was installed, amount and type of insulation before re-insulation, R-value added, whether it was installed by the owner or contractor and the costs, as well as data concerning the type of heating fuel used, the costs before and after re-insulation, the comfort of the house, thermostat setting and any changes that might affect fuel consumption. The information is used to assess the impact of the publication. Questionnaires are retained for a period of five years.

100 Ways to Save Energy and Money at Home Questionnaire

This class contains information provided to the Department by readers of the book "100 Ways to Save Energy and Money at Home" who complete its feedback forms. The answers provide comments about the book such as its usefulness, if it was easy to read and understand, if it was too technical or too simple and if the reader received adequate information on ways to save energy. Readers are asked if they have taken steps to save energy in the home and with what results, whether the book has changed their perception of energy conservation in relation to home and society, how many people read the book and which sections were read. Space is provided for other comments. The information is used to assess the impact of the publication. Questionnaires are retained for a period of five years.

The Billpayers' Guide to Furnace Servicing

This class contains information provided by readers of the book "The Billpayer's Guide to Furnace Servicing", who complete its feedback form. The answers give comments about the book such as its usefulness, if it was easy to read and understand, if it was too technical or too simple, and whether or not the book was used when the service mechanic serviced the furnace, etc. May also contain comments regarding servicing of the furnance — whether any extra services not described in the book were completed, whether the customer was satisfied with the service provided and what the efficiency of the furnace was after servicing. The information is used to assess the impact of the publication. Questionnaires are retained for a period of five years.

Communications Branch

Ongoing Surveys of Public Attitudes Towards the Canadian Energy Situation

This class contains information on Canadian public knowledge, attitudes and behaviour patterns towards the Canadian energy situation. The data is collected under contract using various survey methodologies and is used to support the energy communications programs of the Department. The collection and use of any personal information is confined solely to internal verification and validation of the information by the contractor and all personal information is subsequently destroyed. The Department receives only aggregated statistical data from the contractor. The statistical information is retained for seven years and then transferred to National Archives for selective retention.

Coal and Alternative Energy Branch

Household Survey of Consumer Attitudes about Solar Water Heating

The main purpose of this survey is to determine solar energy knowledge, attitudes, perceptions about cost, willingness to purchase a solar system, and reasons for and against the use of solar water heating. The data collected is used to decide whether and how the federal government should design policies to encourage Canadian homeowners to invest in, or otherwise acquire, solar water heating systems, and also provides feedback to existing policies and programs in solar energy. The contents include information collected by questionnaire from a nationally representative sample of households in the Atlantic provinces, Québec, Ontario, the Prairie provinces and British Columbia, concerning the present method of space and water heating, the total home energy costs in 1981, the estimated cost of water heating, perceptions of future energy costs and new energy sources, energy conservation and substitution practices and purchases, and house buying intentions.

Management Practices Sector

Survey of Users of Energy, Mines and Resources Scientific and Statistical Output

This class contains information provided by clients using information which is produced by the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources. The data relates to the use, quality, accuracy, timeliness, format, ease of availability of the departmental output and also the impact this output has on the clients' work. The information is used to identify the needs of clients in terms of scientific and statistical information that can be provided by EMR, to determine if these needs are being adequately served by the output and to ascertain how the output should be changed or modified to better suit the needs of the clients. Retention of records is in accordance with the specific components under this class title.

Survey of Users of the Geological Survey of Canada

This class contains information provided by clients of the Geological Survey of Canada (GSC). The data relates to the use, quality, accuracy, timeliness, format, ease of availability of the GSC's output and also the impact this output has on the clients' work. The information is used to identify the needs of clients in terms of geoscientific information that can be provided by the GSC, to determine if these needs are being adequately served by the GSC output and to ascertain how the output should be changed or modified to better suit the needs of the clients. The completed questionnaires are retained for ten years.

Survey of Users of Mineral Development Activity's Scientific and Statistical Publications

This class contains information provided by clients using scientific and statistical publications resulting from the Mineral Development Activity (MDA) of the Minerals Program. The data relates to the use, quality, accuracy, timeliness, format, and ease of availability of this published output and also the impact this output has on the clients' work. The information is used to identify the needs of clients in terms of published scientific and statistical information that can be provided by MDA, to determine if these needs are being adequately served by the output and to ascertain how the output should be changed or modified to better suit the needs of the clients. The completed questionnaires are retained for ten years.

Earth Sciences Sector

Research Agreements Program

This class contains applications for grants submitted to the Department from candidates affiliated with Canadian research institutions. Applications contain information on the description and budget for the proposed project and the applicant's curriculum vitae. The information is used to select and award grants in the natural, physical and social sciences and engineering wich can contribute to the department's purpose. The information is also used to compile general statistics of interest to the department with respect to the program as a whole, and not in relation to individual applicants. Accepted applications are destroyed after a period of six fiscal years and those not accepted are destroyed after two fiscal years.

Research and Technology Sector

Federal Energy Research and Development

This class contains data on various federal energy research and development projects. The information consists of details of the research projects, names of companies, consultants and individual university researchers working under contract or receiving grants in the particular research area and the amounts paid. The information is used by the Interdepartmental Panel on Energy Research and Development in the review, planning and allocation of energy research and development priorities and expenditures within the federal government. The data is also used in the preparation of the publication titled "An Inventory of Energy Research and Development Supported by the Government of Canada". The information is stored according to research area.

Canada Centre for Mineral and Energy Technology (CANMET)

Technical Enquiries

This class includes technical enquiries, comments and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department regarding issues related to energy (coal and alternative energy sources), mining and mineral technolgy. The information is used for reference purposes regarding any subsequent enquiry by an individual. Correspondence is retained for a minimum of two years.

Enquiries and Comments from the Public

This class covers enquiries, comments and the opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department about various departmental and national issues relating to energy, minerals and earth sciences subjects. The information is used for reference purposes regarding any subsequent enquiry by an individual. Correspondence is retained for a minimum of two years.

Mailing Lists

This class includes correspondence and request cards from individuals regarding departmental mailing lists for publications, maps and charts, reports, catalogues, and indexes. The information is used for amending addresses and to add or delete individual names on mailing lists which are retained permanently. The correspondence and request cards are retained until the mailing list has been amended.

Requests for Publications and General Information

This class covers correspondence from individuals requesting publications and information of a general nature. Requests cover a variety of subjects related to energy, minerals and earth sciences publications, reports, pamphlets, maps, speeches, statements and news releases produced by the Department and available to the public. The information is used for reference purposes concerning any subsequent enquiry concerning lack of receipt of the publication requested and is retained for two years.

STANDARD BANKS

EMR/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Affirmative Action Program (New)

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons) and in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systematic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.
TBS Registration Number: 001828

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

Incentive Awards (New)
Description: The bank includes information on public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan. Such information may include curricula vitae, narratives in support of meritorious contributions related to their duties, or practical suggestions for the improvement of Public Service operations, and completed recommendation reports concerning either the Merit Award or the Suggestion Award.

Class of Individuals: Public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Purpose: To identify individuals who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Consistent Uses: The information in this bank is used to establish precedents for awards and to provide an audit trail for the disbursements of funds.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Operational files are kept for a minimum of two years then destroyed, financial files for six years then destroyed, and precedent setting files for 25 years then destroyed.

Chapter 40

DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Background

The Department of the Environment was established by the Government Reorganization Act, 1970-71-72, ch. 42 on June 10, 1971. The Department, also known as Environment Canada, has as its primary duties renewable resources management and the protection of Canada's air, water and land resources. The departmental organization has three principal components: Atmospheric Environment Service; Conservation and Protection (inland waters, wildlife and lands); and the Parks Program. In addition to these three, there is a combined Finance and Administration Service.

The National Battlefields Commission, a separate agency, also reports to the Minister of the Department.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

DOE/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

DOE/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

DEPARTMENT OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

Chapter 41

DEPARTMENT OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

Background

The Department of External Affairs was established by an Act of Parliament in 1909 to deal with Canada's relations with other governments within the British Empire and with foreign states. In 1981, the foreign operations of the immigration service were brought into the Department. In January 1982, there was a fundamental reorganization to include the foreign trade operation. Since then, two additional cabinet ministers, a Minister for International Trade and a Minister for External Relations have been appointed. The new Department of External Affairs Act came into force on December 7, 1983.

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of External Affairs has the primary responsibility for the promotion and protection of Canada's interests abroad and the conduct of Canada's relations with other countries. Its main functions are to ensure the effective representation of Canada in other countries and to international organizations including close contact, communications and negotiation with other governments and organizations through Canada's extensive network of representatives abroad; to evaluate information about political, economic and other developments likely to affect Canada's interest; to give advice to the government, often in consultation with other departments, on the formulation and implementation of policies and programs with international dimensions; to ensure the co-ordination of the external aspects and application of national policies for export trade promotion, defence and security, development assistance, immigration, and cultural and scientific exchanges; to reflect to peoples abroad the bilingual and multi-cultural character of Canadian society; and to provide protection and assistance to Canadian citizens abroad.

Organization

Department headquarters in Ottawa supervises regional passport offices in Canada and missions abroad bearing different names and performing varying functions. Within Canada, the regional offices of the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion (DRIE) support the export promotion program of the Department.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Department of External Affairs, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific information banks described in this entry. This information exists in a fragmented form throughout the subject files of the Department, which are described in the Access Register. This information is stored as part of the general subject files, where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of information is retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter, related departmental activity, the date on which the information was received by the Department and to whom it was addressed.

The personal information contained in these subject files is retained for the same period of time as the related subject information and is disposed of according to the appropriate subject record schedules.

The classes of personal information listed below describe particular classes of records which, because of their nature, are more likely to contain personal information.

Legal Affairs Bureau

The three divisions of the Legal Affairs Bureau handle a number of important functions including multi-lateral legal issues, peace and security law, humanitarian law, economic law, trade agreements, treaties, international law and individual legal and legal-protocol cases. Personal information held by the bureau may include enquiries from Canadian residents seeking advice about international and foreign legal systems, and claims by Canadian citizens for possible support by the Canadian government. Other personal information would relate to specific issues handled by the bureau. Persons seeking access must specify the subject of the enquiry, as well as country and/or city, legal firm, contacts, incidents, dates and circumstances which may have led to the development of a record.

Office of Protocol

The Office of Protocol is responsible for the administration of protocol-related programs of the Department and for the development of policies and procedures which direct the administration of protocol programs. Personal information in this class would pertain to individuals who have participated in, or have been the subject of protocol-related activities within programs such as accreditation and ceremonies, privileges and immunities, government hospitality, protection of foreign representatives and foreign decorations, and awards and honours to Canadians. Persons seeking access should specify the subject of the enquiry, country and/or city, contacts, incident, visits, conference, delegation, dates and circumstances which may have led to the establishment of a record.

International Security and Arms Control Bureau

The two divisions in this bureau, the Arms Control and Disarmament Division and the Defence Relations Division, are responsible for the preparation and implementation of departmental policies concerning defence, arms control and disarmament. Personal information may be held by the bureau concerning individuals who have been involved in defence activities with NATO, NORAD, or other international defence or arms control organizations, or in conferences or visits. Personal information might include personal biographies, tours of defence colleges, military travel and training, and nominations of Canadians for positions in international defence organizations concerned with defence or arms control. Persons seeking access should specify the subject of the enquiry, country and/or city, contacts, incident, conference/organization, visits, dates and circumstances which may have led to the establishment of a record.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees' files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are a native person, if they have a persistent disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Departmental employees.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples, physically or mentally handicapped persons, and members of visible minorities. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment, to monitor the progress of the program and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in missions abroad.

DEA/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificats and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Chapter 42

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of Finance is the policy agency primarily responsible for advice to the government on the economic and financial affairs of Canada.

The Department deals with the performance of the Canadian economy in all important aspects — the growth and the sharing of output, employment and income, the stability of prices and the long-term development of the country. It is concerned with the harmony of all initiatives of federal departments or agencies which have important impacts on the economy. The Department of Finance is vitally concerned with trade and monetary affairs and other international forces bearing on Canada's domestic performance. The Department works constantly toward improved co-ordination of economic action between provincial governments and the Government of Canada.

This broad horizon of interest finds expression in the budget speech by the Minister of Finance. This core document of government policy plays a traditional role in reviewing the government's accounts and in making proposals with respect to both expenditures and revenues. In recent years, it has also provided an authoritative review of past, present and future economic factors affecting business and the nation's finances.

The Department analyzes and appraises the economic situation and prospects in Canada, and in other countries of interest to Canada; advises on fiscal and other economic policies and measures; recommends measures to meet the requirements of the government within appropriate fiscal policies, by action in expenditure, lending, taxation, borrowing and cash management; advises on matters concerning the balance of payments, exchange reserves, international monetary and financial arrangements, coinage and related matters; participates in international negotiations and other meetings related to trade, finance, taxation, economic development and other subjects, and makes contributions to international financial institutions; advises on policies relating to federal-provincial fiscal and economic relations, carries on discussions with provincial authorities and administers the various statutory payments to provincial governments; administers statutes relating to guaranteed loans, the capital budgets and financing of Crown corporations and agencies.

Organization

The Department has eight branches: Fiscal Policy and Economic Analysis; Tax Policy and Legislation; Federal-Provincial Relations and Social Policy; International Trade and Finance; Economic Development Policy; Consultations and Communications; Financial Sector Policy and Administration. Each of the first seven has divisions responsible for specific policy subjects.

The Minister of Finance also reports to Parliament on the activities of the Bank of Canada, the Canadian Import Tribunal, the Tariff Board, the Department of Insurance, the Inspector General of Banks and the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation.

As well, the Minister has charge of the management and direction of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and the direction of all financial affairs of Canada not assigned by law to any other minister.

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Security Clearances

Description: This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Three years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done, after which the records are destroyed.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES AND OCEANS

Chapter 43

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES AND OCEANS

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of Fisheries and Oceans has as its primary duty the promotion and undertaking of programs designed to improve the management and sustained economic utilization of the marine and aquatic renewable resources of the nation. The departmental organization has two principal components: Fisheries Management, and Ocean Science and Surveys.

Fisheries Management is responsible for the conservation and development of the fisheries and their associated economic implications; for the promotion, assistance and conduct of research relating to the environmental, economic and social aspects of commercial and recreational fisheries and fishermen; for the operation of small craft harbours; and for the negotiation of international arrangements governing fisheries operations.

Ocean Science and Surveys is responsible for the conduct of a research program in physical, chemical and biological oceanography and limnology; for the provision of adequate, related data services to meet national and international requirements; for the promotion and support of international co-operation on the study and use of the ocean seabed and resources thereof; for the conduct of hydrographic surveys directed towards the production of navigation, resource and recreational charts; and for the systematic development and provision of knowledge of the marine environment.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

DFO/P-PU-005
Prices Support Programs

The Fisheries Prices Support Board is authorized from time to time to make deficiency payments to fishermen on specific species. When programs are approved, fishermen are invited to complete an application form requesting deficiency payments on the approved species. Application forms include: name, address, social insurance number, sealing licence number of each applicant and the volume and value of the approved species sold during a given period. Currently there are no approved programs for species other than seal. This information is compiled to make deficiency payments on seal pelts because of depressed market prices for seal skins. The retention and disposal standards are to be established.

DFO/P-PU-010
Atlantic Commercial Fishing Licence Database

The bank contains an alphabetical listing of Atlantic commercial fishermen with complete licensing and fishing vessel profiles for each. The data are supplied to the Department by fishermen on their licence application forms. The key data elements are name, address, social insurance number, homeport, fishing category (full-time or part-time), fees paid, vessel name, vessel specifications and licence entitlements. The data are used in developing fishing plans and in producing a list of commercial fishermen and fishing vessels available to the public. The purpose of this bank is to contribute to the process of establishing annual fishing plans and to respond to requests for information under the Access to Information Act. Retention standards are to be established.

DFO/P-PU-015
Fishing Vessel Insurance Plan — Insured Vessels

The purpose of this bank is to determine whether applicants are eligible to have their vessels insured under the plan; to record details of insured vessels and all other necessary data on premiums, indemnities and claims made against the plan. The bank contains names and address of owners of insured vessels; descriptions of insured vessels; and details of premiums paid and indemnities paid. The records are retained for 15 years and then destroyed.

DFO/P-PU-020
Manuscript Reviews

The data bank contains a list of qualified referees (specialists in a variety of disciplines), and records the receipt, review and appraisal of manuscripts selected for publication or rejection. The purpose of this bank is to record receipt, review and appraisal of manuscripts selected for publication or rejection, and to maintain a list of qualified referees. Retention standards are to be established.

DFO/P-PU-025
Fisheries and Oceans Science Subvention Program

The primary use of the bank is to record receipts and decisions concerning applications for grants. It contains personal and professional histories supplied by applicants, evaluations of proposals and ongoing assessments of project success, relevance and the desirability of continued support prepared by departmental liaison officers. Basic project data is supplied to Statistics Canada and the National Research Council for statistical analyses. The files are required to properly administer the granting of funds for individuals. Information is disclosed to reviewers and members of the Review Committee. Successful applications have name, university, project award and liaison officer disclosed in an annual publication. Retention standards are to be established.

DFO/P-PU-030
Fishing Vessel Assistance Program Applicants

The bank contains the name and address of applicants; a description of vessels assisted; the amounts of subsidies approved; and a description of vessels replaced. Information relates to fishermen who apply for assistance under the program. The purpose of this bank is to determine whether applicants are eligible to receive assistance. The records are retained for ten years and then destroyed.

DFO/P-PU-035
Fisheries Improvement Loan Information

The bank contains individual loan files on borrowers with defaulted outstanding loans that have been guaranteed under the program. Information relates to fishermen with loans guaranteed by the federal government. The purpose of the bank is to administer the Fisheries Improvement Loans Program and to safeguard the interest of the Crown by collecting debts still outstanding.

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES AND OCEANS

Fish Health Officials

The bank contains personal files with information submitted in support of applications for recognition as Fish Health Officials under the Fish Health Protection Regulations. Applicants include federal and provincial government employees as well as persons in the private sector in Canada, and from other countries. The bank also contains lists with names, addresses, and specimen signatures of Fish Health Officials. Based on the information provided by individuals, and personal references obtained from third parties, decisions are made whether to accept or reject applicants requesting recognition as Fish Health Officials. Lists of recognized Fish Health Officials are prepared, with specimen signatures. Lists with individual specimen signatures of Fish Health Officials are sent to Local Fish Health Officers (LFHO's) who administer the Fish Health Protection Regulations in each province/region of Canada. LFHO's use the lists to verify signatures on Fish Health Certificates that are required before import permits can be issued for importation or transfer between provinces of cultured salmonid fish. The bank relates to professionals with specific education and experience in fish disease diagnostics.

Personal files of Fish Health Officials (FHO's) and master copies of lists of FHO's will be held in a central registry in the Fisheries Research Directorate. FHO files will be destroyed five years after cancellation as an FHO.

DFO/P-PU-045

Requests for Oceanographic Data

This bank contains data concerning requests for services and information. Information relates to government departments, universities, consultants, general public, construction firms, publishing houses and regional offices. The bank is used as a measure of services to the public, to evaluate the type of service required by users, and to trace requests when necessary.

DFO/P-PU-055

Catch and Effort Data

The Department collects "Catch and Effort Data" through fish sales slips and fishing logbooks from commercial fish buyers and vessel skippers. The information identifies individual vessel and commercial buyer, species sold/purchased, amount paid, area of catch and fishing effort where applicable, on a trip by trip basis. The Department's catch and effort data system is a decentralized one operated in five coastal regional offices. Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation and Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources are responsible for catch statistics on inland fisheries in Prairie Provinces (including N.W.T.) and Ontario, respectively. Information in this bank relates to commercial fish buyers and vessel owners/skippers. The catch and effort data are used by the Department primarily for fish stock assessment purposes. These data are also needed for economic analyses and program evaluations of various segments of the fisheries. In all the above areas, the information is presented in an aggregated form such that an individual cannot be identified. Information in this bank will be held indefinitely due to the historical value of the information.

DFO/P-PU-060

DFO Violations

The bank contains statistical data on individuals/companies plus detailed information of offences committed under Canadian fisheries legislation. The information in this bank relates to individuals with or without a fisherman's licence and companies. The bank is used for enforcement action with respect to violations of Canadian fisheries legislation. The information is also used to compile various statistics to determine compliance and surveillance levels, to have an historical data base to help identify problem areas for planning purposes and for use in court proceedings. The length of retention is to be established with Departmental Records Manager and National Archives.

DFO/P-PU-065

Real Property Records

This bank contains leases, licences & agreements issued in accordance with the Fishing and Recreational Harbours Act & Regulations, for the occupancy and use of harbour property. Names, addresses, description of property, length of term, rental and other considerations are included. The information contained in this bank relates to provincial governments, municipalities, commercial entities and private individuals. The information in the bank is used for administrative purposes, to ensure controlled use of harbour property, accounting records and audit purposes. Records are retained in accordance with departmental records management and the National Archives.

DFO/P-PU-070

Harbour Managers

This bank contains information on Harbour Managers appointed by the Minister. File on each Harbour Manager contains information as to name, address, education, social insurance number, experience and references. It also contains information as to the date of appointment (and cancellation) and remuneration for services performed. Note: With the exception of 30 PY's in the Pacific Region, Harbour Managers receive remuneration based on a percentage of the revenue collected at the harbour. This information relates to Harbour Managers, appointed by the Minister, in accordance with the Fishing and Recreational Harbours Act. Active and historic information from this bank is required for administration purposes. Harbour Managers are also designated as Enforcement Officers, in accordance with the Act. They provide on-site management, collect revenue and enforce the Act and Regulations. The information is used for audit purposes and occasionally for Court action, resulting from clients disobeying directions or not paying for berthing or other services. The retention and disposal information in this bank is to be determined with departmental records management and the National Archives.

DFO/P-PU-075

Surveys

From time to time, surveys are carried out by the Department to obtain information. These surveys include such subjects as costs and earnings data for fishing enterprises (Newfoundland), a tidal diary sports fishing survey of sports fishermen (Pacific region) and surveys of clients of departmental programs for program evaluation purposes. Other similar surveys may occur as the need arises. Information in this bank relates to clients of departmental programs and sports fishermen. The information is compiled to provide the department with the statistical or economic information it requires to manage its programs effectively. Much of this data is published in a statistical format, with all personal identifiers removed. For example, Newfoundland region publishes annually its "Costs and Earnings" Survey; and the Pacific region publishes the "Recreational Mail Surveys". The length of retention varies for each survey.

DFO/P-PU-080

Requests Made Under the Access to Information and Privacy Acts

Description: This bank contains request forms sent by individuals to the Department under the Access to Information Act and Privacy

Act. The bank also contains replies made to such requests, and all records related to the processing of these requests, including, if applicable, exemptions claimed, intervention of third parties, complaints received and reports and recommendations of the Information on Privacy Commissioners.

Class of Individuals: All applicants, under the Access to Information or Privacy Act, for information controlled by the Department of Fisheries and Oceans.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to store information about requests made under the Access to Information Act or Privacy Act.

Consistent Uses: Compiling statistics relating to the administration of the Acts.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last administrative action. (Note: This retention period has not yet been definitively established by National Archives.)

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

DFO/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Records
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and forcorrespondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of léave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

DFO/P-SE-918

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

DEPARTMENT OF INDIAN AFFAIRS AND NORTHERN DEVELOPMENT

Chapter 44

DEPARTMENT OF INDIAN AFFAIRS AND NORTHERN DEVELOPMENT

Overall Responsibilities

The department was established under Section 15 of the Government Organization Act, 1966, now the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development Act (RSC 1970 c. I-7, as amended). The department is, in effect, an amalgamation of the responsibilities of the then Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources, and the then Department of Citizenship and Immigration pertaining to Indian people in Canada.

The federal government's legislative responsibilities for Indian and Inuit derive from Section 91 (24) of the Constitution Act (1867) which gives the federal government the exclusive authority to pass laws relating to "Indians, and lands reserved for Indians". On the basis of this authority, the Indian Act, which remains the major expression of federal jurisdiction in this area, was passed and a series of treaties was concluded between Canada and various Indian bands across the country. Federal jurisdiction for Indian people under the B.N.A. Act was subsequently (in 1939) interpreted by the courts to apply to Inuit as well.

Within this legislative framework, the department has a number of interlocking responsibilities and objectives: to initiate, encourage and support measures that will respond to the needs and aspirations of Indian people and Inuit, and that will improve their social, cultural and economic well-being; to encourage the orderly economic and political development of the Northwest and Yukon Territories, and to co-ordinate all federal activities in the two territories; to ensure that lawful obligations to Indian people are met and to settle native claims relating to traditional native use and occupancy of land in those areas of Canada where this traditional use has not been extinguished by treaty or superseded by law.

Organization

The organizational structure of the department is divided into six operative program areas: Self-Government; Economic Development; Indian Services; Lands, Revenues and Trusts; Northern Affairs; and Administration.

Access Procedures

The department encourages requestors to utilize the present lines of communication and to request personal information through informal channels. The intent is to make available as much information as possible through informal channels. Therefore enquiries for personal information should be made directly, where possible, to the departmental office having control of the record(s) concerned. For further information contact the departmental or regional co-ordinator.

If the formal access route is used, requestors should complete a Request for Access to Records Form available at national headquarters, regional and district offices. The completed form for national or regional data banks should be forwarded to the Regional Privacy Co-ordinator for your area, and to headquarters for data banks which are only located at headquarters. If you have any problems in identifying the location, the application should be forwarded to the Departmental Privacy Co-ordinator.

Workforce Adjustment Program

The bank contains personal information on employees that are entitled to a staffing priority as defined in the Public Service Employment Act, as well as those employees given an administrative priority by the Public Service Commission. The bank consists of education, work history, training and development, geographical work location preference in Canada, willingness to accept lower level positions and personal address. The social insurance number may be used to identify employees. This information is collected by means of questionnaires, interviews or requested resumés of the employees' work history. This personal information relates to Departmental employees. The bank provides documentation to the personnel function to facilitate the placement of these employees currently enjoying a staffing priority within the federal public service across Canada. The bank is also used to support decisions to place priority employees to positions within the department or other government departments and/or agencies. Records are retained for three years.

STANDARD BANKS

INA/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

Classes of Personal Information

Practically all records held by the Department consist of information relating to supervised financial institutions and pension plans. Some personal information may also be accumulated by the Department in the course of conducting its supervisory function, such as information on names and functions of various company officials, information on individuals seeking to incorporate a new company that would be supervised by the Department, or information about a policy holder with a complaint against a supervised company. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the company, the individual, and the particular circumstances involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Part I of the Excise Tax Act imposes a tax on certain property and casualty insurance premiums related to insurance, placed by residents of Canada with unauthorized insurers or with authorized insurers through brokers outside Canada. In carrying out administration of Part I of the Act, some personal information may be accumulated which is not part of the specific personal information bank described in this entry. Most of the insured subject to the tax are corporations, but for any given year there may also be some individuals subject to tax. The personal information accumulated with respect to such individuals would be information related to insurance premiums subject to tax, such as policy number, description of risk, net premiums and name of insurer. The information is normally retrievable if the name of the individual and the year involved are provided.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

INS/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

INS/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Chapter 46

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of Justice was created by the Department of Justice Act, passed at the first session of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, and assented to on May 22, 1868. This Act outlined the responsibilities of the Minister of Justice and the Attorney General of Canada and, with a few exceptions, these responsibilities have remained substantially unchanged since the Act was first passed.

The work of the Department consists of litigation, provision of legal advice and opinions to the federal government of Canada on a very wide range of matters, and the drafting of legislation, contracts and other legal documents. The Department is also concerned with the legal aspects of developing government policy, and prepares recommendations or reviews recommendations, for reform of the law. To carry out these responsibilities, the Department uses federal Statutes and Regulations.

In addition, contributions are made to provide financial assistance to organizations conducting studies and legal research and to other law-related programs. A limited number of grants is made in connection with legal education, and cost-sharing agreements are entered into with provincial governments in connection with compensation of victims of violent crimes, Legal Aid in criminal cases, unified family court pilot projects, and native courtworker programs.

The role of the Federal Department of Justice does not include the provision of legal services or advice to members of the public.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

JUS/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

JUS/P-SE-902
Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 001662

JUS/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 001663

JUS/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

LAB/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

LAB/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Description: This bank contains a Certification Document of Understanding for Public Office Holders; Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities in accordance with CFAO 19-37; and may contain investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual conflicts between the private interests or holdings of a member and the member's official duties and responsibilities. Records are accessible by providing; name, social insurance number and rank.

Class of Individuals: Military members of the Canadian Forces.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information required to implement the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for Public Office Holders within the Canadian Forces, and to record potential conflicts of interest and their resolution and/or any post-employment compliance action.

Consistent Uses: The information in this bank is used to resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. It also enables designated officials to determine whether a former member to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public office holder's ability to deal with the former member.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by this department for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

STANDARD BANKS

DND/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of 70, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance.

This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

DND/P-SE-918
Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

Technical Support Files

This bank records the levels of various heavy metals in blood, hair, urine, and so on of individuals exposed. Data content includes test results for a wide variety of environmental and occupational hazards such as dust, mercury, cadmium, arsenic and lead. Exposed native populations and federal government employees are identified. The bank is used to monitor the health of and keep records for exposed individuals. Information is retained for ten years. Upon expiry of the retention period the technical support files are either destroyed or transferred on selective retention to the National Archives where they are retained permanently. Enquiries from native persons should provide a band number, if applicable; and all enquirers involved in contaminant studies should provide their date of birth, community where resident and community where tested.

Immigration

NHW/P-PU-010
Immigration Medical Records

This information bank includes chest X-rays for TB screening; original records of medical examination findings for determining medical admissibility of a prospective immigrant; reports concerning medical examinations, medical history and hospital admissions; cumulative records of totals by month and year of number of persons examined; and a summary of examination results. The bank is used to determine the medical status of immigrants. Otherwise, its use is restricted to providing the person's physician with supportive individual records in the bank, with the person's consent, and to providing information to any level of government in the interest of Canadian public health. Persons who were given the immigration medical outside Canada, or in Saskatchewan, or in the Ottawa-Hull area should address enquiries to the Regional Director, Overseas and National Capital Region; all others to the Regional Director nearest to the place where they were medically examined. (as accurate as possible) and place of the immigration medical examination should be provided as well as the location of the Canadian Immigration Office that issued the visa. Records are retained according to the various assessment categories. Upon expiry of the retention period the medical files are either destroyed or transferred on selective retention to the National Archives where they are retained permanently.

Indian Health

NHW/P-PU-015
Federal Hospital Files

The Department operates several hospitals in Canada to provide direct hospital care for the Indian and Inuit population of Canada as well as for the population in the north. Each hospital maintains a medical records department responsible for the collective records maintained on patients of the hospital. Records may be used, as well, for epidemiological studies. The patient file includes admission and separation records, medical history, lab., X-ray, and other diagnostic services, requisitions and reports, doctor's orders, nursing notes, accounting statements, operating room reports, social services, pharmacy, and other patient treatment and services records. The records are accessible through the hospital administration or superintendent. Records are retained for 25 years after the last entry in the file, provided that before such records are destroyed, a case summary will be made and retained for two years after death. The name and date, and location of the hospital where treatment was given are to be provided on the Record Access Request Form. Information is exchanged with provincial health facilities, provincial medical insurance plans, and municipal and provincial health and welfare agencies.

NHW/P-PU-020
Federal Nursing Stations and Health Centres Files

The Department operates a large number of nursing stations and health centres in Canada, many of which are in remote areas. These facilities are staffed by nurses and offer basic treatment and preventive nursing services to the local Indian and Inuit population and others. Their patient records identify their patients and provide basic reporting on the medical reason for receiving care and the nursing care procedures provided. There are over 200 such facilities in Canada. Records are retained for 25 years after the last entry on the file, provided that before such records are destroyed, a case summary is made and retained for two years after death. Record Access Request Forms should include identification of the nursing station or health centre, and date when treatment was received. Information is exchanged with provincial health facilities, provincial medical insurance plans, and municipal and provincial health and welfare agencies.

Prosthetic Medical Records

The Department operates eight prosthetic services centres in Canada to provide direct prosthetic-orthotic rehabilitation services to the population of Canada. This bank contains the medical records of patients receiving prosthetic-orthotic services from these centres. Each centre maintains a patient's record identifying the patient, notes on patient's medical history, physicians' prescriptions, services and appliances provided, and progress notes on patients. The primary use is to maintain information on the prosthetic-orthotic condition of the patient. Persons seeking access should indicate the location of the departmental centre at which they first received service. As Prosthetic Services are no longer provided by the Department, records in this bank will be maintained for two years or until such time as the service is transferred to provincial control.

NHW/P-PU-030
Prosthetic Accounting Records

This bank contains the accounting records of patients who have received prosthetic-orthotic services from one of the prosthetic services centres operated by the Department and information on collection of accounts due. Each record identifies the patient, the services and appliances provided, and the status of his or her account. The primary use is financial control of the services, including collections on accounts receivable. As Prosthetic Services are no longer provided by the Department, records in this bank will be maintained for two years or until such time as the service is transferred to provincial control.

Environmental and Occupational Chemical Exposures

This bank consists of information on the health effects of exposure to hazardous chemicals and what precautions to take in dealing with them. Records are kept on an individual basis and include personal identifying information and results of appropriate biological tests. The data are collected from populations exposed to or suspected of being exposed to chemicals of a toxic, carcinogenic, or otherwise hazardous nature (e.g., pesticide workers, female workers, pregnant workers in metallurgical industries, urban populations and smokers). Records include returned questionnaires and the results of medical examinations, blood and urine tests, pulmonary function tests and nerve conduction tests. The information in this bank is used to increase individual awareness of exposure risks and precautionary measures, to increase employer awareness of risks and improvements for health and safety programs, and to indicate to the government current exposure risks and needs for future research and standard setting. Information is retained for five years after completion of the study.

NHW/P-PU-265
Child Acute Respiratory Effects Study
Description: This bank contains information on the respiratory illnesses and pulmonary function measures and the ages of 100 females aged 7 to 15 years attending a girl guide camp (Camp Kiawa) in July and August of 1986. Parental smoking habits, education and other home characteristics were collected. Allergy test and heart rate monitoring results are also recorded.
Class of Individuals: Girls aged 7 to 15 years who attended Camp Kiawa from July 1 to August 10, 1986.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to examine the relationship between transported air pollution and respiratory health in children.
Consistent Uses: There will be no disclosure of any personal information from this data bank. Only summary statistics and conclusions drawn from the study will be publicly disclosed. There will be no linking and matching of information in this data bank with any other information or data bank presently existing.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Information will never be destroyed.

Record of Researchers

This bank provides a list of persons authorized to use, and who are using, narcotic, controlled and restricted drugs in research work. It is primarily concerned with scientists and medical and paramedical professionals. The bank is used to ensure that persons using narcotic, controlled and restricted drugs for research purposes have been authorized to do so. Records in individual cases are held for ten years.

NHW/P-PU-045
Purchase Records of Hospitals, Licensed Pharmaceutical Companies, and Provincially Registered Practitioners and Pharmacists

This bank contains purchase records of narcotics and controlled drugs made by licensed pharmaceutical companies and hospitals as well as currently registered practitioners and pharmacists who are entitled to purchase and/or prescribe narcotic and controlled drugs under the Narcotic Control Act and Food and Drugs Act. This bank is used to ensure that licensed narcotic and controlled drugs dealers supply narcotic and controlled drugs only to authorized persons; it is also used to monitor and assess purchases of narcotic and controlled drugs made by pharmacists, physicians, dentists, veterinarians, hospitals and licensed pharmaceutical companies. Records in individual cases are held for two years for pharmacy sales reports and for three years for licensed dealers sales reports. Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions.

NHW/P-PU-050

Practitioner and Pharmacist Files

This bank contains information concerning the prescription, utilization and distribution of narcotic and controlled drugs by practitioners and pharmacists. It is used in connection with drug control programs to ensure that narcotic and controlled drugs are used for legitimate medical purposes and are not diverted to illicit avenues; and it contains reports prepared by Drugs Directorate inspectors and enforcement agencies concerning the misuse and abuse of drugs by health professionals, and investigations with respect to such diversion. It is also used as a basis to make decisions concerning notifications to pharmacists and licensed narcotic and controlled drug dealers not to supply narcotic and/or controlled drugs on the strength of orders issued by certain pharmacists and orders and prescriptions issued by certain practitioners. It also serves as a basis for decisions concerning prosecution action relating to health professionals. Practitioner and pharmacist files are kept two years after death of the registrant or ten years after the last correspondence. Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions.

NHW/P-PU-055

Drug Investigation (Users and Distribution) Files

This bank contains information on people investigated under the Narcotic Control Act and Regulations, and the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations. It consists of reports prepared by police departments, the Department of Justice, the Department of the Solicitor General, Crown counsel and lawyers, on investigations concerning persons involved in illicit drug use and distribution. It also consists of information received as a result of the monitoring of drug importation, manufacture, distribution and prescription. It includes the following personal information: name, address, date of birth, fingerprints, sex, occupation, drug involvement, and details of the investigation, arrest and case disposition, details of drugs, things, and assets seized and their disposition. The purpose of this bank is to ensure that the use of narcotic and controlled drugs is limited exclusively to medical and scientific purposes, to prevent diversion of those drugs to other uses and to facilitate administration of asset disposal. The information in the bank is used:

- in making decisions in enforcing the regulations concerning the prescribing and dispensing of narcotic and controlled drugs by practitioners and pharmacists and the receipt and use of such drugs by individuals;
- in making decisions in connection with the disposition of drugs and things (including money, conveyances and other assets) seized under the authority of the Narcotic Control Act and Food and Drugs Act;
- to prepare statistics (drug use and conviction) for health planning purposes, on drug use in Canada and in the preparation of the annual report required by the United Nations Narcotic Commission.

In addition to the requirements indicated on the Record Access Request Form, requestors must provide their full name, date of birth and place of birth. In cases where the information is deemed to be of a sensitive nature, enquirers will be required to provide appropriate identifying information about themselves at the time of access to ensure the personal information relates to them and not to another person of similar name and description. Cannabis cases, where assets or other drugs are seized, are kept five years from date of final disposition or last correspondence, whichever is later. Cannabis cases with international implications which are reported to the United Nations are kept until a final report is submitted to that organization. Such reports are kept for two years after the last action taken. Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions. Offence reports dealing with cannabis-only offences, where no assets are seized, are kept for only two months, or until the information has been extracted on a depersonalized basis and recorded for statistical purposes. Reports are then destroyed. This information is not used for any administrative purpose, and is not retrievable by the name of the individual.

NHW/P-PU-060

Methadone Program

This bank contains the names and addresses of practitioners authorized to purchase, prescribe or dispense methadone. It is used to monitor those physician practices where methadone is administered, including the treatment of narcotic addicts, and to develop a profile of narcotic addiction treatment in Canada. Practitioner files are kept two years after the death of a doctor; five years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is no history of drug-related problems; and ten years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is a history of drug-related problems. Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions.

NHW/P-PU-065

Amphetamine Control

The purpose of this bank is to regulate the non-approved uses of a restricted class of drugs. It contains diagnostic and other information from physicians on the perceived medical needs for designated amphetamines. Only patients for whom designated amphetamines have been prescribed for non-listed conditions are included. The bank is part of the monitoring of the use of this class of drugs in conformity with the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations. Practitioner files are kept two years after the death of a doctor; five years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is no history of drug-related problems; and ten years after the last correspondence or last record of registration if there is a history of drug-related problems. Information from this bank may be released to provincial licensing authorities of the health professions.

National Dose Registry for Occupational Exposures

Description: The purpose of the bank is to keep records for individuals whose occupational exposures have been monitored. It currently includes information on occupational exposures to radiation. Records are kept on an individual basis and include, in addition to personal identifying information, cumulative radiation exposures and a record-by-record account of the entries into the Registry. Exposure records are input from the National Dosimetry Service and from organizations that have their own radiation monitoring programs. The Registry is designed and used primarily for epidemiological and informational purposes. It is also used to advise the individual, his or her employer and the appropriate regulatory authorities when the record shows that the maximum permissible dose has been exceeded, or is about to be exceeded, as described in relevant provincial Acts, the Canada Labour Safety Code or Treasury Board recommendations for federal employees, and the Atomic Energy Control Act. Records are retrieved by social insurance number (SIN) and are kept for 80 years. Persons requesting records should include their SIN on their request form.

Class of Individuals: Occupationally exposed radiation workers.

Purpose: To keep records for individuals whose occupational radiation exposure has been monitored. The records are used for epidemiological and statistical studies, informational purposes, and in support of the regulatory control of occupational radiation exposures.

Consistent Uses: Information is supplied to federal and provincial authorities responsible for the control of occupational radiation exposure and upon request to the Workers' Compensation Board in relation to a compensation claim. Information may be given to a third party upon authorization from the individual.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Kept for 80 years.

Income Security Programs Branch

The objective of the branch is to maintain and improve the social security of Canadians. The Assistant Deputy Minister, supported by Finance and Administration, directs three major components: the Programs Policy, Appeals and Legislation Directorate, the Programs Operations Directorate, the Income Security Programs Systems Directorate and the International Liaison Directorate.

Programs Policy, Appeals and Legislation

This directorate, through three divisions, is responsible for ongoing Old Age Security, Family Allowances and Canada Pension Plan legislative reviews and updates; for related policy planning and development; for the application of legislation and the administration of appeals; for the review and analysis of information programs. An additional responsibility is the secretariat service provided to the Canada Pension Plan Advisory Committee.

Programs Operations Directorate

This directorate, through four divisions and a network of regional offices and client service centres, is responsible for the administration of the Income Security Programs. A brief description of the programs follows:

The Canada Pension Plan: a compulsory, contributory social insurance program that provides members of the Canadian labour force with a basic level of protection for themselves and their families against the loss of income due to retirement, disability or death.

The Old Age Security Program: provides a basic level of income for older Canadians through a pension which is supplemented by the income-tested Guaranteed Income Supplement for pensioners who have little or no other income as well as an income-tested Spouse's Allowance for spouses, aged 60 to 65, of pensioners already in receipt of the Guaranteed Income Supplement.

The Canada Pension Plan and Old Age Security Act also provide, in accordance with international social security agreements, for the payment of benefits under the above-mentioned programs.

The Family Allowances Program: supplements the income of families with dependent children in order to help meet the additional costs associated with raising children. It also provides for the payment of an allowance to welfare and government agencies and other institutions which maintain children.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL HEALTH AND WELFARE

Income Security Programs — Systems Directorate

This directorate is responsible for the improvement of the benefit delivery systems of the Old Age Security, the Canada Pension Plan and the Family Allowances programs. This includes the co-ordination and the integration of the three programs, the overseeing of changes to equipment, systems and procedures, all designed to improve and streamline service to clientele.

Personal Information Banks

Personal information collected by the Income Security Programs Branch in the course of the administration of the Canada Pension Plan, the Old Age Security Act and Family Allowances Act is contained in personal information banks maintained in the regions and at headquarters in Ottawa. The access procedures and the description of each personal information are provided below.

Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employes files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

RCC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Records

Description. This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, the onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

This bank contains information relating to financial transactions of individuals, including names and addresses. It is used to assist in audit, investigative and other compliance actions taken under the Income Tax Act. The purpose is to (1) detect non-filers of income tax and information returns and (2) confirm the correctness of reported taxable income. The information includes publicly available data obtained from federal, provincial and municipal governments, such as lists of shipping, Canadian civil aircraft registrations, municipal building permits, business licences, business and city directories. It also includes information on some federal government subsidy and incentive programs, as well as information obtained in confidence from a variety of other sources in the public sector, such as marketing and distribution boards, colleges, and school boards. Some information is also obtained from the business and commercial sector regarding the purchase of goods and services, such as delivery of raw materials, removal of waste products, provision of security services and free-lance professional and administrative services. When the information described above is first collected, it is included in the Class of Personal Information described subsequently in this part of the Personal Information Index. Once organized for a compliance action, this personal information becomes part of this bank and is normally retrievable by name and other personal identifier. Some of the information in this bank may subsequently be transferred to other established personal information banks. Access will not be permitted without the necessary authority and/or adequate proof of identification including a social insurance number and signature. The retention period varies according to the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Taxation Rapid Information

This bank contains selected data from the taxpayer master file and the centralized accounting and collections master file, e.g. identification, filing, assessment, refund data and amount, and tax accounting transactions and collection data. Coverage is restricted to individual taxpayers. The purpose of this bank is to provide on-line access from district offices to individual taxpayers' computer records of their tax assessment, accounting and/or collection data. The principal use of this bank is to provide immediate responses to taxpayer enquiries received at any district taxation office. Access will not be permitted without adequate proof of identification, including social insurance number and/or authority. New rapid files are created every calendar year and updated as activity occurs in the "parent" files. Where the new file is created the old file is destroyed.

RCT/P-PU-050
Taxation Record of Individual Tax Accounts
Description: The information bank consists of computer generated printouts which detail the information contained in the centralized individual accounting and collection system computer file. The printouts are used by collection officers in their duties of enforcing compliance of payment of taxes by delinquent taxpayers in those cases where the accounts have been referred to district offices and regional processing centres for possible legal action. Collection officers note details of investigative actions taken and/or planned, based on information gathered from audits, third parties, legal opinions, court actions, personal contact, etc. In cases where such information is voluminous, or necessarily includes the retention of documents, the printout information may be supplemented with a collection file or docket. Information pertaining to a taxpayer's indebtedness is supplied to the taxpayer's debtors and the courts to facilitate attachment. Access to printouts will be permitted when there is adequate proof of identification, including social insurance number, signature and/or authority.
Class of Individuals: Delinquent taxpayers.
Purpose: The purpose of the bank is to maintain records which detail the information contained in the centralized individual Accounting and Collection System computer file. This information is used by Collection Officers in their duties of enforcing compliance of payment of taxes in cases where the accounts have been referred to district offices and regional processing centres for possible legal action. Information pertaining to a taxpayer's indebtedness is supplied to the taxpayer's debtors and the court to facilitate attachment. In cases where such information is voluminous, or necessarily includes the retention of documents, the printout information may be supplemented with a collection file or docket.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Account printouts and related collection files, if any, are destroyed two years after the account is paid in full.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at Headquarters and in the regions.

RCT/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks.

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL REVENUE (TAXATION)

The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

Chapter 52

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

Background

Public Works Canada was established in 1867 by an Act respecting the Public Works of Canada (SC 1867-68 c.12). Before that time, public works were carried on in the Province of Canada by the Commissioner of Public Works who controlled canals, works in navigable waters, harbours, lighthouses, beacons and buoys, slides and booms, roads and bridges, public buildings and provincial vessels.

Overall Responsibilities

The objective of Public Works Canada is to manage real property (land, buildings, roads, highways, bridges and marine works) for the Government of Canada, and to provide design, construction and realty services to government institutions, departments and agencies, while contributing to the government's wider social, economic and environmental objectives relative to real property.

The Department's activities have been structured into five programs as follows:

The Services Program fulfills the common service role to provide a wide range of professional and technical services in the fields of architecture, engineering and realty required by the Government and includes the management and administrative services required by the Department.

The Accommodation Program fulfills the custodian service role to provide the full range of office and other forms of accommodation space required to support the operations of Government.

The Government Realty Assets Support Program provides a central capability for the Government to achieve wider social, economic and environmental objectives related to real property.

The Marine Transportation and Related Engineering Works Program provides specific locks, dams and dry docks services and related infrastructure to facilitate marine transportation and related economic and social development goals.

The Land Transportation and Other Engineering Works Program provides certain highways, bridges and other engineering works to facilitate land transportation and related economic and social development goals.

Organization

Public Works Canada is a highly decentralized department delivering services to other federal government departments from six regional offices. There are also several district offices located in each region which provide local service to the Department's clients and the public. The regional offices are located in Halifax (Atlantic Region); Montréal (Québec Region); Hull (National Capital Region); Toronto (Ontario Region); Edmonton (Western Region); and Vancouver (Pacific Region). They carry out the Department's program delivery responsibilities and services in the area of Planning, Property Administration, Real Estate Services, Contract Policy and Administration, Design and Construction, and Finance and Administration.

Classes of Personal Information

Project Records

In carrying out its mandate, the Department generates and receives a large volume of information and correspondence related to work projects. These projects include property acquisition, disposal, expropriation and management; building, highway and marine construction, repair and demolition; dredging services and fleet management; and the provision of associated research, development and consulting services.

Included in this material are often found the personal views and opinions of individuals; evaluations of contractors' and consultants' performance; financial information relating to the management of projects; and any other correspondence associated with specific projects. The retention periods associated with this class of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Project records are organized by location. Consequently, access to personal information in project records requires the individual to provide the location of a specific project as well as the nature of the project.

General Operational Records

The Department maintains, in addition to specific project records, general files associated with its operational activities. Occasionally, personal opinions expressed by individuals are maintained on these general records. Access to these records requires the requestor to identify, in sufficient detail, the subject of the information to which he/she wishes access.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

PWC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of the National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

TBS Registration Number: 000715

PWC/P-SE-902
Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 000716

PWC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 000717

PWC/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development

Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.
Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 000719

PWC/P-SE-906

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

PWC/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Labour Force Tracking Surveys — 1977 and 1978
Description: This database contains information obtained as a result of two special surveys undertaken in the summers of 1977 and 1978. The surveys were designed to collect data on the employment history of individuals experiencing layoffs from declining sectors. The information collected includes data on the respondents' demographic characteristics, income, education and skill levels. The information is arranged by year of survey, with identification by social insurance number.
Class of Individuals: Individuals who experienced layoffs from selected employers, in selected communities across Canada.
Purpose: The Labour Force Tracking Surveys were undertaken as a result of the Department's mandate to examine the labour adjustment problems which workers employed in declining sectors faced. The information gathered from the surveys has only been used for analytical and policy making purposes, the drafting of statistical reports and econometric model development. Because of the historic nature of the data, it is no longer in active use, although there is continued interest in results of analysis.
Consistent Uses: Since the surveys were a joint project with the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission, aggregated data has been shared with that Department for research purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained for 10 years and then transferred to National Archives of Canada.

Classes of Personal Information

Enterprise/Industrial Development and Assistance

The Department and its predecessor departments have administered a number of enterprise/industrial development and assistance programs. These programs have been aimed at encouraging enterprise and industrial development in a wide variety of ways. Personal information may be collected in the course of these departmental activities. Programs and activities which may have involved the storage of personal information include the Industrial and Regional Development Program, the Regional Development Incentives Program, the Enterprise Development Program, the Tourism Destination Program, the Tourism Incentives Program, the Industry and Labour Adjustment Program, the Support for Technology Enhanced Productivity Program, the Program for Export Market Development, the Canadian Industrial Renewal Board Program, the Defence Industry Productivity Program, the Pharmaceutical Industrial Development Assistance Program, the Credit Reinsurance Program, the Shipbuilding Industry Assistance Program, the Small Business Loans Act Program, the Advanced Technology Program — Waterloo Centre for Process Development, the Small Business Investments Grants, the Government Procurement Projects, the Industry Energy Research and Development Program, the Major Crown Projects, the Machinery Program, the Native Economic Development Program, TIEM Inc. and the Western Transportation Industrial Development Program.

Personal information may include particulars such as the names, addresses, social insurance numbers, financial interests, management capabilities, employment histories, remuneration, age, health, marital status and educational background of individuals. Such personal information is stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the program area, the corporate/project name, the location of a facility and the approximate date of submission/award.

General Development Agreements, Economic and Regional Development Agreements, Subsidiary Agreements and Related Initiatives

The Department has collected data needed for the administration of subsidiary agreements entered into with the provinces, consistent with the terms and conditions of general development agreements previously signed with all provinces, except Prince Edward Island, and the new economic and regional development agreements entered into with the 10 provinces. The general development agreements, which expired on March 31, 1984, established the framework for development and identified development opportunities for implementation under subsidiary agreements. A number of these subsidiary agreements continue in effect, for instance, the Canada-Alberta Subsidiary Agreement on Nutritive Processing Assistance, the Canada-British Columbia Subsidiary Agreement on Industrial Development and the Canada-Manitoba Subsidiary Agreement on Northern Development. The economic and regional development agreements, which succeed the general development agreements, provide a framework for co-operation and consultation on matters relating to economic development in each province and region. are identified, individual subsidiary agreements are formulated. These opportunities are normally unique to a province and, as a result, subsidiary agreements cover a broad range of specific programs. Examples of these agreements are the Canada-Nova Scotia Subsidiary Agreement on the Strait of Canso Area Development, the Canada-Saskatchewan Subsidiary Agreement on Advanced Technology and the Canada-New Brunswick Subsidiary Agreement on Transportation Development.

Personal information may be stored in administering a number of subsidiary agreements. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided such as the name of the project or program that may be related thereto and the approximate date of submission/award.

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. for example, federal-provincial agreements such as those under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA) are concerned with rural problems of unemployment and social disadvantages. Special ARDA agreements have been used as a vehicle to improve the economic circumstances of native people by providing financial and other assistance to create job opportunities. In addition, a $345 million Native Economic Development Program has been created to increase economic self-reliance and development for Canada's native people. A 15-year development agreement, the Prince Edward Island Comprehensive Development Plan, was signed by Canada and P.E.I. in 1969, under the authority of the Fund for Rural Economic Development Act. The plan has allowed for the design and implementation of a broad range of programs to stimulate economic growth, create jobs and raise per capita income. In addition, under the Federal Development Strategy, the Department has been involved in providing further economic development activities on P.E.I. Special areas have been designated in Canada, such as the Magdalen Islands, in order to deal with special problems of economic expansion and social adjustment.

Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individuals or other personal identifier. This form of information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided, such as the name of the program concerned, the name of the specific project and the approximate date of submission/award.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

RIE/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

SSC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Official Languages
Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Occupational Safety and Health
Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Employee Assistance

Description: This bank contains information treated in a confidential fashion that is relative to an employee's involvement in an Employee Assistance Program (EAP); notice of voluntary or mandatory (supervisory work-performance related) referral; records of reference to, or reports and correspondence from a health professional or rehabilitation agency; and only non-medical interpretations concerning an employee's work capability or limitations. All personal medical data shall be maintained in a medical protected status under the control of the Medical Services Branch, National Health and Welfare. Records relating to work performance deficiencies, absenteeism and disciplinary matters are to be held in the appropriate institutional personal information bank and not held with EAP files.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary to the administration of the Employee Assistance Program. To determine the need for employee assistance counselling, referrals for medical evaluations and participation in rehabilitation programs.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions regarding employee assistance measures.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years following the date of the most recent reference to employee assistance, after which the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Incentive Awards

Description: The bank includes information on public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan. Such information may include curricula vitae, narratives in support of meritorious contributions related to their duties or practical suggestions for improvement of Public Service operations and completed recommendation reports concerning either the Merit Award or the Suggestion Award.

Class of Individuals: Public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Purpose: This information bank is used to identify individuals who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Consistent Uses: The information in this bank is used to establish precedents for awards and to provide an audit trail for the disbursements of funds.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Operational files are kept for a minimum of two years then destroyed; financial files for six years then destroyed, and precedent setting files for 25 years then destroyed.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SOLICITOR GENERAL

Chapter 55

DEPARTMENT OF THE SOLICITOR GENERAL

Background

The Department of the Solicitor General was established in 1966 when Parliament enacted the Department of the Solicitor General Act, which assigned to the Solicitor General, responsibility and accountability for the management and direction of reformatories, prisons, penitentiaries, parole, remissions, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Evolutionary additions and changes to these responsibilities resulted in the Department's reorganization into a ministry, incorporating the Secretariat, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Office of the Correctional Investigator, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Office of the Inspector General.

Overall Responsibilities

The Solicitor General discharges certain duties specifically assigned under a number of acts, notably the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Act, the Penitentiary Act, the Parole Act, the Prisons and Reformatories Act, the Immigration Act, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act, the Criminal Records Act, and the Criminal Code of Canada. In addition, the agencies of the Ministry have an operational responsibility for the discharge of functions under acts such as the Criminal Identification Act, the Diplomatic and Consular Privileges and Immunities Act, the Fugitive Offenders Act and the Migratory Birds Act, among others. Specific mandates of the Ministry's agencies are as follows.

The Secretariat provides policy analysis and development, research, consultation, liaison, co-ordination and program management services to the Solicitor General in support of his general responsibilities as a Minister of the Crown and in support of his specific responsibilities for national security, policing, corrections and release, and for certain other aspects of criminal justice.

The RCMP is responsible for the enforcement of federal statutes, provision of police services under provincial and municipal contracts, and of national police services.

The Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) is responsible for the custody of inmates, their health care, education, training and employment. It also provides inmate counselling and personal development programs and supervises parolees.

The National Parole Board (NPB) is responsible for granting or denying parole, including day parole, to inmates of federal and provincial prisons. It also rules on unescorted temporary absences for inmates of federal penitentiaries and recommends the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and the granting of pardons.

The Correctional Investigator's mandate is to investigate complaints from, or on behalf of, incarcerated persons and report upon problems identified; in essence, acting as an ombudsman, endeavouring to resolve complaints by administrative action.

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) collects, analyses and retains information and intelligence respecting activities that may on reasonable grounds be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada.

The Inspector General is responsible for the monitoring and review of the operational activities of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service.

The Office of the Correctional Investigator, the RCMP, the Correctional Service of Canada, the National Parole Board, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the Inspector General are described in greater detail elsewhere in this Index with a complete listing of the personal information banks they hold. Requests for access to personal information specifically related to these agencies should be directed to the Privacy Co-ordinator of the particular agency.

Classes of Personal Information

Secretariat Records Office

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Ministry Secretariat, personal information may be accumulated which is not contained in any of the specific personal information banks described in this entry, or the standard banks located elsewhere in the index. Such personal information exists in a fragmented form throughout some 45,000 files located in Ottawa and five other cities across Canada. The information relates to criminal justice system policy; police and law enforcement issues; and general administrative matters. Most of the information is generated internally. However, a portion comes from the general public in the form of opinions or inquiries. This information is not intended to be used for any administrative purpose affecting individuals by the Ministry Secretariat. Information may include names, addresses, profession, and is normally only retrievable if specifics are provided, e.g., project titles, dates, events, organization titles and locations.

Police and Security

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Police and Security Branch, personal information may be accumulated which is not contained in any specific personal information bank described in this entry. This information is not intended to be used for any administrative purpose affecting individuals. Such personal information may include names, addresses, and titles of positions which are contained in the general subject files where the records are not normally retrieved by personal identifiers. The personal information is normally retrieved only if specific subjects, events, dates or projects are provided.

Security Intelligence Transitional Group (SITG)

In the course of conducting the activities and programs of this planning group, personal information may be accumulated which is not contained in the specific personal information bank described in this entry, i.e. planning information on the organizational, personnel and administrative structure for the new security agency; public opinions and enquiries. This information is not intended for use in any administrative purpose affecting individuals by the Security Intelligence Transitional Group. The information may contain names, addresses, and position titles and is stored as a part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by personal identifiers. The information is only retrievable if specific subjects, dates, or events are provided.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

SGC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individuals's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

DEPARTMENT OF SUPPLY AND SERVICES

Chapter 56

DEPARTMENT OF SUPPLY AND SERVICES

Overall Responsibilities

The Department of Supply and Services is the supply and accounting arm of the government and operates under two major programs. As a common service agency, the Department, through the Supply Program, acquires and provides goods and services in support of the operational programs of other federal government departments and agencies. Its activities include requirements definition; the acquisition of goods and services of a scientific, engineering and commercial nature; maintenance and repair; printing and publishing; traffic management; advertising management; security services; expositions; warehousing and distribution; assets managements; and disposal services.

The Services Program provides a broad range of administrative, management and advisory services to the government, including the administration of the Consolidated Revenue Fund and making payments from it; maintaining the accounts of Canada; operating the public service payroll and superannuation systems; and providing optional auditing, management consulting and certain accounting services to departments and agencies. The office of the custodian is administered within this program.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

DSS/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries;

superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. Should an employee be declared part of the Employment Continuity Program (ECP), the information relating to ECP on the individual will be found in this personal information bank. Information in this bank relates to departmental employees. The information was obtained to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. Consistent uses are to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. Records are retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives of Canada. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL OF CANADA

Chapter 58

ECONOMIC COUNCIL OF CANADA

Background

The Economic Council of Canada is an independent research and advisory body established by Parliament in 1963 with broad terms of reference to study and report on a wide range of matters relating to Canada's economic development.

The Act stipulates that the Council is to advise the government on "how Canada can achieve the highest possible levels of employment and efficient production in order that the country may enjoy a high and consistent rate of economic growth and that all Canadians may share in rising living standards."

By mid-1966 the Council had developed a staff of about 100, including some 40 research officers drawn from federal and provincial departments and agencies, business firms, labour organizations, universities and international institutions. The Council itself was comprised of 28 members representing all regions of Canada and most socioeconomic interest groups, with three acting in a full-time capacity — the Chairman and two directors. The size of staff has varied over the years, with the introduction and termination of special references to the Council playing a major influence. As well, the in-house capacity of the Council to model, monitor and analyse the workings of the economy has been built up over time. The net result has been to increase the size of staff to about 133 individuals at present. Council membership currently numbers 23, including the three full-time members.

The Council has three principal functions, namely

- to conduct economic analyses and undertake studies with a view to providing a greater understanding of the workings of the Canadian economy and its prospects for the future;
- to make recommendations to government and the private sector on economic policy measures to improve Canada's economic performance;
- to educate and inform the Canadian public on economic problems and to stimulate, through the media and other forums, public discussion of policy solutions and economic strategies.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

ECC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

EXPORT DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Chapter 59

EXPORT DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Background

The Export Development Corporation was established on October 1, 1969, by the Export Development Act. The Export Development Corporation is an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada and is a Crown corporation whose shares may be owned only by Canada. It is accountable for its affairs to Parliament through the Secretary of State for External Affairs. Both the Export Development Corporation and its predecessor, the Export Credits Insurance Corporation which commenced operations in 1944, were created to facilitate and develop trade between Canada and other countries.

The Corporation achieves this through a wide range of insurance, guarantee and financing services not normally provided by the public sector.

The Export Development Corporation's services are provided to help Canadian exporters who offer products competitive in price, quality, delivery and service, to compete internationally.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Export Development Corporation (EDC), categories of personal information not used for administrative purposes affecting individuals may be accumulated. Such personal information includes, among other things, general biographies of individuals in relation to EDC's program services.

This form of personal information is retrievable if specifics are provided concerning transactions filed e.g. names of exporters, countries and projects, rather than by name of individual or other personal identifier.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

FARM CREDIT CORPORATION

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

FCC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

FEDERAL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT BANK

Chapter 61

FEDERAL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT BANK

Background

The Federal Business Development Bank (FBDB), a Crown corporation, was established by the Federal Business Development Act of 1974 to succeed the Industrial Development Bank (IDB), which was formed in 1944.

While the IDB was primarily concerned with the provision of financial assistance, the Federal Business Development Bank was created to promote and assist in the establishment and development of business enterprises in Canada by providing financial assistance, management counselling, management training, information and advice, with particular consideration to the needs of small businesses. The Bank provides small business enterprises with a single source from which both financing and information suited to their unique requirements may be obtained.

A network of branches across Canada provide the full range of the Bank's services to small businesses located in each branch territory.

PARTICULAR BANKS

BDB/P-PE-801
Employment Equity Survey
Description: This bank contains information on self-identification with regard to sex, race, ethnic origin, physical or mental handicaps, as well as data on educational background, previous work experience, career aspirations, training and development.
Class of Individuals: Permanent full-time employees; permanent part-time employees; and temporary employees.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to implement an Employment Equity Program and to prepare workforce analysis reports which are to be submitted to Treasury Board. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by designated groups status (e.g. women, aboriginal people, persons with disabilities and persons belonging to a visible minority).
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the Employment Equity Program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination and to introduce special measures (e.g. training, accommodations) to ensure that persons in designated groups are equitably represented. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes. The Social Insurance Number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank in order to obtain statistical information on employees, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are yet to be established, but these records will be retained for a period of at least three years after the year in respect of which a report is made.

STANDARD BANKS

BDB/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

GREAT LAKES PILOTAGE AUTHORITY, LIMITED

Chapter 62

GREAT LAKES PILOTAGE AUTHORITY, LIMITED

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, Limited was established and incorporated in 1972 as a subsidiary of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. It is Schedule "C", Part I Crown corporation within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Overall Responsibilities

The role and objectives of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries; all waters in the Province of Québec south of the northern entrance to St. Lambert Lock and all Canadian waters in and around the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. (Pilotage in the international waters within the boundaries is shared with United States of America Pilot Corporations, which are under the direction of the United States Coast Guard, as agreed under a memorandum of arrangements between Canada and the United States.) Further, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are to be fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

The Authority's head office is located in Cornwall, Ontario. The Eastern District Operations office is located at the headquarters in Cornwall, Ontario and the Western District Operations office is located in St. Catharines, Ontario. All management services (administrative, personnel, financial, procurement) are provided by the head office in Cornwall, Ontario.

IMMIGRATION APPEAL BOARD

Chapter 63

IMMIGRATION APPEAL BOARD

Background

The Immigration Appeal Board is an independent court established under the Immigration Act, 1976, to hear appeals made under the Act, and to consider the redetermination of claim to United Nations Convention Refugee Status. Under the Act, the Board consists of not less than seven and not more than 18 members who are appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The present Board consists of the Chairman, five vice-chairmen and 11 other members. A quorum of the Board is not less than three members, one of whom must be the Chairman or vice-chairman.

Organization

Headquartered in Ottawa, the Board has permanent regional courts in Ottawa (the National Capital Region), Montréal (Québec and the Maritimes), Toronto (Ontario) and the Vancouver (British Columbia and the Yukon). A permanent registry office is located in Winnipeg and serves the Prairies and Western Canada. The Board travels to other cities in Canada as the volume of cases warrants.

The Board is supported by an Operations Branch (Secretariat) with three regional offices.

The Board hears appeals made by permanent residents of Canada or Convention Refugees who have been ordered deported; persons holding a valid visa who are refused entry into Canada; the Minister of Employment and Immigration when he or she is not satisfied with a decision of an adjudicator which allows a person to remain in or enter Canada; Canadian citizens who have sponsored an application for landing in Canada by a member of the family class which has been refused.

Persons who have made a claim to be a Convention Refugee within the meaning of the UN Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, and whose claim has been refused by the Minister of Employment and Immigration, may apply to the Board for a redetermination of that claim.

The Board is a court of record and appeals; applications and related proceedings are heard in open court except where, at the request of one of the parties to an action, the Board in its discretion directs that the proceedings shall be in camera.

The Minister of Employment and Immigration is a party to all proceedings before the Board.

In making its decisions, the Board is bound by the legislation and the ensemble of Canadian immigration jurisprudence and relevant decisions and interpretations of higher courts; its proceedings are governed by rules of procedure and it has the powers, rights and privileges of a superior court of record.

Hearings are open to the public. The record of any proceeding before the Board is public information and access is provided by the registrar on request (except in the very few cases where the proceedings are in camera).

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part I, Schedule I. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL OF THE CANADIAN SECURITY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

Chapter 64

OFFICE OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL OF THE CANADIAN SECURITY INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

Background

The first Inspector General was appointed by the Governor in Council on April 1, 1985, pursuant to section 30 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act (the CSIS Act). For administrative purposes, the Office of the Inspector General forms part of the Secretariat of the Ministry of the Solicitor General.

Overall Responsibilities

The CSIS Act requires the Inspector General to monitor the compliance by the Service with its operational policies; to review the operational activities of the CSIS, including such reviews as the Security Intelligence Review Committee may direct; and to submit to the Solicitor General certificates stating the extent to which the Inspector General is satisfied with each report submitted by the CSIS Director under section 33 of the Act. The Inspector General must also indicate whether any act or thing done by the Service in the course of its operational activities during the period to which a report relates is, in the opinion of the Inspector General, not authorized by or under the Act, or contravenes any directions issued by the Solicitor General, or involves an unreasonable or unnecessary exercise by the CSIS of any of its powers.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

OIG/P-PU-005
Monitoring, Review and Operations (New)

The Inspector General does not administer a personal information collection program. In the course of the Inspector General's statutory responsibilities, the Inspector General may incidentally accumulate information which is not contained in any of the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information has been collected by the CSIS, and forms part of the Service's records. It relates to specific activities of the CSIS from time to time under review by the Inspector General. The information is not intended to be used for any administrative purpose, affecting individuals, by the Inspector General's Office. The information may contain names and professions and is stored in a general subject file where records are not normally retrievable by personal identifiers. This information is only retrievable if specific subjects, dates or events are provided. This information relates to individuals in respect of whom the CSIS has collected personal information in the course of its general operations. The information was obtained to discharge the monitoring, review and certification or reporting responsibilities of the Inspector General in accordance with the provisions of the CSIS Act governing the statutory mandate of the Inspector General. Consistent uses are for disclosure to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. The files are kept for a minimum of two years.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

STANDARD BANKS

ICA/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

ICA/P-SE-918
Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

LAURENTIAN PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Chapter 67

LAURENTIAN PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Laurentian Pilotage Authority, a Crown corporation, was established on June 30, 1971, and became effective as of February 1, 1972, governed by the Pilotage Act and Regulations. For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Authority is a corporation specified in Schedule "C" of that Act.

Overall Responsibilities

The objects of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient pilotage service within the region.

The Chairman is the Authority's chief executive officer. The other permanent member is the vice-chairman. The board is composed of a maximum of seven members, appointed by the Governor in Council. The head office is located in Montreal.

STANDARD BANKS

LPA/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

LPA/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

LPA/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

LPA/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

LAW REFORM COMMISSION OF CANADA

Chapter 68

LAW REFORM COMMISSION OF CANADA

Background

The Law Reform Commission of Canada was established by an Act of Parliament that came into force on June 1, 1971.

The objectives of the Commission are to study and review, on a continuing and systematic basis, the statutes and other laws comprising the laws of Canada with a view to making recommendations for reform, including, without limiting the generality of the foregoing:

— the removal of anachronisms and anomalies in the law;

— the reflection in and by the law of the distinctive concepts and institutions of both the common law and civil law legal systems in Canada, and the reconciliation of differences and discrepancies in the expression and application of the law arising out of differences in these concepts and institutions;

— the elimination of obsolete laws; and — the development of new approaches to and new concepts of the law in keeping with the changing needs of modern Canadian society and of individual members of that society.

Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

MEDICAL RESEARCH COUNCIL

Chapter 69

MEDICAL RESEARCH COUNCIL

Background

The Medical Research Council of Canada is a corporation established by the Medical Research Council Act. Its objective as stated in the Act is to help attain the quality and scale of research in the health sciences essential to the maintenance and improvement of health services. To this end the Council has established a number of types of grants (to support research), awards (to support individuals) and special programs for which individuals may make applications for consideration in peer-reviewed competitions. The personal information in the banks in this chapter consists mainly of assessments of applications obtained by the Council in the peer review process. For grants and special programs, access to this personal information is automatic, that is, copies of all review reports are sent to the applicant along with notification of the Council's decision. For awards, access is available on request, either informally, by letter, or by submission of the Privacy Access Request Form to the Privacy Co-ordinator.

This information relates to investigators holding an academic appointment in a Canadian Health Science Faculty, and Research Trainees. This information is used to maintain a history of the Council's financial support to individuals. Consistent uses are to provide historical data which assist the peer review process.

Classes of Personal Information

Administration

The general administrative and correspondence files of the Medical Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Such personal information includes suggestions and opinions from the general public which form part of a specific subject file. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject are provided. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Reports and Surveys

For purposes of program planning and evaluation, the Council requires a variety of reports concerning aspects of medical research in Canada. The reports themselves, published or unpublished, do not contain personal information about individuals. In the process of preparing such a report, personal information is necessarily obtained. This may include current academic position, professional qualifications of individuals, nature of research being undertaken by individuals and present and past funding of an individual's research. This information is not used for administrative purposes and is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the study or report involved. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

MINISTRY OF STATE FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Chapter 70

MINISTRY OF STATE FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

Background

In 1971, the Ministry of State for Science and Technology (MOSST) was established by Order-in-Council for the purpose of formulating and developing policies in relation to the activities of the Government of Canada that affect the development and application of science and technology, and was presided over by a Minister of State and a Secretary reporting to the Minister.

Since July 15, 1983, the Secretary has also been chief science advisor (CSA) to the government, responsible for providing expert and objective advice to Cabinet and its committees on priorities for, and the planning of, Canada's overall science and technology effort.

This change of role necessitated that the Ministry be reorganized in order to give the CSA direct access to Cabinet. The new organization permits the Ministry to perform the central agency function of formulating policies and providing advice on science and technology to the federal government. Its mandate covers the science and technology activities of departments, and includes other activities such as those of industry and universities insofar as they interact with the federal government.

On May 27, 1985, the Prime Minister directed the Minister of State for Science and Technology to undertake new functions not previously identified in the mandate of the Ministry. These new responsibilities included the preparation of an annual overview and analysis of the government's activities in science and technology; the formulation of advice on measures to strengthen the effectiveness of federal science and technology program expenditures, especially concerning industrial support, technology transfer and strategic technologies; as well as responsibilities for the negotiation and management of federal/provincial agreements on science and technology.

Classes of Personal Information

While conducting the programs and activities of the Ministry, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not included in the banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes mainly names, titles, addresses and opinions occurring in general correspondence or in the minutes of meetings.

This type of personal information is stored in the Ministry's general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name or other personal identifier. This information is only retrievable by identifying the appropriate subject file. The retention periods for this class of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

STANDARD BANKS

MST/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

MST/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

MST/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development

Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.

Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Security Clearances

Description: This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done, after which the records are destroyed.

MST/P-SE-918
Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF CANADA

Chapter 71

NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF CANADA

Background

The purpose of National Archives of Canada is the systematic preservation of government and private records of Canadian national significance, in order to facilitate not only the effective and efficient operation of the Government of Canada and historical research in all aspects of the Canadian experience, but also the protection of rights and the enhancement of a sense of national identity based on archives as the collective memory of the nation.

This broad mandate obliges the National Archives of Canada to preserve material from the private sector as well as federal government institutions. The banks and classes of federal government records described in this publication, however, do not include material placed in the National Archives of Canada by persons or organizations other than government institutions. Access conditions to collections acquired from the private sector are normally established by negotiation between the donor and the National Archives of Canada.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

PAC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

PAC/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

PAC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

PAC/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

PAC/P-SE-905
Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

PAC/P-SE-906
Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

PAC/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program. The information is used to support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions. The period of retention of the records is five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

PAC/P-SE-908

Vehicle, Ship, Boat and Aircraft Accidents

This bank contains reports on accidents; claims of damages; legal decisions; settlement transactions and correspondence concerning accidents involving government-owned and leased vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft as well as privately-owned vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft used on official business. Records concerning occupational health and safety, as well as authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-907. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding vehicle, ship, boat and aircraft accidents involving employees of a government institution. The information is used to determine liability for such accidents and to approve damage settlements. The records are destroyed two years after the settlement of individual claims.

PAC/P-SE-909

Security Clearances

This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank. The information is used to support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done the records are destroyed.

PAC/P-SE-910

Grievances

This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Board the records are destroyed.

PAC/P-SE-911

Discipline

This bank contains notices of disciplinary action and correspondence about employee misconduct; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigations of possible misconduct and analysis reports of these investigations. It is important to note that notices of disciplinary action may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information used in disciplinary actions in government institutions and to determine the need for and nature of disciplinary actions. The information is used to support decisions on pay and benefits; attendance and leave; transfer, demotion and termination of employment. The retention period for correspondence regarding investigations, testimony by witnesses and legal opinions is five years for cases where employee was found guilty of misconduct and three years for cases where employee was found not guilty. For notices of disciplinary action, including notices attached to the Employee Personnel Record, the time limit is that specified in applicable collective agreements or, where no such agreement exists, three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed.

PAC/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

PAC/P-SE-914

Parking

This bank contains permit applications and correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on government-owned or leased property. Records for deductions for payment of parking fees are included in the Pay and Benefits Bank while records of parking violations are maintained by the RCMP. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information for the administration of parking privileges. The information is used to issue parking permits. Records are destroyed two years after the permit expires.

PAC/P-SE-915

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities. The information relates to employees of government institutions. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period. The information is used to resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists, and to enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant. Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Employee Assistance

This bank contains information treated in a confidential fashion that is relative to an employee's involvement in an Employee Assistance Program (EAP); notice of voluntary or mandatory (supervisory work-performance related) referral; records of reference to, or reports and correspondence from a health professional or rehabilitation agency; and only non-medical interpretations concerning an employee's work capability or limitations. All personal medical data shall be maintained in a medical protected status under the control of the Medical Services Branch, National Health and Welfare. Records relating to work performance deficiencies, absenteeism and disciplinary matters are to be held in the appropriate institutional personal information bank and not held with EAP files. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of the bank is to record information necessary to the administration of the Employee Assistance Program and to determine the need for employee assistance counselling, referrals for medical evaluations and participation in rehabilitation programs. The information is used to support decisions regarding employee assistance measures. Two years following the date of the most recent reference to employee assistance the records are destroyed.

The purpose of this bank is to maintain information on labour relations (conforming to the Canada Labour Code) regarding cases involving NAC staff. Records are retained for an indeterminate period.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

NAC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

NAC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

NAC/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development
Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.
Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

Classes of Personal Information

The National Capital Commission as a whole is involved in activities which tend to generate public response in one form or another. As a result, personal information may be accumulated which is not contained in specific NCC banks listed in this index.

Such personal information may consist of compliments, complaints, suggestions, opinions, proposals, agreements, permits and permissions and may include name, address, telephone number and, in some cases, marital status, age and employment.

This form of personal information is stored throughout the general subject files and is not normally retrievable by name or other personal identifier. It can be located only if specific and sufficient details are provided concerning the event or activity of interest such as:

- acquisition, development, management, and disposal of properties;

- planning, construction, maintenance and operation of roads, bridges, parks, pathways and other works;
- joint projects with municipalities;
- construction and operation of concessions;
- grants and subsidies;
- historical sites and buildings;
- plans for federal elements in the National Capital Region;
- public cultural and recreational activities;
- tours and services for visitors;
- promotion of national understanding and awareness of the National Capital of Canada;
- violation of laws and regulations.

STANDARD BANKS

NCC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

NCC/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

STANDARD BANKS

NEB/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

NATIONAL FILM BOARD

Chapter 76

NATIONAL FILM BOARD

Background

The National Film Board (NFB) was established by an Act of Parliament on May 2, 1939, and revised in 1950. The NFB reports to the Minister of Communications. Its mandate is to produce and distribute Canadian film and video, as well as to promote their production and distribution.

Overall Responsibilities

The NFB's purpose is to make films which are distinctively Canadian. These films reflect the bilingual, multi-cultural and regional realities of this country and answer the social and cultural needs of its citizens. NFB productions are distributed on film and videocassette and are available through Canadian theatres, library collections and its own audio-visual centres. Across the country, NFB films are seen on broadcast and specialized television. The NFB also operates an International Commercial Service to sell and market its films abroad. Films are available through NFB offices or Canadian diplomatic spots abroad in 80 countries.

NFB films are produced by distinct English and French program branches which are also responsible for marketing their films to their respective English and French audiences. In the early 1970's NFB production began to decentralize its production studios and the ensuing years have seen production studios developed in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Moncton, and Halifax, as well as in Montréal. There is a permanent creative staff in Montréal, though a large proportion of NFB films are made by freelance independent filmmakers. The NFB is a totally integrated production house. The average annual production of the NFB is approximately 100 original films and 50 versions and adaptions of existing films. The NFB produces versions of its films in up to 60 different languages for foreign distribution. The Technical Services Division also undertakes advanced technical research and development to further the art and technology of film and video.

The NFB also has a mandate to play an active role in training people in all aspects of filmmaking.

Organization

The board of trustees of the National Film Board is composed of the Canadian Government Film Commissioner — who is both the chairperson and chief executive officer of the NFB — and eight other members appointed by the Governor-in-Council, three of whom are selected from the Public Service of Canada or the Canadian Armed Forces and five from the public at large. The NFB is managed by the commissioner and by the directors of the English Programming Branch; the French Programming Branch; the Services Division; the Administration, Finance and Personnel Division; the Planning Directorate; and Communication Services.

The head office of the NFB is in Ottawa, while its operational headquarters are located in Montréal.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

STANDARD BANKS

NFB/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Records
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

NATIONAL LIBRARY

Chapter 77

NATIONAL LIBRARY

Background

The National Library of Canada, created in 1953, operates under the National Library Act (1969) and its amendments, and enforces the Legal Deposit Regulations (1969). It is a branch of government having the rank of a department and reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. The National Library serves Canada from Ottawa.

Overall Responsibilities

The National Library ensures that the written heritage of Canadian people is preserved and made accessible to everyone through the country's libraries.

To fulfill its responsibilities the Library collects and promotes the Canadian literary heritage in its broadest sense. This includes listing the nation's publications to facilitate their retrieval, availability, and use; providing reference, information, referral and document delivery services to support similar services provided by other Canadian libraries, with special emphasis on Canadian related subjects; making known the written heritage of the nation through a cultural events program; and facilitating the use of the nation's total library resources by co-ordinating and participating in national and international programs for sharing information on publications and for identifying and supplying needed documents on interlibrary loan.

NATIONAL MUSEUMS OF CANADA

Chapter 78

NATIONAL MUSEUMS OF CANADA

Background

The National Museums of Canada (NMC), a Crown corporation established in 1968 by the National Museums Act, reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. It incorporates in a single administration seven organizational elements: the National Gallery of Canada; the Canadian Museum of Civilization, including the Canadian War Museum; the National Museums of Natural Sciences; the National Museum of Science and Technology, including the National Aviation Museum; the National Programmes Branch; the Corporate Management Branch; and the Corporate Services Branch. It is administered by its own secretariat under the authority of a Board of Trustees. The Secretary-General is the chief executive officer of the NMC. The purposes of the NMC as defined in the Act, are "to demonstrate the products of nature and the works of man, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, so as to promote interest therein throughout Canada and to disseminate knowledge thereof."

In 1972, the Government of Canada approved a National Museum Policy designed to acknowledge that the federal government had an interest in all collections which formed the national cultural heritage and therefore to ensure the preservation of Canadian museum collections and to increase public access to them. The result was that the National Programmes Branch was established to provide services and assistance to the Canadian museum community to further the objectives of this policy.

The Museum Assistance Programmes is the responsible area for the granting of monies for projects that meet specific qualifications and criteria to museums and galleries across Canada. The personal information related to this program will be found under fellowships, internships and training by each of the museums and galleries applying for grants.

Classes of personal information

Some NMC files summarized in the Access Register contain personal information which is not used in a decision making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about NMC collections, programs and services, information and advice given to individuals by NMC employees about museums and museum objects, and information about individuals in documents relating to grants or proposed grants to institutions.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, the NMC would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the NMC.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and at the affiliated museums.

NMC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security

clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Chapter 79

NATIONAL PAROLE BOARD

Overall Responsibilities

The National Parole Board (NPB) is an independent, administrative agency within the federal Department of the Solicitor General. In accordance with the provisions of the Parole Act and other relevant statutes, the Board grants, denies and controls the conditional release of inmates from federal institutions and (with the exception of the granting of temporary absences) from provincial institutions in those provinces without a provincial parole board (the provinces of Québec, Ontario and British Columbia have their own provincial parole boards). The Board also has the authority to order the detention of inmates past their presumptive release date in certain circumstances. The Board makes recommendations to the Solicitor General of Canada for the exercise of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy and for the granting or revocation of pardons under the Criminal Records Act.

In order to satisfy these responsibilities, the Board creates and maintains individual case files on people who are subject to its decisions. The personal information is collected from individuals themselves and a wide variety of sources: courts, law enforcement agencies, the Correctional Service of Canada, provincial correctional authorities, other federal departments, medical authorities, private after-care agencies, and the general public. This information is contained in the parole case files information bank and/or the clemency case files information bank. Statistical information drawn from these two banks is stored electronically in the Board's EDP System (APIS).

In addition to these two banks and the standard employee information banks, the Board has banks containing correspondence sent by or to individuals requesting access to their files under the Privacy Act or to government records under the Access to Information Act.

Access Procedures

Requests for access to the following personal information banks should be referred to

Access to Information and Privacy Co-ordinator
National Parole Board
Sir Wilfrid Laurier Building
340 Laurier Avenue West
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0R1
Telephone: (613) 995-1308

Applicants are required to provide appropriate identifying information about themselves such as name, address, date of birth, National Parole Board file number (if any) and any additional information deemed useful to identify the appropriate file. Applicants who also wish to have access to the electronic version of their file stored in the APIS system must do so by request.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

NPB/P-PU-005

Parole Case Files

Description: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; progress reports, appraisals and recommendations from staff of penal institutions and parole offices; records of Board decisions and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters from other agencies, government departments and the general public.
Class of Individuals: Individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a federal penitentiary; individuals who are serving or who, at one time, were serving a sentence of imprisonment in a provincial institution and applied for parole to the National Parole Board. These records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was created, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives.
Purpose: Parole case files are used by the National Parole Board in accordance with the provisions of the Parole Act and other relevant statutes, to determine eligibility and suitability of inmates for full parole, day parole, unescorted temporary absences and, in some cases, escorted temporary absences; to set terms and conditions of all types of conditional releases and to review performance on such releases; to consider modifying or reducing conditions of release; to consider restoration of earned remission, lost as a result of revocation of parole or mandatory supervision.
Consistent Uses: To fulfill its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board gathers a great deal of personal information about offenders under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including, the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual to whom the information pertains. In addition, the significant public education role that the Board has to play and the wish to demonstrate to the public the fairness of its decisions, allows the general public, where legitimate reasons exist, to be informed of decisions concerning offenders currently under its jurisdiction as well as the general reasons supporting these decisions. However, the information shared under these circumstances is either factual and/or publicly available, and is general enough to ensure sufficient protection against any invasion of privacy of the individual to whom the information pertains. This information is also used for research, statistical, program minitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole Board.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are kept for 15 years after Warrant Expiry Date or death of the individual and destroyed thereafter except when they are the subject of criminological research. Records deemed to be of archival or historical value are transferred to the National Archives.

Clemency Case Files

Description: Criminal histories; police and court reports; social, financial, educational, medical and psychiatric histories; appraisals and recommendations from NPB and/or Correctional Service of Canada staff; records of Board members recommendations and related documentation; warrants and certificates; memoranda and letters of other agencies, government departments and the general public.
Class of Individuals: Individuals who have applied to the National Parole Board for a pardon under the Criminal Records Act or an act of clemency under Section 22(2) of the Parole Act in respect of the Royal Prerogative of Mercy or pursuant to the Letters Patent, Sections 683 and 685 of the Criminal Code of Canada. Those records may also contain personal information on individuals other than the individual for whom a file was opened, e.g. the individual's family, friends or representatives.
Purpose: To determine eligibility and suitability for the granting of a pardon or other act of clemency as well as revocation of a pardon.
Consistent Uses: To fulfill its legislative mandate, the National Parole Board gathers a great deal of personal information about applicants under its jurisdiction. To obtain the information, it is necessary for the Board to routinely share, when warranted, its information with other sources, including the Correctional Service of Canada, the RCMP, provincial and municipal governments, and members of the general public associated in some way with the individual about whom the information pertains. However, unless the pardon was subsequently revoked, personal information banks containing files of individuals who have been granted a pardon are kept separate and the content cannot be disclosed to any person without the prior approval of the Solicitor General who, before granting such approval, has to be satisfied that the disclosure is desirable in the interests of the administration of justice or for any purpose related to the safety or security of Canada. This information is also used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes, and for the purpose of presenting a defence when court actions are brought against the National Parole board.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Pardon: for premature requests, files are kept for two years; for discontinued requests, files are kept for two years after the last contact with the applicant; for pardon granted, files are kept to age 70 or one year after the death of the subject is confirmed by the RCMP; for pardon revoked or not granted, ten years after a final decision. Royal Prerogative of Mercy: files are kept for a period of ten years following the last administrative action. Once the retention periods are satisfied, clemency case files are either destroyed, or transferred to National Archives if deemed to be of archival or historical value.

Access Requests Files

Description: This bank contains formal requests made by individuals under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act, the replies to such requests and information relating to their processing.

Class of Individuals: Individuals requesting access to information under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act.

Purpose: This information is used for processing requests made under the Privacy Act and the Access to Information Act.

Consistent Uses: This information may be used for research, statistical, program monitoring and evaluation purposes; it is also used in response to a complaint filed by an individual to the Privacy or Information Commissioner, or in defence against a Court action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for two years after all actions have been completed.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the National Parole Board, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not included in the personal information banks described in this entry. Such information contains the names, addresses and opinions of individuals corresponding with the Department on general parole matters.

This type of personal information is scattered throughout the general subject files listed in the Access Register and is not used for any administrative purpose which might affect individuals. It is normally retrievable only by identifying the appropriate subject file which may contain documents referencing such personal information.

The retention periods associated with this information are consistent with those associated with the general subject files in which they are stored.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

NPB/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing

Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.

Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

NPB/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development

Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.

Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL OF CANADA

Background

Operating under the National Research Council Act, the National Research Council of Canada (NRC), as the principal research agency of the federal government, carries out a wide spectrum of activities, which includes the performance of scientific and engineering research in response to national, economic and social needs; the provision of direct financial and technical assistance to industry; the establishment and maintenance of standards; the provision of national scientific and technological facilities for industry and the universities; and the operation of a nationwide network of scientific and technical information services.

Overall Responsibilities

In pursuing the above activities, the Council, on occasion, is involved in the collection and use of personal information. Details of those instances where the information is used to make administrative decisions affecting the individual are described under Personal Information Banks — General Public. Persons wishing access to their own records should include their full name and address, and any additional information specified in each information bank. Where no additional information is indicated, only full name and address are required.

Personal information in NRC files that is not used for administrative purposes and is normally neither organized nor retrieved by personal identifiers is outlined in the Classes of Personal Information section.

Classes of Personal Information

The personal information contained in this class is distributed across a wide range of subject files. It is not used for administrative purposes, and is normally neither arranged nor retrieved by personal identifiers. The most common types of personal information contained in this class are name, address, and, in some cases, affiliation, educational background and experience. The information was collected through general enquiries, complaints, requests for assistance, and personal views and opinions directed by the public to the scientific laboratories; to the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information; to the Industrial Development Office regarding its assistance programs; and to the Council's supporting administrative branches such as Personnel and Administrative Services, Contract Services, Public Relations and Information Services, and External Relations. Individuals wishing to access information relating to themselves should provide specific details regarding

- the division, branch, or individual to whom the correspondence was addressed;
- the approximate date of the correspondence;
- the subject matter;
- the name of the program (if applicable); and
- the file reference number, if available.

The retention periods for this class of personal information vary and are provided in the records schedules of the general subject files in which the information is stored.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and also in the regions where noted.

NRC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

NATURAL SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING RESEARCH COUNCIL

Chapter 81

NATURAL SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING RESEARCH COUNCIL

Background

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) is a departmental Crown corporation that was established on May 1, 1978. Its purpose is to promote and assist research in the natural sciences and engineering, and to advise the Minister of State for Science and Technology on matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration. NSERC is responsible for the management and administration of the Program of Scholarships and Grants in Aid of Research. These grants and scholarships are intended primarily for university research and graduate students.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

SER/P-PU-005
Individual Grants to University Researchers

This bank contains details on the post-secondary education, professional experience and research proposals as supplied by the applicant. An individual's file may contain evaluations by third parties, e.g., referee or committee assessments. Files contain the decision of the Council on grant applications and the financial and administrative data pertaining to each individual grant. The bank is maintained for the administration and awarding of the following types of grants: individual operating grants; equipment grants; project grants; travel grants; special grants; northern supplements; University-Industry Program, including PRAI (project research applicable in industry), and co-operative research grants; forestry development grants; and individual and equipment strategic grants. All information requested from applicants for NSERC awards is collected in order to review applications, administer awards and evaluate programs. Included in these uses are consultation with other granting agencies to determine the most appropriate review mechanism or sources of funding and statistical studies conducted by NSERC or other agencies on research funding in Canada. NSERC may also use this information in connection with appointments to its committees. Lists of awards made are published annually. Access procedures require name, university affiliation, department and the type of grant applied for by the individual. The retention period for records in this bank is under review.

SER/P-PU-010
Group Grants to University Researchers

This bank contains details of post-secondary education and professional experience as supplied by individual researchers through the principal applicant for the grant concerned, referee and committee assessments, if any, Council's decision, and financial and administrative data. The bank is maintained for the administration and awarding of the following types of group grants: team operating grants; major equipment grants; northern supplements; project grants; collaborative special project (SCP) grants; infrastructure grants; major installation grants; research development grants; forestry development grants; group strategic grants; University-Industry Program including PRAI (project research applicable in industry) and co-operative research grants. All information requested from applicants for NSERC awards is collected in order to review applications, administer awards and evaluate programs. Included in these uses are consultation with other granting agencies to determine the most appropriate review mechanism or sources of funding and statistical studies conducted by NSERC or other agencies on research funding in Canada. NSERC may also use this information in connection with appointments to its committees. Lists of awards made are published annually. Access procedures require name, university affiliation, department, type of group grant applied for, title of application, name of principal applicant and university affiliation. The retention period for records in this bank is under review.

SER/P-PU-015
Scholarships and Fellowships

This bank contains curricula vitae, personal information, referee reports in some cases, Council's decision, and financial and administrative data. Employment Applications

This bank contains information for reference on candidates available for employment at the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council when vacancies arise. Records contain letters, completed application forms, applicant résumés; it may contain comments of the interviewer, letters of reference and other application information on individuals who have applied for specific advertised openings or an appropriate future opening. Individuals wishing access should provide their full name, address and date of birth. Records are retained for two fiscal years and then destroyed.

SER/P-PU-050
Lists of External Referees

This electronic data processing bank contains names, affiliation and mailing addresses of individuals in Canada and abroad who are asked by the Council to review proposals for grants to individuals and groups. The information is used to select external referees for research proposals. Only a few of the fields of natural sciences and engineering are included in this bank. Persons requesting access should provide field of research, name and affiliation. The retention period for records in this bank is under review.

Classes of Personal Information

The general subject files of the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council contain a certain amount of personal information not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. Typically, this includes routine requests for information from the public or information about individuals (i.e., name, address, views or opinions) that is stored in subject files as a consequence of the dialogue between NSERC and the research community on program matters.

This kind of personal information is not used for any administrative purpose and is normally retrievable only if specifics are given concerning the date, subject and circumstances under which the information was provided. The retention period for this class of personal information is governed by schedules approved by the Dominion Archivist for the various subject files in which it is stored.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

The Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council (NSERC) and the National Research Council (NRC) share common personnel services. Most of the files on employees are kept at NSERC, except those on Official Languages which are kept at NRC (NRC/P-SE-906).

STANDARD BANKS

SER/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel data bases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

NATURAL SCIENCES AND ENGINEERING RESEARCH COUNCIL

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION

Chapter 82

NORTHERN CANADA POWER COMMISSION

Background

The Northern Canada Power Commission (NCPC) is a federal Crown corporation which operates under authority of the Northern Canada Power Commission Act. It is concerned with the planning, construction and management of public utilities, primarily electrical, on a commercial basis. For this purpose, it is empowered to survey utility requirements, construct utility plants in the Northwest Territories, and, subject to the approval of the Governor in Council, elsewhere in Canada.

The Commission is the principal producer of electricity north of 60° and operates the main transmission networks in the Northwest Territories. Heat, water and sewerage service utilities are operated at Inuvik, Northwest Territories. Wholesale heat supply is provided to the government for distribution in Iqaluit. Residual heat recovery systems are operated at several locations.

The Commission's head office is located at Edmonton, Alberta. District offices are located in Yellowknife and Iqaluit in the Northwest Territories.

It is a requirement of the Act that operations of the Commission shall be self-sustaining within each rate zone as defined in the Act. Consequently, rates charged for utilities supplied must provide sufficient revenue to cover interest and principal payments on loans made to the Commission, operating, maintenance, administrative and all other expenses, and contingency allowances. A 1975 amendment to the Act enables the Commission to charge rates for utilities on a zone basis. (Such rates to provide revenue sufficient to cover interest on investment, repayment of principal, operating and maintenance expenses, and a contingency reserve.)

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

NORTHERN PIPELINE AGENCY

Chapter 83

NORTHERN PIPELINE AGENCY

Background

The Northern Pipeline Agency was established with the proclamation of the Northern Pipeline Act on April 13, 1978, for the purpose of overseeing the planning and construction of the Canadian portion of the Alaska Highway gas pipeline, to provide access to the substantial Arctic natural gas reserves of both Canada and the United States.

Overall Responsibilities

The Agency's mandate is twofold: (i) it is required to facilitate the efficient and expeditious planning, construction and initial operation of the system in Canada by Foothills Pipe Lines (Yukon) Ltd. and five of its subsidiary companies; and (ii) it is also required to ensure that the project is carried forward in a way that will yield the maximum economic energy and industrial benefits for Canadians, with the least possible social and environmental disruption.

In particular, the Agency is directed by the Act to take account of the local and regional interests of residents, especially native residents, in areas affected by the undertaking.

Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. NORTHWEST TERRITORIES WATER BOARD

Chapter 84

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES WATER BOARD

Background

The Northwest Territories Water Board was established under section 7 of the Northern Inland Waters Act, which was proclaimed on February 28, 1972. The Northern Inland Waters Regulations were promulgated on September 14, 1972. Two amendments to the regulations have been made since; one on January 15, 1975, and the other on July 17, 1975.

The Board consists of not less than three and not more than nine members appointed by the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development and is made up of at least one nominee of each department of the Government of Canada that in the opinion of the Governor in Council is most directly concerned with the management of the water resources in the Northwest Territories, and at least six persons named by the Commissioner in Council of the Northwest Territories. The Board held its founding meeting in Yellowknife, N.W.T. on April 18, 1972.

Overall Responsibilities

The Board provides for the conservation, development and use of the water resources of the Northwest Territories in a manner that will provide the optimum benefit for all Canadians, and for the residents of the Territories in particular. Under the Act an application must be made to the Board and either an authorization or licence issued prior to the use of any waters or disposal of any waterborne waste. The requirement for application applies equally to departments and agencies of the federal government. The only exclusions are the use of water for domestic purposes, for extinguishing a fire or, in an emergency, for controlling or preventing a flood.

PACIFIC PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Chapter 85

PACIFIC PILOTAGE AUTHORITY

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

Pacific Pilotage Authority, Ltd. was incorporated pursuant to the Pilotage Act on February, 1972 as a Schedule "D" Crown corporation within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority, Ltd. is in general governed by the following: Canada Shipping Act; Pilotage Act; General Pilotage Regulations; Pacific Pilotage Regulations; Authority by-laws.

Overall Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries; that being all coastal waters of British Columbia and the Fraser River. As a further goal, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are to be fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

The Pacific Pilotage Authority, Ltd. consists of a chairman, and six members appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

The Authority's head office is located in Vancouver, British Columbia. All management services — administrative, personnel, financial, contracts, purchasing, etc. — are provided by the Vancouver office.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

PENSION APPEALS BOARD

Chapter 86

PENSION APPEALS BOARD

Background

The Tribunal was constituted by the Parliament of Canada, pursuant to an agreement with the Government of Québec, whereby it is responsible for the hearing of appeals which arise from decisions of the Minister of National Revenue and the Minister of National Health and Welfare under the Canada Pension Plan, and from decisions of the Minister of Revenue of Québec and in some circumstances from decisions of La Commission des Affaires Sociales under the Québec Pension Plan.

This Act does not apply to any material which is held by the Board relating to appeals arising under the Québec Pension Plan. The enquirer in such cases should be directed to the pertinent officals of that province.

All decisions of this Board, with respect to the Canada or Québec Pension Plan, are available to the public from the CCH Canadian Employment Benefits and Pension Guide Reports, Volume II, pages 5951 and following.

Both the document mentioned above and the decisions of the Board are held by the departments involved. Any enquiries should be directed to them.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

PCO/P-PU-005
Security and Intelligence Information Files

This bank contains documentary information concerning security-related investigations or reports on individuals identified as potential risks to national security and who have been brought to the attention of the PCO by a governmental investigative agency or another department. Information in this bank relates to public servants, former public servants, candidates for the public service (95%) and a small number of persons whose activities have been brought to the attention of the PCO (5%). The information has been compiled to inform the PCO of national security concerns relating to these individuals. Most of the information was collected by CSIS or the former RCMP Security Services. This information is retained indefinitely. Note: This is an exempt bank pursuant to Section 18 (1) of the Privacy Act.

PCO/P-PU-010
Petitions and Submissions

This bank contains petitions or submissions made to the Governor in Council. The petitions can be pursuant to legislative requirements or arising from personal concerns of individual citizens. The petitions can also be sent to the Privy Council, Cabinet, the Prime Minister and the Clerk of the Privy Council. The legislative provisions include such statutes as the Criminal Code, the Criminal Records Act, the Judges Act, the Immigration Act, the National Defence Act, the Broadcasting Act, and the National Transportation Act. Individuals can be members of the general public, members of the Armed Forces, judges or inmates of penitentiaries. In other words, no class of individual is particularly involved. Every citizen of Canada has the right to petition the Crown concerning any matter. In addition, certain statutes provide a right to petition the Governor in Council. This material is not collected or obtained by the PCO but is sent to the PCO. No form is required nor format. The petition or submission is reviewed and an opinion as to the validity of the claim is provided to the Governor in Council. No use is made of the material other than that specifically related to the claim of the petitioner or applicant. Records are retained for an indefinite period.

PCO/P-PU-015
Professional Service Contract Files

This bank includes business and individual professional service contract files for the Prime Minister's Office, the President of the Privy Council, the Office of the Leader of the Government in the Senate, the Privy Council Office and the Federal-Provincial Relations Office. It contains management recommendations, outline of service, biographic information and formal signed contracts. The main use of the bank is to report on status and commitment values and audit of payment. Consistent use is for the preparation of statistical information for response to parliamentary questions. Records are retained indefinitely.

PCO/P-PU-020
Governor in Council Personnel Records

This bank contains manual and computerized personnel information on current, former and possible incumbents of positions occupied by individuals appointed by the Governor in Council. Records include appointment information, appraisals, classification level, correspondence and memoranda, education and employment history, pay, insurance and superannuation data, selection documents, succession plans and career planning information. The bank is used primarily for administrative purposes with regard to Governor in Council appointments. Information in this bank relates to Governor in Council appointees and potential candidates for Governor in Council positions. The information is compiled to support the requirements of the Senior Personnel Secretariat in its role with respect to the identification of candidates, manpower planning, career development, performance appraisals, salary revisions and maintenance of information on Governor in Council appointments. Records are retained for an indefinite period.

PCO/P-PU-025
Security Clearance Investigation Bank

This bank includes the security clearance record and/or security assessments of all employees of the Prime Minister's Office, the Privy Council Office, the Federal-Provincial Relations Office, various Royal Commissions and Task Forces, the Office of the President of the Privy Council, the Office of the Leader of the Government in the Senate, the Canadian Intergovernmental Conference Secretariat, Government House, the Canadian Human Rights Commission, the Deputy Prime Minister's Office, the Foreign Claims Commission, the Offices of the Information and Privacy Commissioners, the IDRC, the Northern Pipeline Agency, the SIRC, Status of Women (Canada), Elections Canada, employment agency personnel employed in all these agencies and certain Order-in-Council appointments. This bank contains personal history forms, fingerprint forms and record of criminal convictions (if any), record of security briefing, summary of RCMP field investigations and correspondence related to the security clearance process and the issuance of identification cards. (A notation of level of clearance may be included with the official personnel record.) The information relates to employees, candidates for employment, Order-in-Council appointees or candidates for appointment by Order-in-Council and employment agency personnel. Records in this bank are used to enable the Deputy Head to determine an employee or applicant's security clearance level, to provide security assessments to the Privy Council Office, to issue identification cards and building passes and to assist in decisions on transfers, promotions or appointments. They may be disclosed to other Departmental Security Officers, upon request, where an employee transfers to another agency or department. Records related to the issuance of identification cards are retained for six months after the card expires. Records related to the security clearance investigation process are kept for a minimum of three years after termination of employment and all are destroyed after five years.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

PCO/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security

clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Chapter 88

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Background

The Public Service Commission (PSC) is a politically independent agency accountable to Parliament for the administration of the Public Service Employment Act (PSEA).

The jurisdictional powers of the PSC rest with three commissioners — one chairman and two members. They are appointed by the Governor-in-Council for a 10 year term and have the status of deputy head. Together, the commissioners set the overall policy in accordance with the Public Service Employment Act. A majority of the commissioners constitutes a quorum. The chairman is chief executive officer.

The PSC, as it is known today, evolved gradually from the Civil Service Commission (CSC), which was established in 1908 under the Civil Service Amendment Act. This Act introduced the principle of merit as established by competition. However, it did not apply to positions outside of Ottawa. The Civil Service Act of 1918 placed the entire Service under the CSC. The Civil Service Act of 1962 preserved the independence of the Civil Service Commission and maintained the fundamental principles of the merit system.

The Public Service Employment Act of 1967 reaffirmed the merit principle and changed the name of the Civil Service Commission to the Public Service Commission. The PSC's main task became staffing, and the Commission was allowed to delegate staffing authority and power to departments. The PSC retained full responsibility for administering the appeals system. The Commission's responsibility for pay, classification and conditions of employment were transferred to the Treasury Board of Canada.

Overall Responsibilities

The primary responsibility of the Public Service Commission today is to ensure that the merit principle, as determined by the Commission, is upheld in Public Service staffing operations. This is accomplished through

- the appointment or provision for the appointment of qualified persons to or from within the Public Service;
- the development and administration of processes and standards for selection of candidates for positions in the Public Service;
- the operation of an appeals system for appointments and demotions or releases for incompetency or incapacity; and
- the conduct of audits to evaluate the manner in which staffing authority has been exercised.

PSEA also provides for the Public Service Commission to

- promote the participation of women, francophones, native people and other under-represented groups in the Public Service;
- ensure that physically and mentally handicapped persons are given effective equality of opportunity to compete for positions in the Public Service;
- provide professional leadership in facilitating, stimulating and operating programs of development and training, including language training and services, to bring about improvements in the skills and qualifications of Public Service employees;
- maintain an effective appeals mechanism for employees of the Public Service in respect of appointments, releases and demotions;
- investigate complaints of inequity and unfairness in employment under PSEA; and
- make decisions on allegations of political partisanship.

STANDARD BANKS

PSC/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to Public Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N. B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e. g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.
Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.
Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Affirmative Action Program
This bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records. This information relates to employees of the institution. This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e. g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e. g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected. The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action. The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

Incentive Awards

Description: The bank includes information on public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan. Such information may include curricula vitae, narratives in support of meritorious contributions related to their duties or practiced suggestions for improvement of Public Service operations and completed recommendation reports concerning either the Merit Award or the Suggestion Award.

Class of Individuals: Public servants who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Purpose: To identify individuals who have been nominated for awards under the federal government's Incentive Awards Plan.

Consistent Uses: The information in this bank is used to establish precedents for awards and to provide an audit trail for the disbursements of funds.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Operational files are kept for a minimum of two years then destroyed; financial files for six years then destroyed, and precedent setting files for 25 years then destroyed.

PUBLIC SERVICE STAFF RELATIONS BOARD

Chapter 89

PUBLIC SERVICE STAFF RELATIONS BOARD

Background

The Public Service Staff Relations Board was established in 1967 by the Public Service Staff Relations Act (now R.S.C. 1970 chapter P-35). The Board is designated as a department within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act (O.I.C. 1967-635, April 4, 1967). By Order-in-Council 1968-2032 of October 29, 1968 the Board was declared to be a separate employer under the provisions of the Public Service Staff Relations Act. The Board reports to Parliament, through a Minister of the Crown, other than a member of the Treasury Board, as designated by the Governor in Council. At present the responsible Minister is the President of the Privy Council.

Overall Responsibilities

The Board is an independent body, whose members are appointed for specified periods and who hold office during good behaviour. It is responsible for the administration of the Public Service Staff Relations Act which established a system of collective bargaining, a grievance process and an adjudication procedure for the federal public service as defined in the Act. These responsibilities include such matters as determination of bargaining units, certification and decertification of bargaining agents, arbitration of interest disputes, adjudication of rights disputes and generally providing an administrative structure within which the rights and responsibilities of the employers and employees in the federal public service may be exercised and/or enforced.

STANDARD BANKS

SRB/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the program and activities of the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission, categories of personal information may have been accumulated which were not contained in a specific personal information bank. Such personal information included evidence of witnesses testifying before the Commission in different enquiries. This evidence was stored as part of the general subject files, where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier.

This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning an enquiry with respect to evidence given on a certain day which is recorded and transcribed.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the records schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

ROYAL CANADIAN MINT

Chapter 91

ROYAL CANADIAN MINT

Background

The Ottawa Mint was originally established in 1908 as a branch of the Royal Mint of London, England. On December 1, 1931, an Act of Parliament established the Royal Canadian Mint as a branch of the Department of Finance. On April 1, 1969, the Mint became a Crown corporation reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Supply and Services. Its Head Office is in Ottawa, Ontario. Its two plants are located in Ottawa and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

The Mint's primary purpose is to produce and arrange for the production and supply of coins of the currency of Canada. It also competes on the world market for contracts to produce circulating and numismatic coins and other devices for foreign trade dollars for government departments and private firms. The Mint also operates a refinery to melt, assay and refine gold, silver, and other metals.

Mail Order Fulfilment — Individual

The purpose of this bank is to record direct mail orders for Royal Canadian Mint coins. Information in these files includes the original order, customer name and address, product and quantity ordered, amount and method of payment, payment identification number, address and method employed for shipping. This information is used to initiate fulfilment, distribution, and verification of orders for coins. The information is retained for one year from the closing date of each numismatic program.

RCM/P-PU-010
Mail Order Fulfilment — Computerized Order Master

The purpose of this bank is to capture, update and report direct mail orders for Royal Canadian Mint coins. Information in this bank includes customer name and address, product and quantity ordered, amount and method of payment, payment identification number, address and method for shipping. This information is used to record direct mail orders for coins, payment data related to orders for financial reporting, shipping documentation on fully paid orders, and names and addresses of collectors for future solicitations. Information may be accessed by any one of customer name, customer number, order number or postal code. It is retained for two years after the close of the applicable numismatic program.

RCM/P-PU-015
Direct Mail Marketing — Computerized Mail Master

The purpose of this bank is to maintain a list of direct mail customers for Royal Canadian Mint numismatic products. Information in this bank includes customer name and address, customer number, and language. This information is used to comprise a listing of purchasers of coins for future solicitation through a direct mail approach. This file is also utilized for name, address, and order status information required in the order fulfilment process and to answer enquiries from customers concerning their particular order. This bank may be accessed by any one of customer name, customer number, or postal code. Records are retained for two years after the most recent purchase.

RCM/P-PU-020
Mail Order Fulfilment — Customers Relations

The purpose of this bank is to record service provided to purchasers of Royal Canadian Mint coins and answers to enquiries from the general public concerning numismatic programs. This information includes the customer's name and address. Where an order for a product is concerned, it will also include the telephone number, charge account number or other method of payment, product and quantity ordered. This information is used to aid in processing and tracing orders in cases of delay or loss. Information is accessed by the customer number, assigned by the Mail Master. The information is destroyed two years from the end of a coin program or when enquiries cease.

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Royal Canadian Mint, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks described in this entry. Such personal information includes letters of appreciation; complaints and enquiries; campaigns and canvassing, such as Canada Savings Bonds and the United Way campaign; information concerning the use of copyrights and patents; records of distributors and dealers of Royal Canadian Mint products; appeals under the Human Rights Act. These categories are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

PARTICULAR BANKS

RCM/P-PE-801
Labour Time Reporting — Computerized Employee Master File

The purpose of this bank is to update and report labour costs applicable to product costing and related personnel information. Information in this bank includes employee number, name, SIN, position, date of birth, start date, termination date, location, language, as well as accumulated worked days, vacation days and sick leave. This information is used to provide gross pay data incurred by productive cost centres; gross labour expense transactions; to generate certain attendance listings for Department of Supply and Services payroll system and to maintain permanent employee data. This bank contains data on approximately 800 individuals and may be accessed by employee number. The information is retained for two years. Termination of this bank is indefinite.

RCM/P-PE-802
Conflict of Interest

This bank contains voluntary disclosures by employees concerning potential conflict of interest situations and investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of employees and their official duties. This information relates to departmental employees. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution, to record potential conflicts of interest and to resolve actual conflicts of interest. The information is used to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after potential conflict of interest no longer exists or actual conflict of interest has been resolved the records are destroyed.

RCM/P-PE-803 Formerly identified as: RCM/P-SE-918
Employment Equity Program

The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees' files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records. The information relates to employees of the institution. This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected. The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action. The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

RCM/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

RCM/P-SE-902

Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

RCM/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

RCM/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

RCM/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

RCM/P-SE-906

Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

RCM/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program. The information is used to support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions. The period of retention of the records is five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

RCM/P-SE-908

Vehicle, Ship, Boat and Aircraft Accidents

This bank contains reports on accidents; claims of damages; legal decisions; settlement transactions and correspondence concerning accidents involving government-owned and leased vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft as well as privately-owned vehicles, ships, boats and aircraft used on official business. Records concerning occupational health and safety, as well as authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-907. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding vehicle, ship, boat and aircraft accidents involving employees of a government institution. The information is used to determine liability for such accidents and to approve damage settlements. The records are destroyed two years after the settlement of individual claims.

RCM/P-SE-909

Security Clearances

This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank. The information is used to support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done the records are destroyed.

RCM/P-SE-910

Grievances

This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Board the records are destroyed.

RCM/P-SE-911

Discipline

This bank contains notices of disciplinary action and correspondence about employee misconduct; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigations of possible misconduct and analysis reports of these investigations. It is important to note that notices of disciplinary action may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information used in disciplinary actions in government institutions and to determine the need for and nature of disciplinary actions. The information is used to support decisions on pay and benefits; attendance and leave; transfer, demotion and termination of employment. The retention period for correspondence regarding investigations, testimony by witnesses and legal opinions is five years for cases where employee was found guilty of misconduct and three years for cases where employee was found not guilty. For notices of disciplinary action, including notices attached to the Employee Personnel Record, the time limit is that specified in applicable collective agreements or, where no such agreement exists, three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed.

ROYAL CANADIAN MINT

RCM/P-SE-912
Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

RCM/P-SE-913
Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

RCM/P-SE-914
Parking

This bank contains permit applications and correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on government-owned or leased property. Records for deductions for payment of parking fees are included in the Pay and Benefits Bank while records of parking violations are maintained by the RCMP. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information for the administration of parking privileges. The information is used to issue parking permits. Records are destroyed two years after the permit expires.

Personal Harassment

This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation. The information is used to support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees. Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Chapter 92

ROYAL CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

Background

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police was formed in 1873, under an Act of Parliament. In accordance with the present RCMP Act, the Commissioner, under the direction of the Solicitor General of Canada, is responsible for the control and management of the Force.

Overall Responsibilities

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police enforces laws throughout Canada made by or under the authority of Parliament. Administration of justice within the provinces, including enforcement of the Criminal Code, is the responsibility of provincial governments. The RCMP has contract agreements with the two territories and all provinces, except Ontario and Quebec, to enforce criminal, territorial and provincial laws, pursuant to section 20 of the RCMP Act.

The Headquarters of the Force is located in Ottawa. The Force is divided into divisions, each division being roughly responsible for a province or territory and is further divided into subdivisions and detachments. Under the Commissioner at Headquarters, functional direction is provided to the divisions by the Deputy Commissioner in charge of Administration, the Deputy Commissioner in charge of Criminal Operations, the Deputy Commissioner in charge of Protective Operations, and the Deputy Commissioner in charge of Law Enforcement Services.

Specialized support is offered to the divisions by Air, Marine, Forensic Laboratory and by Identification Services.

The RCMP Academy located at Regina, Saskatchewan is responsible for recruit training. The RCMP Musical Ride and the RCMP Band are located in Ottawa and are administered by Headquarters. Additionally, the RCMP is responsible for the administration of the Canadian Police College, located in Ottawa. The Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC), a computer-based police information system, is also based at and administered by RCMP Headquarters in Ottawa.

The CPIC system is an advanced computerized information storage and retrieval facility, designed for the use of participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. The CPIC acts as a central repository of operational data that is contributed to and maintained by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies. RCMP records entered into the system are identified in their respective Bank of Personal Information. The participating Canadian law enforcement agencies are entirely responsible for the accuracy and immediacy of the data which they supply and maintain within the CPIC System. Records entered into the CPIC system by participating Canadian law enforcement agencies must be supported by documented reports held by the originator. The originating agency is the only one entitled or enabled to alter their records in the system.

Access Procedures

All requests for personal information under the Privacy Act are processed centrally and should be addressed to

The Commissioner
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
1200 Alta Vista Drive
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 0R2
Attention: Departmental Privacy Co-ordinator

The diversity of operations within the federal, provincial, municipal and territorial jurisdictions results in information storage systems that are decentralized, except for matters of national security where one master system is maintained in Ottawa. For this reason persons submitting requests for personal information on the Personal Information Request Form must indicate the geographic location they want searched.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions, and cover members of the public service employed by the RCMP.

CMP/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, or two years following a longer term absence, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code
Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.
Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

SCIENCE COUNCIL OF CANADA

Chapter 93

SCIENCE COUNCIL OF CANADA

Background

The Science Council of Canada was created by the federal government in 1966 to provide independent advice on science and technology policy in Canada. Its duties are set out in the Science Council of Canada Act and were enlarged by amendments made in 1978. Reporting to Parliament through the Minister of State for Science and Technology, the Council operates at arm's length from government, designing its own programs of research and publishing its findings at its own discretion. The Council is involved in a number of projects in different areas of science and technology policy at any given time. Major studies on topics selected by the Council, are usually carried out under the guidance of a committee, composed either of Council members or of Council members and outside experts. Research and policy analysis are conducted by Science Council research staff and, when necessary, outside consultants. The work may involve conferences or workshops that permit the participation of individuals from across Canada who are concerned with the issue under study. Science Council staff also carry out feasibility studies of proposed research projects, studies of urgent issues identified by the Council executive and studies requested by the Minister of State for Science and Technology.

The Science Council consists of a chairman, a vice-chairman and up to 28 members drawn from all regions of Canada and representative of a wide variety of disciplines and interests, with a balance maintained between the academic and industrial communities. With the exception of the chairman and vice-chairman, all serve without remuneration.

Overall Responsibilities

The Council's major responsibilities are to analyze science and technology policy issues; recommend policy direction to government; keep Canadians informed as to the impact of science and technology on their lives; and stimulate discussion of science and technology policy among governments, industry and academic institutions.

Access Procedures

Information on the Council's access and privacy procedures may be obtained from the Director of Finance, Personnel and Administration, who is the Access to Information and Privacy Co-ordinator. All written requests should be addressed to

STANDARD BANKS

SCC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

SCC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Official Languages

Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.

Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.

Occupational Safety and Health

Description: The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports, after which the records are destroyed. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

SIR/P-PU-005

Section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Complaints Against the Canadian Security Intelligence Service

The Security Intelligence Review Committee may receive complaints from any person with respect to any act or thing done by the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the Committee shall investigate the complaint if (a) the complainant has made a complaint to the Director with respect to that act or thing and the complainant has not received a response within such period of time as the Committee considers reasonable, or is dissatisfied with the response given; and (b) the Committee is satisfied that the complaint is not trival, frivolous, vexatious or made in bad faith. Upon completion of its investigation of a section 41 complaint, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General and the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service with a report and will then advise the complainant of the Committee's conclusions and recommendations. The information was obtained to complete investigations resulting from the submission of a complaint against the CSIS under section 41 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations resulting from the investigation of a complaint.

SIR/P-PU-010

Section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Complaints from Federal Employees — Including DND and Contractors

When complaints are received from individuals where, by reason only of the denial of a security clearance required by the Government of Canada, a decision is made by a deputy head to deny employment to an individual or to deny a promotion or transfer to an individual, or to deny an individual or any other person a contract to provide goods or services to the Government of Canada, the deputy head shall send, within ten days after the decision is made, a notice informing the individual of the denial of the security clearance. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after receiving a complaint made under section 42, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to the Committee as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the denial of the security clearance and shall send a copy of the statement to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service. Upon completion of an investigation in relation to a complaint under section 42, the Review Committee shall provide the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the deputy head concerned with a report containing any recommendations that the Committee considers appropriate and those findings of the investigation that the Committee considers it fit to report to the complainant. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 42 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations made following the investigation.

SIR/P-PU-015

Section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Reports Submitted to the Canadian Human Rights Commission

When, at any stage after the filing of a complaint with the Human Rights Commission and before the commencement of a hearing before a Human Rights Tribunal in respect thereof, the Commission receives written notice from a Minister of the Crown in right of Canada that the practice to which the complaint relates was based on considerations relating to the security of Canada, the Commission may (a) dismiss the complaint; or (b) refer the matter to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. The Security Intelligence Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a matter in relation to a complaint under subsection 36.1 of the Canadian Human Rights Act is referred to it, send to the complainant a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the complainant to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the referral. Upon completion of its investigation, the Review Committee shall provide the Commission, the Minister concerned, the Solicitor General, the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the complainant with a report containing the findings of the Committee. This information relates to any individual who has filed a complaint with the Canadian Human Rights Commission, or the person against whom the complaint was made. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 73 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation.

SIR/P-PU-020

Section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act — Citizenship Reports

The Secretary of State for Citizenship under subsection 17 of the Citizenship Act may make a report to the Review Committee when he is of the opinion that a person should not be granted citizenship under section 5 or subsection 10(1) or administered the oath of citizenship or be issued a certificate of renunciation under section 8 because there are reasonable grounds to believe that the person will engage in activity that constitutes a threat to the security of Canada, or that is part of a pattern of criminal activity planned and organized by a number of persons acting in concert in furtherance of the commission of any offence that may be punishable under any Act of Parliament by way of indictment. The Secretary of State shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person of the report and stating that following an investigation in relation thereto, a declaration with respect to that person may be made by the Governor in Council under section 18. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it pursuant to paragraph 1 above, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it, make a report to the Governor in Council on all matters relating thereto; and at the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council provide the complainant with a report containing the conclusions of the report. The complete report is also sent to the Director of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service and the Solicitor General. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Citizenship under section 17 of the Citizenship Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 75 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation.

SIR/P-PU-025

Section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act — Immigration Reports

Under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Act, the Minister of Employment and Immigration and the Solicitor General may make a report to the Review Committee when they are of the opinion, based on security or criminal intelligence reports received and considered by them, that a person, other than a Canadian citizen, is (a) in the case of a permanent resident, a person described in subparagraph 19(1)(d)(ii) or paragraph 19(1)(e) or (g) or 27(1)(c) of the Immigration Act, or (b) in any other case, a person described in any of paragraphs 19(1)(d) to (g) or 27(2)(c) of the Immigration Act. They shall, within ten days after the report is made, cause a notice to be sent informing the person that following an investigation in relation thereto, a deportation order may be made against that person. The Review Committee shall, as soon as practicable after a report is made to it, send to the person with respect to whom the report is made a statement summarizing such information available to it as will enable the person to be as fully informed as possible of the circumstances giving rise to the report. The Review Committee shall, upon completion of an investigation in relation to a report made to it pursuant to subsection 2, make a report to the Governor in Council containing its conclusion as to whether or not a certificate should be issued under subsection 40(1) and the grounds on which that conclusion is based. At the same time as or after a report is made to the Governor in Council, the Committee shall provide the person with respect to whom the report is made with another report containing the Committee's conclusions. This information relates to any individual who is the subject of a report made to the Review Committee by the Secretary of State for Immigration under sections 19 and 27 of the Immigration Act. This information was obtained as part of an investigation by the Review Committee under section 79 of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act. Consistent uses are to support the recommendations arrived at following the investigation.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

PARTICULAR BANKS

SIR/P-PE-801

SIRC Employee Personnel, Pay and Benefits Records

This bank contains personal information on individuals who are currently, or have been, employees of the Security Intelligence Review Committee, with respect to such material as personal evaluation forms, career resumés and job descriptions. This bank also contains correspondence relating to the administration of pay and benefits. The information was obtained to make decisions concerning hiring, promoting, transfers and continued service, and also to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits to Committee employees. Consistent uses are for planning, evaluation and statistical analysis and for the administration of the pay and benefits of Committee employees.

SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES RESEARCH COUNCIL

Chapter 95

SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES RESEARCH COUNCIL

Background

The Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council is a grant-giving body whose funds are voted by Parliament. Its mandate, in the terms of Section 5 of the Government Organization (Scientific Activities) Act, 1976, is "to promote and assist research and scholarship in the social sciences and humanities; and advise the Minister in respect of such matters relating to such research as the Minister may refer to the Council for its consideration." The Council administers programs of fellowships for research training and support, grants for research, international scholarly exchanges, research resources, scholarly publishing, conferences and other research-related activities.

Access Procedures

Files on all applicants for Council grants for the last four years are kept at the Council's office in Ottawa. The Council's policy on the retention/disposal of files is under review. Any enquiries on the following banks should be addressed to

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

SHR/P-PU-005

Applicants' History Cards and Payment Notices

Applicants' history cards for individuals and organizations are kept in all program divisions: fellowships, research grants, strategic grants, research communication and international relations. These cards, which are cumulative over the life of the program, are identified by the applicant's name and file number. The information for individual applicants includes data recorded in the On-Line Applicant History File (see SHR/P-PU-040), plus records of amounts requested and amounts awarded. Some program divisions and the Finance Division also keep copies of award notice forms, which contain the applicant's name, address, university, grant number, award payee, title of project, amount requested and amount awarded.

SHR/P-PU-010

Fellowship Applications and Committee Records

This bank contains records of individual applications for the following fellowships: special M.A. scholarships, the Queen's Fellowships, doctoral fellowships, post-doctoral fellowships, leave fellowships, the Jules and Gabrielle Léger Fellowship, Canada Research Fellowships, Bora Laskin National Fellowship in Human Rights Research, and the Thérèse F. Casgrain Postdoctoral Fellowship. It includes applications, history cards, third-party assessments, committee rankings and appraisals, and travel and administrative details for fellowship holders. The information is used to assess the applicant's education and other requirements necessary to meet the criteria of the various programs, and to evaluate the merits of the applicant for funding. Files are identified by the applicant's name and by a three-part number indicating the competition code, the year and an identifying number. Successful and unsuccessful files are stored separately.

SHR/P-PU-015

Research Grant Applications and Committee Records

This bank contains records of applications by individuals and institutions for research grants, major research grants, negotiated grants and general research grants. It includes applications, history cards, project descriptions, third-party and committee assessments, and travel and administrative details for grant holders. The information is used to assess the eligibility and experience of the researchers applying, and the merit and scholarly significance of the proposed projects for funding. Files are identified by the applicant's name, and by a three-part number indicating the competition code, the year and an identifying number. Successful and unsuccessful files are stored separately.

SHR/P-PU-020

Strategic Grants Applications and Committee Records

This bank contains records of applications by individuals and institutions for grants under programs administered by the Strategic Grants Division. These programs are for thematic research and research development on the themes of population aging; the family and the socialization of children; the human context of science and technology; women and work; managing the organization in Canada, and Education and work in a Changing Society. Funds are also granted for the development of management research, Canadian studies, research tools, support for specialized research collections, and aid to small universities. The bank includes applications, history cards, project descriptions, third-party and committee assessments, and travel and administrative details for grant holders. The information is used to assess the eligibility and experience of the researchers applying, and the merit and scholarly significance of the proposed project for funding. Files are identified by the applicant's name, and by a three-part number indicating the competition code, the year and an identifying number. Successful and unsuccessful files are stored separately.

SHR/P-PU-025

Research Communication Applications and Committee Records

This bank contains records of applications for funding under the following programs: aid to learned journals, conference grants and aid to associations. It includes applications, history cards, third-party and committee assessments and travel and administrative details for grant holders. The information is used to determine the eligibility, merit and scholarly significance of the proposed projects for funding. Files are identified by university or association name and by a three-part number indicating the competition code, the year and an identifying number. Successful and unsuccessful files are stored separately.

SHR/P-PU-030

International Relations Applications and Committee Records

This bank contains records of applications by individuals and organizations for grants for international representation, conferences, collaborative research, visiting lecturers and scholarly exchanges. It includes applications, third-party and committee assessments, history cards, and travel and administrative details for grant holders. The information is used to determine the eligibility of the applicants and the merit and scholarly significance of their proposals for funding. Files are identified by the applicant's name and by a three-part number indicating the competition code, the year and an identifying number. Successful and unsuccessful files are stored separately.

SOCIAL SCIENCES AND HUMANITIES RESEARCH COUNCIL

SHR/P-PU-035

Grant Application Records Management System (GARMS)

This system monitors and controls applications from individuals for Council grants and fellowships. The system includes three data banks: the On-Line Applicant History File (SHR/P-PU-040); the Adjudication Record, Fellowships Program (SHR/P-PU-045); and the Adjudication Record, Research Grants Program (SHR/P-PU-050).

SHR/P-PU-040

On-Line Applicant History File (OAHF)

This data bank contains information on all individuals who apply for Council grants and fellowships. Each applicant is identified by name and year of birth. The file also contains information on the applicant's academic background, occupation, sex, language of application, and citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident). The number assigned to each application made by an individual to the Council is included in the file, along with a code indicating the result of that application. This bank is used to identify applicants and constitutes a history of Council support to individuals.

SHR/P-PU-045

Adjudication Record, Fellowships Program

This data bank contains information on all individuals who apply for Council fellowships in the current competition. Each applicant is identified by name and the file number assigned to the application. The bank also contains the applicant's date of birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application, the Council's decision on the application and the amount of the basic award.

SHR/P-PU-050

Adjudication Record, Research Grants Program

This data bank contains information on all individuals who apply for Council research grants. The information about award holders is kept for three years after the date of last activity. Each applicant is identified by name and year of birth, academic qualifications, discipline and the file number assigned to the application. The file also contains the title of the research project, summary of the selection committee's comments on the project, and the amounts of money requested and awarded.

SHR/P-PU-051

Adjudication Record, Research Communication Program (New)

This data bank contains information on all individuals and associations who apply for grants within the Council's research communication program in the current competitions. Applications from individuals are identified by name and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applicant's date of birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application (French or English), the Council's decision on the application and the amount of money requested and granted. Applications from associations are identified by name of the association or university and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applying organization's address, the name of the person applying for the organization, and the Council's decision.

SHR/P-PU-052

Adjudication Record, International Relations Program (New)

This data bank contains information on all individuals and associations who apply for grants within the Council's international relations program in the current competitions. Applications from individuals are identified by name and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applicant's date of birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application (French or English), the Council's decision on the application and the amount of money requested and granted. Applications from associations are identified by name of the association or university and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applying organization's address, the name of the person applying for the organization, and the Council's decision.

SHR/P-PU-053

Adjudication Record, Strategic Grants Program (New)

This data bank contains information on all individuals and associations who apply for grants within the Council's strategic grants program in the current competitions. Applications from individuals are identified by name and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applicant's date of birth, address, academic qualifications, occupation, citizenship (Canadian or permanent resident), language of application (French or English), the Council's decision on the application and the amount of money requested and granted. Applications from associations are identified by name of the association or university and file number assigned to the application. The bank contains the applying organization's address, the name of the person applying for the organization, and the Council's decision.

SHR/P-PU-055

Grant Financial System

This system controls and monitors the Council's disbursements to, and accounts receivable with individual fellowship holders. The award holder is identified by the basic personal information and file number from the On-Line Applicant History File (see SHR/P-PU-040). The information also includes the award holder's social insurance number, bank account number and payment requisition for funds committed. The information is used for administrative and financial control and reporting. It is also the basis for the creation of transaction files on payments to award holders, and the issuance of T4A slips.

SHR/P-PU-060

Policy and Planning, Evaluation Applicant History File

The Council's Policy and Planning Division prepares statistical analyses and projections. For its studies and reporting of client participation in Council programs the division uses the on-line data and applicant history cards kept by individual program divisions. It also maintains its own duplicate set of applicant history cards for the Research Grants and Strategic Grants programs, containing all information in the On-Line Applicant History File (SHR/P-PU-040), plus records of amounts requested and amounts awarded.

SHR/P-PU-065

Committee Files

The Council's secretariat maintains a file of suggested candidates for membership on Council committees. Committee members are proposed by universities and learned societies. The data bank is divided into two parts: a card file with the name, address, affiliation, discipline and area of academic specialization, classed by discipline and region; and a set of binders containing personal résumés obtained from nominees, filed in alphabetical order. This bank dates from 1978.

SHR/P-PU-070
Assessor Files

Program officers in the Research Grants, Research Communication, Strategic Grants and International Relations Divisions keep card files of assessors who have evaluated projects for the Council, or who might be prospective assessors. A number of sets of assessor files are stored on an experimental basis in a microcomputer. The information contained in these files includes the assessor's name and address and area of specialization as well as a record of the project(s) that each has evaluated. Assessors are chosen from reference books listing scholars and their area of expertise and from the recommendations of other scholars. Some 8,000 to 9,000 individual assessors may be consulted each year.

PARTICULAR BANKS

SHR/P-PE-801
Conflict of Interest

This bank contains voluntary disclosures by employees concerning potential conflict of interest situations and investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of employees and their official duties. Information contained in this bank pertains to departmental employees. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution, to record potential conflicts of interest and to resolve actual conflicts of interest. Information in this bank is used to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment. Records are retained for two years after potential conflict of interest no longer exists or actual conflict of interest has been resolved, after which the records are destroyed.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters.

SHR/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record

This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation. The information is used to authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes. The information is retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

SHR/P-SE-902
Staffing

The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examinations papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The bank provides a record of the informaton used in staffing positions in a government institution, and is used to select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted. The records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-903

Attendance and Leave

This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies. The information is used to record attendance and authorize leave, to support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year.

SHR/P-SE-904

Pay and Benefits

This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.) The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances. The information is used to enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of the fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

SHR/P-SE-905

Training and Development

This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions. The information is used to approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees. The records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.

SHR/P-SE-906

Official Languages

This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees. The information is used to support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs. Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-907

Occupational Safety and Health

The bank contains accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, related correspondence and copies of the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, which are retained by institutions in the appropriate responsibility centre. First Aid Treatment records are also retained by the institution in accordance with Treasury Board policy. Records, including medical documents about individuals; claims for compensation; related correspondence and records of monies paid are held by Labour Canada. Records of occupational health evaluations and all personal medical data are retained by the Medical Services Branch, Health and Welfare Canada under medical confidential status. Records concerning the occurrence, investigation and settlement of vehicle accidents are retained in Standard Bank P-SE-908. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of occupational safety and health programs in government institutions, including accident prevention, health protection and authorization of leave and benefits associated with work-related injury or illness. Safety and health details and causes of accidents/injuries for accident prevention and health protection purposes are also recorded to support the effective administration of each institution's safety and health program. The information is used to support decisions relating to worker's compensation and injury-on-duty leave; to act as a means of preventing injuries and illnesses and subsequent disabilities arising out of, or aggravated by, conditions of work; to establish that individuals subject to certain identified occupational risks are able to continue working without detriment to their health or safety or to that of others; and to establish the conditions under which certain individuals with identified illnesses or disabilities are able to continue to work under controlled conditions. The period of retention of the records is five years for first aid treatment records; two years for accident and occupational injury or illness investigation reports, including related correspondence and the supervisor's Accident Investigation Report, or ten years for those specifically identified reports. Records held by Labour Canada and Health and Welfare Canada are retained for the periods specified in the relevant bank descriptions.

This bank contains completed personal histories; summaries of Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) (previously, RCMP Security Service) investigations; fingerprint cards; criminal histories; social insurance number; security briefings and correspondence related to the security clearances of employees. Notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Details of CSIS investigations are maintained in a CSIS bank. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information pertinent to the determination of the appropriate level of security clearance for government employees whose position requires a security classification; to determine the level of security clearance and to provide information for the administration of government security measures. In making decisions on levels of clearance, institutions may refer only to the information contained in this bank and not to investigative information contained in the CSIS bank. The information is used to support decisions on transfers, promotions, discipline and termination of employment. Two years after an employee leaves the institution for which the clearance was done the records are destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-910

Grievances

This bank contains presentations by employees and bargaining unit representatives; receipt notices and replies by management; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigation and analysis reports; job descriptions in regard to classification grievances, and correspondence about grievances. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to record information used in the grievance process through all levels up to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Information contained in this bank is used exclusively to accommodate and, where possible, resolve grievances through all levels in the grievance process, up to referral to the Public Service Staff Relations Board. Three years following date of resolution or date of decision by the Public Service Staff Relations Board the records are destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-911

Discipline

This bank contains notices of disciplinary action and correspondence about employee misconduct; testimony by witnesses; legal opinions; investigations of possible misconduct and analysis reports of these investigations. It is important to note that notices of disciplinary action may be attached to the Employee Personnel Record. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information used in disciplinary actions in government institutions and to determine the need for and nature of disciplinary actions. The information is used to support decisions on pay and benefits; attendance and leave; transfer, demotion and termination of employment. The retention period for correspondence regarding investigations, testimony by witnesses and legal opinions is five years for cases where employee was found guilty of misconduct and three years for cases where employee was found not guilty. For notices of disciplinary action, including notices attached to the Employee Personnel Record, the time limit is that specified in applicable collective agreements or, where no such agreement exists, three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-912

Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals

This bank contains appraisals, reports and correspondence concerning an employee's work performance in terms of skills, abilities, accomplishments and interests. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding the level of performance of individual employees within government institutions, and to determine the level of performance of individual employees, including the identification of training and development needs, approval of performance pay and annual increments, retention of employees, extension of probation and rejection of employees on probation. The information is used to support decisions regarding promotions, transfers, demotion, employee assistance, discipline and termination of employment. Records are destroyed after ten years for employees in the Management Resources Information System and three years for all other employees.

SHR/P-SE-913

Travel and Relocation

This bank contains authorizations, advances, claims, receipts, travel arrangements and itineraries, and correspondence concerning travel, relocation or postings of employees. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information regarding travel, relocation and postings of government employees. The information is used to administer the travel and relocation functions with respect to their approval as well as posting authorizations, advances and claims. Records are destroyed six years following the fiscal year in which the travel or relocation claim was settled.

SHR/P-SE-916

Employee Assistance

This bank contains information treated in a confidential fashion that is relative to an employee's involvement in an Employee Assistance Program (EAP); notice of voluntary or mandatory (supervisory work-performance related) referral; records of reference to, or reports and correspondence from a health professional or rehabilitation agency; and only non-medical interpretations concerning an employee's work capability or limitations. All personal medical data shall be maintained in a medical protected status under the control of the Medical Services Branch, National Health and Welfare. Records relating to work performance deficiencies, absenteeism and disciplinary matters are to be held in the appropriate institutional personal information bank and not held with EAP files. The information in this bank relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of the bank is to record information necessary to the administration of the Employee Assistance Program and to determine the need for employee assistance counselling, referrals for medical evaluations and participation in rehabilitation programs. The information is used to support decisions regarding employee assistance measures. Two years following the date of the most recent reference to employee assistance the records are destroyed.

SHR/P-SE-917

Identification and Building-Pass Cards

This bank contains photographs, identification forms including social insurance number, and correspondence related to the issuance of identification and building pass cards. Provision of the SIN by individuals is not mandatory. The information relates to employees of the institution. The purpose of this bank is to maintain information relating to the issuance of identification and building-pass cards. The information is used to issue identification and building pass cards. Records are destroyed two years after expiry of identification and building-pass cards.

STANDARDS COUNCIL OF CANADA

Chapter 96

STANDARDS COUNCIL OF CANADA

Background

The Standards Council of Canada (SCC) was established in 1970 by an Act of Parliament to foster and promote voluntary standardization in Canada as a means of advancing the national economy, benefiting the health, safety and welfare of the public, assisting and protecting consumers, facilitating domestic and international trade, and furthering international co-operation in the field of standards.

Overall Responsibilities

The Council carries out its task through the National Standards System (NSS), a federation of accredited independent organizations concerned with standards writing, certification, and testing co-ordinated by the SCC. The system was created to provide a medium through which Canadian organizations involved in such activities may operate and co-operate to recognize, establish and improve standardization in Canada. It provides a comprehensive Canadian standardization capability to meet both national and international requirements and responsibilities.

The Council ensures effective Canadian participation in the work of the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC) and any other similar international organizations engaged in the formulation of voluntary standards. Both of these international agencies have as their objective the development of standards, with a view to facilitating international exchange of goods and services. ISO work is concerned with standardization in many disciplines, except for the electrotechnology field which is IEC's responsibility.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

STANDARD BANKS

SDC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

STATISTICS CANADA

Chapter 97

STATISTICS CANADA

Background

Statistics Canada collects and provides statistical information on the characteristics and behaviour of Canadian households, businesses, institutions and governments for research, policy development, program administration, decision-making and general informational purposes. This is done under the authority of the Statistics Act which prohibits the disclosure of identifiable information to anyone but the individual concerned.

The statistical information banks maintained by Statistics Canada contain some personal information that has been obtained from a variety of sources. Information is collected directly from the individual through the censuses of population and agriculture, from sample surveys such as surveys on income and expenditure, labour force surveys and special surveys. It is also collected through certain formal agreements the agency has entered into with large social institutions and various levels of Canadian governments. These arrangements give Statistics Canada access to administrative records for the purpose of extracting data on the client populations of the institutions of Health, Education and Justice and on the activities of the population as it comes in contact with the state (e.g., the registration of births, deaths and marriages).

One of the most important of these agreements is one Statistics Canada has with Revenue Canada (Taxation) to access taxation returns for statistical purposes, thus allowing the use of an administrative file of the federal government containing a wealth of information on the socio-economic fabric of the Canadian population. The accessing of taxation records has allowed Statistics Canada to exempt many respondents, particularly small businesses, from the filing of regular questionnaires. Statistics Canada also accesses administrative files of other federal government departments relating to unemployment insurance and divorces.

Information banks maintained by Statistics Canada are largely automated. Since records in these banks are meant to be used for statistical purposes and not for administrative purposes, they are rarely classified by name. In fact, few data banks contain names. Some banks are organized by a unique identifier, be it a number assigned by Statistics Canada, a number assigned by the administrative source, such as a registration number, or the social insurance number. Records in other banks are classified geographically, or by the name of the company. It should be noted that many of the statistical data banks contain only a sample of the population. To locate a statistical record, Statistics Canada will require, in most cases, not only an identifier, but additional information such as the time period in which an individual has responded to a survey, or his/her street address, or his/her industry sector.

Access Procedures

Section 12 of the Privacy Act gives every person the right to obtain information about him/herself contained in a personal information bank or other personal information about him/herself under the control of a government institution. Because some of the information Statistics Canada has was obtained through data-sharing agreements, such information cannot in many cases be disclosed to anyone unless express authorization is obtained from the data source. Consequently, Statistics Canada will redirect a request to the data source which, in many cases, will be more expedient in terms of time and cost savings, since that source has collected the information for administrative purposes and can more readily retrieve the information than Statistics Canada can.

Census Operations Division

STC/P-PU-005

Census of Population — Microfilmed Records

Description: This bank contains information obtained from the censuses of population taken since 1891. The records are identified by name and contain information on the social and economic characteristics of every person in the country. The records in this bank, which are organized on a geographical basis, are microfilmed copies of the original questionnaire dating back to 1891. To retrieve a record from this data bank, the precise address at the time of the census is required. Please note that only the individual named in the record can have access to information it contains, or the legal representative of a minor, incompetent or deceased person, but only to settle the affairs of the estate of that person.
Class of Individuals: All individuals in Canada at the time of the census.
Purpose: The Census of Population is a national inventory of Canada's key socio-economic phenomena, conducted at prescribed intervals by statutory requirement. The data collected, when compiled into statistics, are used for a wide range of purposes including the determination of economic and social policies, planning industrial development, and estimating needs for schools, roads and many other public services. Population figures are used to determine electoral district boundaries, and to calculate per capita grants to provinces and municipalities.
Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Current policy is to retain these records for 100 years.

1940 National Registration Records

Description: The records provide social and economic information on individuals as well as information on their skills.
Class of Individuals: All persons 16 years of age or older in the period 1940-1946 with the exception of those people who were, at the time of registration, members of the armed forces or a religious order, or confined to an institution.
Purpose: The information was originally obtained under the authority of the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, and the War Measures Act to permit the mobilization of all of the effective resources of the nation, both human and material, for the purpose of the defence and security of Canada. The National Registration Regulations pursuant to this legislation gave custody of the records to Statistics Canada, then known as the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Consistent Uses: A program has been established called the Census Pension Searches to provide proof of age, place of residence, family relationships or length of residence in Canada from historic census records and 1940 National Registration Records. The service is normally provided in support of application for pensions, citizenship, passports and similar situations where other more preferred administration records are required but no longer exist or, as in a number of cases, were never issued.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The current policy is to retain these records for 100 years.

Household Surveys Division

STC/P-PU-015
Labour Force Survey
Description: The Labour Force Survey is a monthly survey conducted on a sample basis of approximately 48 000 households. The records are identified by name and carry information on the composition, activities and characteristics of individuals who constitute the Canadian labour force. Data content includes the demographic profile of the respondent, employment profile, such as name of employer, hours of work, and tenure. For those without work, information is available on work history, job search activities, and type of work sought. Data are also available on the educational pursuits of the respondent. The data are maintained in such a way as to permit the production of statistics at the level of selected Census Metropolitan Areas (CMA), economic regions and the provinces, and for selected non-CMA urban areas based on quarterly estimates. It is for this reason that information relating to an individual cannot be retrieved based on name alone. The requestor must provide the month(s) and year surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. There are also a number of special surveys that are conducted as supplements to the Labour Force Survey covering a variety of topics including work patterns, leisure time activities, absence from work, travel to work, income, etc. To retrieve a record, the requestor must provide the subject of the special survey, the year the survey was conducted, and the precise address at the time of the survey.
Class of Individuals: Individuals who constitute the Canadian labour force.
Purpose: The main purpose of the bank is to produce unemployment figures. The data also enable a wide variety of additional information to be derived on the characteristics of the Canadian labour force and on the population over age 15 in general.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 50 years.

Longitudinal Income Sample
Description: This bank contains socio-demographic data of sample individuals from the 1971 Census, and income components from tax returns. The income components as well as the marital status are updated with annual data from tax returns. Records are identified by a census identifier number. This file has been dormant since 1980.
Class of Individuals: Individuals randomly sampled from the 1971 Census and where the individual has filed a tax return.
Purpose: This bank is used to produce data used exclusively for statistical research and production of longitudinal income profiles.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retention and bank disposal standards are indeterminate — the life span of the file depends on how long the sample numbers can be linked to the tax returns.

Agriculture Database
Description: This database contains information obtained from the Census of Agriculture which is a statutory requirement, and from both farm and non-farm surveys. The records carry information on the socio-economic characteristics of farm operators and information relating to crops, livestock, poultry, machinery, farm operating expenses and agriculture receipts. From the non-farm surveys, information is available on production, inventory and sales in both the fruit and vegetable processing and the dairy processing sectors. The database also contains information from both the grain and oilseed industries.
Class of Individuals: Individuals considered to be farm operators.
Purpose: This bank provides a base inventory of Canadian agriculture, provides input to the System of National Accounts and provides information for production, marketing and policy decisions.
Consistent Uses: Statistics Canada may release name and address information to other members of the national agricultural statistical system for statistical purposes if both the legal requirements imposed by the Statistics Act under section 16 and departmental list release policy guidelines are met.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Currently, records are retained for 100 years.

Integrated Vital Statistics Database
Description: This bank has integrated information obtained from the universal systems of registration of births, marriages, deaths and stillbirths. These are originally recorded and accumulated by registrars of vital statistics in each province and territory. The information on births relates to place of birth, particulars on parents (name, birthdate, marital status of mother) and particulars of the child (surname and name). The information on stillbirths relate to particulars of the child, (place of birth, sex, weight) and particulars of parents (name, birthdate, ethnic group). The marriage component of the data base contains information on the bride and bridegroom (name, marital status, birthdate, mother tongue), particulars of parents (name, birthdate, birthplace) and on the date and place of marriage. Information on deaths relates to name of deceased; date, place and cause of death. The information has been obtained through formal arrangements with the provinces and is to be used for statistical purposes only. Statistics Canada, therefore, is unable to respond to requests for information contained in this bank, pursuant to section 19(1)(c) of the Privacy Act. Any individual wishing to obtain information relating to the registration of births, marriages or deaths should contact the appropriate provincial registrar.

Class of Individuals: This information, collected annually, relates to all individuals who were born in Canada or the United States and are Canadian residents; married or died in Canada; or a Canadian resident who died in the United States.
Purpose: The purpose of the bank is to provide input into the production of estimates of births, marriages and deaths for Canada and the provinces. These data are also used in special studies relating to, for example, mortality, fertility and life expectancy. Vital statistics are the prime components used in intercensal population estimates.
Consistent Uses: The Mortality Database, which forms part of the Integrated Vital Statistics Database, is used as one of the input files in long-term medical follow-up studies. It provides information on date, cause and place of death for individuals in a particular study group (see Personal Information Bank STC/P-PU-076).

Long Term Medical Follow-up Study Files

Description: The Long-Term Medical Study Files are comprised of information from two sources: input study files from groups outside of Statistics Canada, and the Mortality Database which is part of the Integrated Vital Statistics Database STC/P-PU-035 maintained by Health Division. The input files contain records of individuals which have been supplied by employers, unions, health surveys or other research groups. These input files are then matched to the Mortality Database to provide information on date, cause and place of death. The input study files may contain from several hundred to many hundreds of thousands of records depending on the size of the study group. Individual identifying information includes names, birthdate, birthplace and place of residence. The name of the individual's parents or spouse may also be included where this information is required to confirm the validity of a linkage. The input study file and the file containing the death records to which the study file records were linked are kept separately. An identification number is present on both files which can bring corresponding records together if necessary. The files are stored on passworded tapes in the Statistics Canada tape library.

Class of Individuals: This database contains records of individuals who form part of population groups identified by employers, unions, health surveys, or other research organizations.

Purpose: Health statistics, in general, are used to describe the state of health of the Canadian people and the occurrence of illnesses. In particular, these files are primarily used to provide researchers with data they need to compare the rates and causes of death in groups exposed to different levels or types of chemicals, diet, medical treatment, x-rays, disease, etc. This in turn gives information needed by policy makers to set appropriate levels of exposure to toxic agents in occupational, environmental and medical settings.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The files are generally retained for a minimum of five years.

Post-secondary Student Survey
Description: The survey population for the 1984 Post-secondary Student Survey (approximately 944 000 individuals) was provided by the registrars of post-secondary institutions and included the name, address, telephone number and registration characteristics of all students registered in a regular credit course during the fall term of the 1983-84 school year. A sample of 64 000 individuals was selected for the survey from this population. A total of 45 000 responses were received. The survey sought information relating to the current education, other education and employment of the respondent, as well as background characteristics. It also collected information with respect to how the respondents financed their education.
Class of Individuals: This information relates to all students registered for credit courses in Canadian universities and community colleges or equivalent institutions at the time of the survey.
Purpose: The purpose of the Post-Secondary Student Survey is to provide comprehensive data on those who attend post-secondary institutions in Canada, their fields and levels of study, and how they finance their post-secondary education. The data will provide a basis for the analysis of such issues as accessibility to post-secondary education in Canada.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 100 years.

National Graduates Survey
Description: The sample for the 1984 National Graduates Survey was selected from lists of 1982 graduates obtained from colleges, universities and vocational schools in Canada. These lists contained information relating to approximately 220 000 individuals and included the name, address, telephone number and student identification number of each individual. Approximately 50 000 persons were selected to be surveyed and, of these, approximately 36 000 responded. The survey collected information relating to the post-secondary studies, work and other experiences before post-secondary studies and general information relating to the respondent (e.g., age, marital status and language). At the same time, information was collected concerning salary levels two years after graduation, the amount of employment and unemployment experienced during the first two years, the occupation and industry of employment, the relationship between field of study and occupation, and the geographical destination of graduates.
Class of Individuals: This information relates to graduates from vocational, college and university programs in calendar year 1982.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to produce statistical information which is used to monitor the experiences of vocational, college and university graduates in the transition from school to work, and to provide general information to students, educational planners, labour analysts and the general public on this transition; to provide information required by analysts developing occupational supply and demand projections models, conducting related studies of supply/demand imbalances in the labour market; to provide a subjective assessment of graduates' level of satisfaction in a number of areas; where appropriate, to determine to what extent employment is related, partially related or unrelated to the field of graduation; to compare the employment experiences of 1976 graduates in 1978 with those of 1982 graduates in 1984; to determine to what extent the retraining of persons with considerable work experience has become a major activity, particularly in vocational schools and colleges, and to assess if the retraining results in a career change and related employment; and to determine the amount and direction of inter-provincial movement of graduates of various types.

Database on Disabled Persons

Description: This database contains information on disabled persons in Canada, including the number of disabled persons, the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers faced by disabled persons. The information also addresses the need, use and availability of special aids and services. Although the name of the disabled person was collected at the time of the survey, it is not data-captured and, therefore, does not appear on the automated database. The precise address of the disabled person at the time of the survey is required, therefore, to locate a record.

Class of Individuals: Disabled persons in Canada.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to identify those Canadians who, for health-related reasons, are limited in the amount of activity they can perform on a day-to-day basis, and the nature and severity of the disability and the barriers that they face. This information is essential, particularly to governments and private organizations, to the process of developing programs and policies to eliminate these barriers.

Consistent Uses: The 1986 Census of Population was used to identify a sample of disabled persons who were subsequently interviewed in the Health and Activity Limitation Survey. The output of this survey was linked back to the 1986 Census of Population file to obtain demographic data which were not included in the survey questionnaires. This would ease the burden on respondents since they had already provided this data for the Census.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for one hundred (100) years

Classes of Personal Information

Business Statistics

The business database contains information which relates to the major industrial and services sectors of the economy. The information is obtained from establishments within companies describe the whole range of business activity in Canada, the goods and services produced, the cost structure of each industry and the location of industrial activity. It measures the kind and quality of goods produced, the costs of materials, labour and capital employed and the prices of both material and final products. The information is also a vital input to the System of National Accounts.

As some of the businesses surveyed are unincorporated, there is personal information in this data base relating to owners of unincorporated businesses who can be identified by a social insurance number. The following components of the business data bank may contain personal information in respect of unincorporated businesses: Industry: This component contains cost structure information, material input and commodity output data for manufacturing and logging industries and for the forestry, mining, energy, resource and manufacturing sectors. It also contains organizational, operational, financial, labour and capital expenditure information for general and trade contractors. As well, information is held on the activities of retail businesses and wholesale trade including the sales, inventories and operating data. Transportation: These files contain financial, operational and traffic information relating to air carriers, passenger buses, and for-hire and private trucking. Labour: The files contain information on the employment of labour by small businesses. They also contain information on personal characteristics of the population benefiting from unemployment insurance, and on individuals starting and terminating benefit periods.

Informatics and Methodology

The mandate of the Administrative Data Development Division is to study and develop methods and approaches to explore the statistical potential of administrative data files from other federal or provincial institutions for small area social statistics and as an alternative or complement to direct data collection through censuses or surveys. The division maintains a number of databases containing personal information which has been obtained from administrative sources. However, whereas the Department that originally collected the data maintains the files in a manner which permits retrieval by name or other identifier, Statistics Canada classifies the data on a geographical basis which permits the production of data for very small areas, within the constraints of confidentiality.

Following is a description of the classes of personal information maintained by the division: Unemployment Insurance Monthly Beneficiary Database: This database contains information on every person who qualified for at least $1.00 of benefits in the third week of the month. The number of records per month varies between 500 000 and 1 million over the course of a year. Persons who collect special benefits such as sickness and maternity benefits are included in the database. The contents include the social insurance number, demographic information and information on occupation. The records are retained for 20 years. Personal Income Tax Database: This is an annual database of all persons who file income tax returns for each tax (calendar) year. The information is obtained from Revenue Canada. Coverage is about 80% of the Canadian population 16 years of age and over. It is lower for the young, the elderly and females and is close to 93% for males in the prime working ages (20-64). The contents of the file include the following: social insurance number, demographic information and information on income. The records are retained for 20 years. Old Age Security Master File: This is a file received once a year containing information on all persons receiving Old Age Security (including guaranteed income supplement) payments. The contents include social insurance number, demographic information, geographic information and limited income information. The records are retained for 20 years.

Household Surveys

The Household Surveys Division is responsible for a number of household surveys including surveys on family expenditures, household facilities and equipment, and incomes of Canadian families and individuals. In some cases, the name of an individual respondent is collected. In other cases, the respondent may be a household unit or a spending unit. In all cases, however, the information is maintained geographically and is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier.

Following is a description of the classes of personal information maintained by the division: Survey of Consumer Finance: This is an annual survey of households, conducted on a sample basis, designed to measure the distribution of income and to provide other yardsticks of the economic well-being of Canadian families and individuals. The records carry information on wages and salaries and other income, selected family and personal characteristics. To retrieve a record from this class of personal information, the requestor must provide the year he/she was surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. For those years when the survey is carried out in conjunction with the Labour Force Survey, it may be possible to locate records relating to an individual. However, for those years when it is conducted independent of the Labour Force Survey, after the processing cycle is complete and the questionnaires are destroyed (usually after one year), it would be necessary to provide certain personal characteristics such as age and sex to permit the identification of an individual in a household group. Family Expenditure Survey: The survey collects information, obtained by a sample survey of households, on expenditures by families and singles living in private households, covering their complete budgets. A primary use of the information is for reviewing and updating the weights for the Consumer Price Index. As with the other classes of personal information maintained by the agency, this information is not intended to be retrieved by name or other personal identifier. To retrieve a record from this class of personal information, the requestor must provide the year he/she was surveyed and the precise address at the time of the survey. This may permit the retrieval of the survey response, but in those cases where the spending unit represented in the response is a group rather than an individual person, it would be necessary to provide certain specific details of the individual requesting the record to permit the identification of that individual. This would include such personal characteristics as age, sex, and marital status.

Routine Correspondence and Other Subject Files

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of Statistics Canada, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in specific information banks described in this entry.

Such information includes enquiries, complaints and general correspondence which are stored as part of the general subject files and are not retrievable by any personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable by means of specific information such as subject and/or date of communication.

The retention periods associated with this information are consistent with those associated with the general subject files wherein they are stored.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at headquarters and in the regions.

STC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, layoffs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained by the employing institution to which the Certification Document and Confidential Report were submitted for the duration of employment plus two years, after which the records are destroyed.

Employee Assistance
Description: This bank contains information treated in a confidential fashion that is relative to an employee's involvement in an Employee Assistance Program (EAP); notice of voluntary or mandatory (supervisory work-performance related) referral; records of reference to, or reports and correspondence from a health professional or rehabilitation agency; and only non-medical interpretations concerning an employee's work capability or limitations. All personal medical data shall be maintained in a medical protected status under the control of the Medical Services Branch, National Health and Welfare. Records relating to work performance deficiencies, absenteeism and disciplinary matters are to be held in the appropriate institutional personal information bank and not held with EAP files.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary to the administration of the Employee Assistance Program. To determine the need for employee assistance counselling, referrals for medical evaluations and participation in rehabilitation programs.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions regarding employee assistance measures.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years following the date of the most recent reference to employee assistance, after which the records are destroyed.

STC/P-SE-918
Affirmative Action Program
Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employees files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment
Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

OFFICE OF THE CO-ORDINATOR, STATUS OF WOMEN

Chapter 98

OFFICE OF THE CO-ORDINATOR, STATUS OF WOMEN

Background

In 1971, the position of Co-ordinator, Status of Women was set up within the Privy Council Office. In 1976, the Office became a department of the federal government by Order-in-Council.

The primary functions of the Status of Women Canada are to advise the Minister in carrying out his or her responsibilities; to monitor policy and program development in the federal government for its impact on women; and to liaise with provincial governments, non-government organizations and international organizations, in order to maintain an awareness of their activities.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — GENERAL PUBLIC

OSW/P-PU-005
Talent Bank
Description: This bank contains the names and curricula vitae of potential female candidates for government boards, commissions, task forces, etc. The information is classified by experience and/or educational background.
Class of Individuals: General public.
Purpose: This bank has been established informally to respond to ministerial requests for names of women qualified to be appointed to government boards, commissions, task forces, etc. The Parliamentary Relations Unit of Status of Women has the responsibility of acquiring appropriate names and personal data for this bank. These names and curricula vitae are referred by an executive search firm. Information acquired is used by the Minister to forward to colleagues when appointments are pending or being discussed.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Three to five years.
PAC# = 84-004
TBS Registration Number: 000573

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting its activities, Status of Women Canada accumulates categories of personal information which are stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. Such personal information may have been accumulated in the process of handling such complaints and enquiries as are made to the Minister and the Department. Due to the special nature of the Department's activities, these personal complaints and enquiries are usually forwarded to the appropriate department for individual assistance. The Department handles policy and program issues, but not personal program delivery matters. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the issue of complaint, and the date and name of complainant. All issues dealing with federal government legislation, policies and programs as they impact on women are included.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

STANDARD BANKS

OSW/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; layoff lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in a government institution.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

OSW/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 000576

OSW/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Training and Development
Description: This bank contains personal data including course applications and evaluations; social insurance number; examination results and certificates; records of fee payments; and correspondence related to participation of employees in training and development activities, sponsored both by the government and operated by private organizations. It should be noted that participation and achievement records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record and that information on an employee's needs for individual development related to performance is contained in the Performance Reviews and Employee Appraisals Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of training and development programs within government institutions.
Consistent Uses: To approve and register the participation of employees in training and development activities and to certify the achievements of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after completion of the particular training and development undertaken by an employee.
PAC# = 85-001
TBS Registration Number: 000578

OSW/P-SE-906
Official Languages
Description: This bank contains course enrollment and attendance information; language training applications containing basic personal data, such as first official language, date of birth, and social insurance number for purposes of identification; language knowledge examination scores; training certificates and correspondence about the official languages qualifications of employees. The bank may also contain duplicate input forms for the Official Languages Information

System (OLIS) and the Language Training Module (LTM). Language examination, exemption and training records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Similar data is also held in Particular Banks of the Public Service Commission and Treasury Board Secretariat.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for administration of official languages policies as they pertain to employees of the federal Public Service, to document and support decisions pertaining to official languages qualifications and language testing and to document the language training needs and accomplishments of employees.
Consistent Uses: To support and document decisions concerning individual employees on staffing, entitlement to bilingual bonus, transfers and promotions; and to aid in determining the linguistic status of employees and auditing of the administration of official language programs.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after last documentation the records are destroyed.

THE ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY AUTHORITY

Chapter 99

THE ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY AUTHORITY

Background

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority was established in 1954 by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act (passed in 1951), and is designated a proprietary corporation (Schedule C, Part I) within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Overall Responsibilities

The Authority was incorporated for the purpose of

- acquiring lands for and constructing, maintaining and operating all such works as may be necessary to provide and maintain, in Canada or in conjunction with works undertaken by an appropriate authority in the United States, a deep waterway between the Port of Montréal and Lake Erie;
- constructing, maintaining, and operating all such works in connection with such a deep waterway as the Governor-in-Council may deem necessary to fulfil any obligation undertaken pursuant to any present or future agreement;
- acquiring lands for, and constructing, maintaining and operating, alone, or jointly, or in conjunction with an appropriate authority in the United States, bridges connecting Canada with the United States as authorized by the incorporating Act, and in connection therewith, or as incidental thereto, acquiring with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, shares or property of any bridge company, and operating and managing bridges; and
- acquiring lands for, and constructing or otherwise acquiring, maintaining and operating such works or other property as the Governor-in-Council may deem to be necessarily incidental to works undertaken pursuant to the incorporating Act.

The three members of the Authority, appointed by Order-in-Council, as well as the Corporate Secretary, Legal Counsel and the Planning Branch, are located in Ottawa, Ontario. The Finance and Accounting Branch, the Operations and Maintenance Branch, the Personnel and Administration Branch and the Audit Division are located in Cornwall, Ontario. The headquarters of the Eastern Region, which extends from Montreal to Lake Ontario, is in St. Lambert, Quebec. The Engineering Services Branch is also located there. The Western Region headquarters, which operates the Canadian-owned Welland Canal, is in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act was amended in 1956 to give the Authority the power to incorporate subsidiaries. There are now three: The Seaway International Bridge Corporation, Ltd., the Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, and The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated.

In addition to the foregoing, by virtue of P.C. 1976-2407 of September 28, 1976, The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority has been entrusted with the maintenance and operation of the Canadian span of the Thousand Islands Bridge over the St. Lawrence River between Lansdowne, Ontario and Collins Landing, New York, including all appurtenant structures and property located in Canada.

THE JACQUES CARTIER AND CHAMPLAIN BRIDGES INCORPORATED

Background

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated was created for the purpose of managing, controlling, operating and maintaining the Jacques Cartier and Champlain bridges, including a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute in Montréal.

The Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated received its Certificate of Incorporation under the Canada Business Corporations Act on November 3, 1978. The administration and control of the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute in the Montréal area was transferred to this corporation from the National Harbours Board (Ports Canada) by virtue of Order-in-Council P.C. 1978-3139 dated October 12, 1978, as amended, effective December 1, 1978. The corporation's head office is located in Ottawa, Ontario and its chief place of business is at Longueuil, Québec.

The corporation was established to provide the public with a safe and efficient transit over the Jacques Cartier Bridge, the Champlain Bridge and a portion of the Bonaventure Autoroute; and to provide this service while making every effort possible to make the bridges completely self-financing.

Specific objectives of the corporation are

- to continue the implementation of a program to maintain the bridges and autoroute at an acceptable standard;
- to ensure operational safety and efficient flow of traffic;
- to assess the need for improvements to the system and plan for their implementation;
- to develop a long-term financial plan and recommend to Cabinet a toll structure which will enable the Jacques Cartier and Champlain Bridges Incorporated to achieve financial self-sufficiency;
- to rationalize the capital structure of the corporation by seeking the deletion of its $111 million debt to the Crown; and
- to examine its personnel requirements on a continuing basis to assure the optimum utilization of human resources.

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or of archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Attendance and Leave

Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within government departments and agencies.

Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

Pay and Benefits

Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.

Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.
Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.
Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.
Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

TARIFF BOARD

Chapter 100

TARIFF BOARD

Background

The Tariff Board, made up of a chairman and six members, carries out one program consisting of two functions: to act as an independent commission of enquiry into matters on tariffs and trade, and to act as a quasi-judicial court of appeal.

In its role as a commission of enquiry, the Board undertakes specific trade and tariff studies at the request of the Minister of Finance. In conducting an enquiry, the Board invites the submission of briefs and holds public hearings at which the views of importers, manufacturers and consumers can be heard. Based upon those hearings and the work of its own research staff, the Board makes such recommendations on these matters as it deems appropriate.

In its role as a court, the Board hears appeals resulting from rulings by National Revenue, Customs and Excise on tariff classification, valuation of goods for customs purposes, and the federal sales tax. The Board's powers also include the hearing of appeals on charges levied on petroleum and petroleum products and on the exportation of any oils. Its rulings are appealable to the Federal Court and the Supreme Court.

The Tariff Board was established in 1931. Its authority to carry out enquiries and to hear appeals is provided for under the Tariff Board Act. Its role as a quasi-judicial court of appeal is further specified in the Customs Act, the Excise Tax Act, the Anti-dumping Act and the Petroleum Administration Act.

The statutory responsibility of the Board is to adjudicate upon appeals from rulings by the Department of National Revenue, Customs and Excise and to conduct enquiries referred by the Minister of Finance or the Governor-in-Council into matters affecting Canada's international trade.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

Since administrative support for the Board is provided by the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion, the latter maintains personnel records for Board employees as part of its own Personal Information Banks. For a detailed description of these banks, reference should be made to the entries for that Department. However, all official requests for access concerning Board employees should be directed to the Privacy Co-ordinator at the above address, and not to the DRIE Co-ordinator.

TREASURY BOARD (SECRETARIAT)

Chapter 103

TREASURY BOARD (SECRETARIAT)

Background

The Treasury Board is a committee of the federal Cabinet. The President of the Treasury Board is the chairman of the committee, and its members include the Minister of Finance and four other ministers who are appointed by the Governor in Council. The Board was created by Order-in-Council in 1867 and received statutory approval in 1869. Its secretariat was part of the Department of Finance until 1966, when it became a separate Department.

Overall Responsibilities

The Treasury Board's responsibilities, as set out in the Financial Administration Act, include financial management, personnel management and central administration of the Public Service of Canada. It is also responsible for the application of the Official Languages Act within the Public Service and serves as the employer for negotiating federal Public Service collective agreements under the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

The Treasury Board is served in these functions principally by the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat, which is divided into six branches: Program, Personnel Policy, Staff Relations, Administrative Policy, Official Languages and Administration. In addition, there are four offices — the Office of the Secretary, the Communications Division, the Submission Control Unit and the Bureau of Real Property Management.

The secretary is the deputy minister, who directs the work of the Department and advises the President and the Board on all areas concerning the organization and management of the Public Service under the jurisdiction of the Treasury Board. The Secretary is assisted by an Associate Secretary. The Office of the Secretary is also responsible for the co-ordination of requests received under the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act for information held by the Treasury Board Secretariat.

Office of Privatization and Regulatory Affairs

Background

The Office of Privatization and Regulatory Affairs was established in August, 1986, as part of the Government's program of economic renewal and better management.

Overall Responsibilities

The Office of Privatization and Regulatory Affairs has two main objectives: the divestiture of selected Crown corporations and the improved management of the regulatory process. Overall responsibility for the direction of the affairs of the Office of Privatization and Regulatory Affairs rests with the Deputy Minister, who is its permanent head and senior advisor to the Minister of State (Privatization).

The Deputy Minister is assisted in this role by five branches: Privatization, Regulatory Affairs, Policy and Co-ordination, Communications and Administration and Executive Services.

Access Procedures

Please note that the Office of Privatization and Regulatory Affairs does not have central or particular banks. Personal information of employees of the Office is stored in standard banks. Employees or former employees of the Office wishing to access personal information about themselves should quote the applicable personal information bank number listed in the Standard Banks section of the Treasury Board Secretariat.

A formal request under the Privacy Act should be made by completing a Personal Information Request Form and forwarding it to

Classes of Personal Information

Departmental Enquiries

This class contains personal information contained in requests made by, or on behalf of, individuals for interpretation of specific policies, such as administrative, personnel and official languages policies. The information is used to assist in the interpretation of future enquiries. As information is not maintained by individual identifiers but by subject matter and/or department, requestors must provide, in addition to the information requested on the Access Request Form, the subject, the name of the department or agency and the approximate date of the enquiry. The retention period for this class of personal information is controlled by the retention period of the files in which they are stored.

PERSONAL INFORMATION BANKS — FEDERAL EMPLOYEES

CENTRAL BANKS

TBS/P-CE-701
Submissions to Treasury Board

This bank contains personal information used for administrative purposes that is included in those submissions made by departments and agencies to the Treasury Board for the purpose of obtaining administrative, personnel or other authorities that the Treasury Board is empowered to grant. This information relates to employees of the Public Service. The purpose of this bank is to record and maintain submissions made to the Treasury Board by departments and agencies concerning current or previous employees of a government institution. The information is used to present situations which by statute or specific direction require resolution by the Treasury Board.

TBS/P-CE-702

TBS/P-CE-703
Official Languages Information System (OLIS)

OLIS is a central bank containing information on all established positions and incumbents appointed for indeterminate periods or terms of more than six months in departments and federal agencies. The bank includes language-related information such as language requirements of positions, levels of language knowledge, linguistic profile, position classification, and their effective date. The information relates to employees listed in Schedule I, Part I of the PSSRA as well as for some other government organizations under a special agreement. This bank has been compiled to provide timely and accurate information for the implementation, control and evaluation of the Official Languages Program in the Public Service. Information is also disclosed for statistical purposes to the Special Groups Identification Survey in order to implement and evaluate government policies relating to affirmative action. The OLIS interfaces with the Incumbent system of PPB (TBS/P-CE-705) and the Second Language Evaluation system of the PSC to collect all its incumbent related information. The OLIS also transfers some of its data to the Language Training Module.

TBS/P-CE-704

Language Training Module (LTM)

LTM is a central bank containing information on language training provided to public servants at government expense. Primarily, the bank includes information such as proficiency levels trained to, hours used for language training, employee training entitlement, and type of language training received (whether given by the PSC, a department or private enterprise). The information relates to employees, current and previous, of departments and agencies listed in Schedule I, Part I of the PSSRA as well as some other government organizations under a special agreement. The purpose of this bank is to provide accurate, timely and reliable information to support the implementation and control of that segment of the Official Languages Program that pertains to language training provided to public servants. There is an interface between the Language Training System (LTS) of the Public Service Commission (PSC) and the LTM, (e.g. the PSC updates the LTM with the final training results and status, and the PSC is provided with a training history). An interface also exists between OLIS and the LTM of the Treasury Board. The information is used for reference, research and statistical purposes to monitor the Official Languages Program.

TBS/P-CE-705

Personnel Management Information System

Description: The Personnel Management Information System contains individual federal employee personnel management data concerned with personnel records, attendance and leave, overtime, pay and benefits, exclusions, training and development, official languages and performance appraisals.

Class of Individuals: All federal employees for whom the Treasury Board is classed as the employer under the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

Purpose: The bank was compiled to provide employers with personnel management statistical data in support of Treasury Board's role in collective bargaining with the Public Service unions; and to provide a record of employment for individual employees including a verification of employees by location within government institutions, for the use of both departments and central agencies.

Consistent Uses: Statistical data is disclosed to the Special Groups Identification Survey in order to implement and evaluate government policies relating to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for 10 years and then destroyed.

TBS/P-CE-706

Special Groups Identification Survey

This survey of the federal Public Service (PSSRA Schedule I, Part I population) permits those individuals who are Métis, Inuit or Indian, disabled persons and/or members of visible minorities, to identify themselves as such. A service-wide census was conducted in April 1985 in order to initialize this central data bank (TBS/P-CE-706). Various methods for keeping the data bank up to date are being considered, such as voluntary self-identification of newly-hired personnel, mandatory self-identification of personnel who access special programs and services for the above-mentioned groups, and small-scale surveys which would ensure that all public servants are resurveyed every four or five years. This information relates to employees of that portion of the federal Public Service covered by the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Schedule I, Part I. The bank will be used to identify those members of the Public Service who are Métis, Inuit or Indian, disabled persons, and/or members of visible minorities for analysis purposes. The bank facilitates comparison of their representation in the Public Service to their presence in the population. The bank will also be used to analyze and monitor the situation and progress of the survey target populations, as compared to the rest of the Public Service, in terms of regional and occupational distribution, training, mobility, etc. These comparisons will be made on a regular basis in order to determine the effectiveness of affirmative action and special programs and to identify areas of possible improvement. Self-identification status and personal identification from the survey are matched, using the provided personal identification, to other files, such as the Incumbent File, other appropriate files of the Personnel Management Information System (PMIS), the Training and Development System (TDIS), the Official Languages System (OLIS), all from the Treasury Board Secretariat, and human resource data files of the Public Service Commission, such as the Quarterly Statistics File and the Appointment Information Management System. The bank contains data extracted from the survey form, such as the social insurance number and status of the particular individual. The bank will be matched by common identifier (the social insurance number) to the above-mentioned files in order to obtain information relating to age, sex, occupational group, subgroup and level, years of service, salary, etc., so that tabulations can be produced in support of analysis as described above. If a respondent has not reported his/her social insurance number, it is entered for statistical purposes only. The bank acquires information from other banks, such as the standard departmental Affirmative Action bank (P-SE-918), but no disclosure of personal information is made from this bank that could reasonably be expected to identify the individual to whom it relates. An individual requesting to access his/her registered special groups identification status should provide the social insurance number in order to guarantee response to the request. Retention period for this information is to be established.

STANDARD BANKS

TBS/P-SE-901

Employee Personnel Record

Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline, and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.

Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee, and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment, and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment, or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code

Description: This bank contains (1) Employee Certification Documents indicating that an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agrees to observe the Code as a condition of employment and indicating whether or not an employee has assets or liabilities identified in sections 21 and 22, participates in activities specified in section 26 of the Code of the Public Service; (2) Confidential Reports of assets, liabilities and participation in outside activities subject to confidential reporting in accordance with the Conflict of Interest and Post-Employment Code for the Public Service; and (3) investigation reports and correspondence about potential and actual employee conflicts between the private interests or holdings of an employee and the employee's official duties and responsibilities.

Class of Individuals: Employees of government institutions.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information (1) as to whether an employee has read and understood the Code of the Public Service and agreed to observe it as a condition of employment; (2) about potential and actual conflict of interest situations for employees of a government institution; (3) to record potential conflicts of interest; and (4) to record any post-employment compliance action required of the employee, including decisions reducing the limitation period.

Consistent Uses: To resolve situations of potential and actual conflicts of interest and to support decisions on transfers, discipline and termination of employment if conflict of interest exists. To enable designated officials to determine whether a former public servant to whom post-employment compliance measures apply is in compliance. This impacts on a current public officer's ability to deal with the former public servant.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees such as education, work history and career aspirations, training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g. women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons), and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Employees of the institution.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

VETERANS AFFAIRS

Chapter 104

VETERANS AFFAIRS

Background

More than 600 000 Canadian men and women served in the First World War. Of these, 66 655 gave their lives and approximately 173 000 were wounded. In addition, 1 649 Newfoundlanders died in that war. In the Second World War, more than one million Canadians served their country. Of these, over 44 000 were killed and approximately 55 000 wounded. There were 714 fatalities from Newfoundland forces. During the Korean War, more than 26 000 Canadians served with the United Nations Peacekeeping Force: 516 died, 1 200 were wounded. In 1987, the Canadian veteran population is approximately 640 600 male and 28 100 female veterans.

Names of Canadians who were killed in these wars and in the Boer War are recorded in the Books of Remembrance. The original volumes, including the Newfoundland Book of Remembrance, are open to public view in the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill in Ottawa. Copies are retained in every province.

Overall Responsibilities

The Portfolio's mission is to manage special programs for veterans and other specified persons to compensate for deaths suffered and disabilities incurred in the service of Canada, or to enable them to be self-sufficient and participative members of the community, and to otherwise perpetuate recognition of wartime sacrifice and its contribution to Canada.

The purpose of some of the original rehabilitation programs, such as re-establishment credits, was successfully fulfilled and they were phased out. Portfolio responsibilities continue to include the administration of pensions and war veterans and civilian war allowances, medical treatment, counselling, advocacy and educational assistance to children of the war dead, as well as commemoration of those who served their country during wartime.

Today, most veterans are approaching the end of their working life, and programs such as the Veterans Independence Program (VIP) are being tailored to meet their needs as they approach old age.

Organization

The Veterans Affairs Portfolio consists of the Department of Veterans Affairs and four associated agencies, namely the Canadian Pension Commission, the Pension Review Board, the Bureau of Pensions Advocates and the War Veterans Allowance Board, which all report to Parliament through the Minister of Veterans Affairs.

The Department of Veterans Affairs is made up of four branches and a division: Field Operations; Finance, Personnel and Administration; Pensions, Health and Social Programs; Veterans Land Administration and the Audit and Evaluation Division.

The Department of Veterans Affairs was created by an Act of Parliament in 1944. Previously the care of veterans had been the responsibility of the Military Hospitals Commission, the Department of Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment (created during the First World War) and then the Department of Pensions and National Health, established in 1928.

Towards the end of the Second World War, the Department of Veterans Affairs was formed to oversee expanded rehabilitation programs. The Canadian Pension Commission was formed in 1933 as the successor to the Board of Pension Commissioners that had been in operation since 1919. The War Veterans Allowance Board was established in 1936, when it replaced the War Veterans Allowance Committee. The Pension Review Board and the Bureau of Pensions Advocates were both created in 1971 as a result of amendments to the Pension Act.

Personal information contained in the Department of Veterans Affairs personal information banks is used by all components of the Portfolio.

Department of Veterans Affairs

Field Operations Branch

The Field Operations Branch is responsible for the delivery of services and benefits to veterans in all regions and districts, and for the operation of the departmental hospital at Sainte-Anne-de-Bellevue, the veterans homes in Senneville, Ottawa and Saskatoon. The branch is also responsible for public affairs, support for the Minister and Deputy Minister and liaison with central agencies.

Finance, Personnel and Administration Branch

The Finance, Personnel and Administration Branch provides functional direction and managerial and operational support services for the Department and the associated agencies in the areas of finance, personnel, management services, legislative review and access to information and privacy.

Pensions, Health and Social Programs Branch

The Pensions, Health and Social Programs Branch is responsible for corporate planning and also administers a broad range of economic, medical and social services benefits to qualified veterans and special categories of civilians, and their families. Pensions are paid to veterans for death and disability related to military service. Additional pension is available for the veteran's dependants, and pension may be paid to dependants after the pensioner's death. Allowances for exceptional incapacity, attendance and clothing are also provided. Similar awards for death or disability are available to persons who served in the Second World War in certain types of employment closely associated with the Armed Forces, such as in the Merchant Marine or the Auxiliary Forces. Compensation is also provided to former prisoners of war, evaders, escapees and their dependants and to certain persons injured in the Halifax explosion of 1917.

War Veterans Allowance and Civilian War Allowance are income support benefits intended to ensure that family incomes do not fall below a level provided for under legislation. Assistance Fund grants are available to allowance recipients to meet emergency needs. Pensioned orphans of veterans or members of the armed forces are eligible for financial assistance to pursue post secondary-education.

Medical, surgical and dental treatment, including special equipment and long-term care, are provided to eligible veterans and other qualified persons. Miscellaneous allowance benefits are payable in certain circumstances under the Veterans Treatment and Veterans Care Regulations.

To fulfil Veterans Affairs' mandate to commemorate Canada's war dead, the Branch maintains the graves of the war dead and the Battlefield Memorials in Europe. The Branch is also responsible for two Vetcraft shops which employ disabled veterans and their dependants in the manufacture of symbols of remembrance.

VETERANS AFFAIRS

Veterans Land Administration

The Veterans Land Administration (VLA) manages property purchase agreements between the director, VLA, and veterans and their heirs. More than 140,000 veterans have been settled under the Veterans Land Act since its inception nearly 35 years ago. The final lending deadline was March 31, 1977.

Audit and Evaluation Division

The Audit and Evaluation Division conducts program evaluation and internal audit activities with the guidelines of the Comptroller General and Portfolio policy.

Associated Agencies

Pension Review Board

This agency acts as an appeal tribunal for applicants who are dissatisfied with decisions of the Canadian Pension Commission's Entitlement and Assessment Boards. It is the final authority on matters of pension entitlement, the amount of money to be awarded and the interpretation of pension legislation and regulations.

Canadian Pension Commission

The Canadian Pension Commission adjudicates claims under the Pension Act for death and disability that are a result of military service. It is also responsible for hearing appeals before the Entitlement and Assessment Boards regarding former decisions on pension matters. The Commission awards additional pension benefits on behalf of dependants and, upon a pensioner's death, to eligible survivors. In addition, the Commission adjudicates on pension claims under various other acts, orders and regulations, such as the Civilian War Pensions and Allowances Act (Parts I to X), the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Superannuation Act and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Pension Continuation Act, the Halifax Relief Commission Pension Continuation Act, the Compensation for Former Prisoners of War Act and the Flying Accidents Compensation Regulations. It also authorizes monetary grants which accompany certain gallantry awards and administers trust funds established by private individuals for the benefit of veterans.

War Veterans Allowance Board

The War Veterans Allowance Board acts as a court of appeal for dissatisfied War Veterans Allowance and Civilian War Allowance applicants and recipients. It reviews decisions of departmental adjudicators to ensure that adjudication is consistent with the intent of the legislation and is uniformly applied throughout Canada. The board adjudicates pursuant to specific sections of the legislation where it has sole jurisdiction, provides interpretation of the Acts and Regulations, and advises the Minister on the regulations.

Bureau of Pensions Advocates

The Bureau of Pensions Advocates provides a free legal service to applicants and pensioners under the Pension Act. It assists veterans in preparing applications for pensions and in applying for changes in the amount of pension previously awarded. Bureau lawyers also represent veterans at hearings held under the Pension Act and the War Veterans Allowance Act.

STANDARD BANKS

The following banks are located at Headquarters and in the regions.

VAC/P-SE-901
Employee Personnel Record
Description: This bank provides a summary record of an individual's employment with government institutions. It is maintained for the purpose of facilitating personnel administration. Information about an individual may be used in decisions relating to the areas of: staffing, attendance and leave, pay and benefits, training and development, occupational health and safety, official languages, discipline and level of security, where information in one area may affect a decision in another area. In the above cases, the information in this bank summarizes and refers to more detailed information in other banks. This information may be used, provided such use is consistent with the main uses of the information, to ensure that personnel actions within government institutions are co-ordinated in the interests of both the individual and the employer. The Employee Personnel Record relating to an employee is under the control of his/her current employing institution and contains information concerning personal characteristics, including age and sex; social insurance number; home address; citizenship; education, including transcripts, certificates and diplomas; non-government employment history; career résumés and references; geographical and organization location; appointments, transfers, promotions and demotions; periods of employment, including probationary periods, lay-offs and tenure; classification including position numbers, groups, levels, titles and salaries; superannuation and insurance, including names of beneficiaries. Also included, where applicable, is information concerning military service, including periods and areas of service; collective bargaining exclusion, including designation status and bargaining agent identification; professional achievements, including publications, patents and awards; passports and firearm permits related to employment; and termination of employment, including certificates and reasons for termination. The Employee Personnel Record contains summary records of decisions relating to staffing; attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; decisions concerning compensation and fitness for work; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance. The major series of information concerning these topics is, however, found in the various other Standard Banks. The Employee Personnel Record may not include the personal information actually used to make decisions in the areas noted above.
Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees.
Purpose: To provide documentation and authorization of appointments, transfers, promotions, demotions, termination of employment and superannuation.
Consistent Uses: To authenticate decisions on staffing, attendance and leave; pay and benefits; training and development; occupational health and safety; official languages; discipline; and level of security clearance, as well as verifying employment references. Information is also provided to Supply and Services Canada to facilitate payment of salaries; to various provincial health insurance plans; to group insurers, where applicable; to unions for dues check-off purposes and to National Health and Welfare for pension purposes.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained by the current employing institution for the duration of employment plus one year and then transferred to the control of National Archives. The information is destroyed when the individual reaches the age of seventy, or two years after the death of the individual, provided two years have elapsed since the last administrative action concerning the information. For records relating to disciplinary action, the time limit for disposal is that specified in applicable collective agreements or three years following the date of disciplinary action, provided no further disciplinary action has been recorded in the meantime. In cases where a disciplinary action has been rescinded, onus is on the institution to ensure that the documentation of the action concerned is immediately destroyed. Records of individuals, if judged by the Dominion Archivist to be of historical interest or archival value, are retained permanently by the National Archives of Canada.

Staffing
Description: The bank contains staffing requests; position descriptions; salary ranges; selection profiles; competition posters; transfer requests; lay-off lists; human resources inventory print-outs; candidates' applications; lists of candidates; rating board questions and assessments, including evaluation notes from staffing boards; examination papers and test results; eligibility lists; offers of employment; notices to candidates; notices of right of appeal and appeal documents; and correspondence concerning staffing by various processes, including competitions and human resources inventory searches. Records in the bank contain a variety of personal information which may include age, sex, education levels and social insurance number. (N.B. Notations of staffing decisions may also appear in the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees and applicants from other government institutions, as well as non-government applicants.
Purpose: The bank provides a record of the information used in staffing positions in the Portfolio.
Consistent Uses: To select candidates, staff positions and process appeals for appointments and promotions. Access procedures: Competition number, where applicable, should be quoted.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the eligible list for a staffing action expires, or two years after any other administrative action, at which time the records are destroyed.

VAC/P-SE-903
Attendance and Leave
Description: This bank contains absence reports and leave applications, as well as physician's certificates associated with sick leave, all of which include the individual's social insurance number and correspondence about attendance and leave. While the social insurance number is included on these forms to verify the correct identity of individuals, provision of the SIN by data subjects is not mandatory. The annual record of attendance and leave is attached to the Employee Personnel Record. Some attendance and leave information exists in automated form in institutional personnel databases, especially in time/attendance, leave control and absenteeism systems.
Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support administration of employee attendance and leave within the Portfolio.
Consistent Uses: To record attendance and authorize leave. To support decisions on pay and benefits, such as those concerning leave and termination of employment, and to evaluate use of leave and rates of absenteeism.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Two years after expiry of fiscal year, after which period the records are destroyed.

VAC/P-SE-904
Pay and Benefits
Description: This bank contains certificates for pay, allowances and deductions, which set out pay and benefit information for each employee and include the social insurance number as well as correspondence related to the administration of pay and benefits. The bank may also include orders for garnishment, attachment and diversion of funds. (N.B. Earning and superannuation records are attached to the Employee Personnel Record.)
Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees.
Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide documentation for the administration of pay and benefits within government institutions and to approve disbursement of salaries and allowances and retention of deductions. The social insurance number is used for purposes of identification and to ensure consistency in administration of pay and benefits. Provision of the SIN is mandatory for this bank, subject to exemption of some individuals under special circumstances.
Consistent Uses: To enable audit and reconciliation of payroll accounts (e.g. employee remuneration and entitlements), to support the recovery of overpayments and debts owed to the Crown and, where applicable, to enable execution of orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds in accordance with the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act.
Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after expiry of fiscal year, for general pay and deduction documentation and for correspondence, except in instances where there is a need to settle overpayments, to collect debts owed the Crown or to enforce orders of garnishment, attachment or diversion of funds, in which case records are retained until the overpayment is settled, the debt collected or the garnishment, attachment or diversion order is no longer in force.

Affirmative Action Program

Description: The bank contains personal information on employees and on outside job applicants such as education, work history and career aspirations training and development, which is collected by means of questionnaires and/or interviews or compiled from employee files or automated data systems. Respondents are asked to identify whether they are male or female; whether they are a native person, if they have a continuing or permanent physical disability, or form part of a visible minority. The social insurance number or an employee number may be used to identify employees in instances where government institutions are not able to employ an anonymous questionnaire as well as when these identifiers are required to locate employee records.

Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees and outside applicants.

Purpose: This bank provides documentation for the implementation of the affirmative action policy in government institutions falling under the Public Service Staff Relations Act, Part 1, Schedule 1. Data is collected to provide a comprehensive picture of employees by sex and by target group status (e.g., women, indigenous peoples and physically or mentally handicapped persons) and, in some instances, by visible minority. This information is used to compile a personnel profile of employees and to compare the situation of target group members with non-target group members within a government institution and with their counterparts in the general labour market. The social insurance number or employee number may be used to link information in this bank with that in another bank containing employee information (e.g. the Personnel Management Information System) in order to obtain statistical information, where the securing of such information would be consistent with the uses for which the personal information was collected.

Consistent Uses: The information gathered will be used for institutional purposes in the government's affirmative action program to identify and eliminate systemic discrimination in employment and to introduce temporary special measures to ensure that target groups participate in and are equitably represented in the federal Public Service. It may also be used for policy and planning purposes related to affirmative action. The agreement of the person concerned is required before any information is released to personnel not directly responsible for the program.

Retention and Disposal Standards: The disposal criteria for this bank are to be established.

Personal Harassment

Description: This bank contains letters of complaint regarding incidents of harassment; records of interviews both with complainants and alleged harassers; records of interviews with witnesses to incidents; summations of management investigations and analyses of events and records of decisions taken about particular incidents. Such information must be retained as a separate record and not placed on the complainant's Employee Personnel Record. When a disciplinary action results from an investigation, information may be transferred to the Discipline Bank.

Class of Individuals: Portfolio employees.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to record information necessary for dealing with complaints of personal harassment at the workplace, to make decisions in specific instances on whether or not personal harassment is occurring, and when this is the case to determine the appropriate action, including disciplinary action, to be taken to end a harassment situation.

Consistent Uses: To support decisions on transfer and discipline of employees.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are destroyed two years after the most recent administrative activity in relation to an individual case.

YUKON TERRITORY WATER BOARD

Chapter 105

YUKON TERRITORY WATER BOARD

Overall Responsibilities

The Yukon Territory Water Board is a nine member quasi-judicial body appointed by and responsible to the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development. Its responsibility is to manage and protect the Yukon's surface and sub-surface water resources.

Water Use Licences are issued for hard rock mining, hydropower generation, municipal use in some cases, placer gold mining and other industrial purposes. A licence application received by the Board is reviewed at a public hearing which is advertised in the Canada Gazette and the local newspapers. At the hearing, the applicant presents his case before the Board; in addition, members of the public who have submitted a written Notice of Intention to Intervene before the hearing, may present arguments for or against the issuance of a licence to the applicant.

If no intervenors come forward before the date set for the public hearing, it may be cancelled. The Board considers the application without public input, and a licence is either issued or denied. A licence drafted by the Board generally contains terms and conditions which reflect a balance between protection of the water resources and their exploitation as proposed by the applicant. The licence is then sent to the Minister whose signature renders it legally effective.

The Regional Manager Water Resources, Yukon Region, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development enforces the terms and conditions of Water Use Licences. The manager and his staff also serve as technical advisors to the Board.
